Soviet Invasion Scare Rocks Romania; Concessions Offer

Leader May Propose Renewal Of Old Pact

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Romanian leaders, alarmed by reports of a Soviet military buildup on their country's unprotected eastern borders, were reported searching today for a political settlement to the East European crisis to avert the threat of invasion.

Reliable sources said President Nicolae Ceausescu has offered concessions to the Soviet Union—including renewal of a 20-year friendship and assistance pact — in return for guarantees that Romania would not be occupied.

A formula proposed to the five hard-line members of the Warsaw Pact reportedly calls for a conference of ruling Communist parties to discuss terms for the withdrawal of occupation forces from Czechoslovakia under an accord to be found with the liberal Prague leadership.

FIVE PROPOSALS

According to the sources, restoration of Czechoslovakia's full sovereignty is considered a precondition for an over-all settlement. The concessions Romania was said to have offered include:

Renewal of the Romania-Soviet pact of 1948 which ran out earlier this year and was not renewed because of disagreement on the terms.

A formal declaration of loyalty to the Warsaw Alliance to assure the Kremlin that independent-minded Romania would remain a member.

Participation of Romanian troops in pact maneuvers, which virtually ceased four years ago. However, maneuvers should not be held on Romanian territory for the time being—evidently because they might serve as a pretext for occupation.

TRADE OFF

More Romanian trade with East European countries whose share in the over-all volume has fallen behind trade with the West.

A higher share in the East bloc's foreign aid for underdeveloped countries.

The formula was said to have been submitted to pact governments earlier this week, following Ceausescu's Aug. 24 meeting with Soviet Ambassador Alexander Bassev, which triggered speculation about a Kremlin ultimatum to let Warsaw Pact troops enter Romania for maneuvers.

The government maintained strict silence despite Soviet, Hungarian and Polish charges of having supported Czechoslovak "counterrevolutionaries" by siding with the forces of Par-

Johnson Warns Against Any New Invasions

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — President Johnson said Friday night the Soviets, now in control in Czechoslovakia, may be preparing a new invasion "somewhere else in Eastern Europe" — apparently meaning Romania. (See picture, page 2.)

Johnson warned that "no would-be aggressor (should) misjudge American policy" freedom.

Addressing a seven-state meeting of milk producers, the President said it was clear Moscow leaders ordered the invasion of Czechoslovakia because they felt threatened by independence.

"It is clear to me that the leaders in Moscow felt their interests were threatened by even a modest degree of independence and human liberty," Johnson said. "And there are even rumors late this evening that this action might be repeated somewhere else in Eastern Europe."

Washington officials said Johnson referred to Romania, but there was no information late yesterday troops had actually crossed the border.

In London, Foreign Minister Joseph Luns of The Netherlands said Soviet troops were massed in Hungary near the Romanian border. He could not speculate on possible Soviet intentions against that country.

Diplomatic sources in London said the Soviet Union mobilized 650,000 troops for the Aug. 21 invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The sources said about 200,000 were sent against the Czechs and the others kept in readiness for any action against Romania.

DOG'S REACTION NOT KINETIC

Among spectators today at opening of the Sausalito Arts Festival in the Bank of America parking lot on Bridgeway was Juno, German shepherd dog pet of Serge Trubach, the show's designer. And among the paintings on display was one by Trubach, entitled "Kinetic Reaction." Somehow, Juno didn't seem to react kinetically to his master's painting. The festival will continue through Monday. Major Supply Of Red Arms Discovered

SAIGON (AP) — American paratroops sweeping around the northern city of Hue uncovered today a major enemy arms cache that may have been stockpiled for a new attack against the old imperial capital.

The store of weapons and ammunition was found on a day in which the U.S. Command described action as light and scattered throughout South Vietnam. There were at least seven scattered rocket and mortar attacks, but no sustained fighting was reported.

The big arms cache was found eight miles southwest of Hue by 82nd Airborne Division troops after a Viet Cong defector led them to a series of tunnels covered by triple canopy jungle. The find was part of a three-day sweep in which the paratroopers reported killing 178 enemy while losing seven men dead.

Associated Press photographer Joe Holloway, with the airborne troops, reported the cache included more than 500 rifles, 5,000 rounds of mortar shells, 31 antitank weapons, 20,000 rounds of .50-caliber machine gun ammunition and 1,750 North Vietnamese uniforms.

The elaborate tunnel complex also contained a two-story field hospital. A dead soldier was found on an operating table when the hospital was overrun, Holloway reported.

The tunnels were believed part of the headquarters area of the North Vietnamese Army's 22nd Regiment.

10 Acres Charred; Homes Threatened

Two wind-whipped brush fires in Tamalpais Valley yesterday gave firemen from three departments quite a scare as flames nearly got out of control near a residential area.

When it was all over nearly 10 acres had been burned.

The fires were two of six such blazes around the county yesterday and last night which firemen claimed were deliberately set.

The first fire broke out at 2:57 p.m. on the hill behind the Buckeye Restaurant on Shoreline Highway near the Highway 101 exit. Rough terrain and heavy winds forced firemen to hand-carry hose lines up the hill. The drive shaft of one Tamalpais Fire District engine was fractured in an attempt to climb the hill.

Marin County firemen reached the scene at 3 p.m. with two engines. Mill Valley firemen were called to cover the emptied Tamalpais Valley station at 4:11 p.m. when another grass fire broke out above Tennessee Valley Road. The second fire was easily contained after burning one acre, according to Tamalpais Valley Fire Chief Richard K. Oswald.

A strong wind whipped the first blaze out of control briefly but it was contained before it reached any homes. Eight fire engines and some 40 men were used to extinguish that more than eight-acre blaze. It was all over at 6 p.m., Oswald said.

"The fires were maliciously set by youngsters," he declared. Residents reported seeing boys dash from the area when the flames broke out. Oswald said another fire had been set but was quickly extinguished by a resident.

A series of small grass and debris fires kept San Rafael firemen busy last night.

Three blazes within 20 minutes were intentionally set, firemen claimed. Two fires were reported less than 200 yards apart on San Pedro Road, 300 feet south of McNear's Beach, at 2:20 a.m. Both burned an area of about 900 square feet, firemen said.

Another fire was reported at 2:44 a.m. at the north end of Woodside Way off Knight Drive. Firemen said some diesel fuel was used to ignite a brush and debris pile on a construction site.

San Rafael firemen had been called to a grass fire above Robert Dollar Drive at 1:22 a.m. The fire, also believed to have been set, burned 2,500 square feet, firemen reported.

Humphrey, Muskie Get Mixed Airport Chant

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, Minnesota's first major party presidential nominee, arrived home to a mixed greeting of cheers from supporters and heckling from antiwar demonstrators.

Humphrey, fresh from his first-ballot nomination at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, and his running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, flew into Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport last night, en route to a weekend of rest at the vice president's lakeshore home in nearby Waverly.

About 250 persons, divided about evenly between Humphrey supporters and backers of his defeated presidential rival, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, also of Minnesota, were on hand to greet them.

Humphrey's arrival time had been advertised in local newspapers, and aides attributed the slim turnout to a plane crash several hours earlier which had blocked the main highway leading to the airport.

The mixed reception was similar to many of those Humphrey received in the preconvention campaign. And the tenor of the crowd indicated that Humphrey's appeals for party unity delivered at the convention and at yesterday's meeting of the Democratic National Committee had made little impact on those who had backed McCarthy and opposed the Democratic party position on Vietnam.

"We want Gene!" they shouted as Humphrey worked his way along the airport fence shaking hands. These chants, and others of "Stop the war" frequently drowned out the "We want Hubert" cries from the vice president's supporters.

And there were as many critical signs, such as one reading "The choice of the party bosses not the people," as the pro-Humphrey signs reading, "Go, go Horatio," a reference to Humphrey's middle name.

Aides said the vice president had no plans for any meetings today but would just relax after the campaign and convention.

A reception is planned tomorrow by friends of the vice president before Humphrey leaves for New York City where he plans to participate Monday in a Labor Day parade, replacing the traditional Democratic campaign-opening rally in Detroit.

12 Israelis Held In Plane Hijack Freed By Algeria

ROME (UPI)—Twelve Israelis held by Algeria since their El Al jetliner was hijacked over the Mediterranean more than a month ago were released today and flown to Rome.

The 12 men—seven crew members and five passengers—were taken to the Algiers airport this morning and placed aboard an Alitalia airliner for the flight here.

The Italian foreign ministry said in an official statement that the Israelis were released to the Italian government by Algeria "because of the friendship existing between our two countries and because of the efforts of Foreign Minister Giuseppe Medici."

Dubcek Begins Fight To Avoid Soviet Purge

PRAGUE (UPI)—Alexander Dubcek and his Czechoslovak Communist reformers today opened a fight for political survival from Soviet purging. They held an emergency party central committee meeting.

"The main item on the agenda is the personnel question," said Danube Radio of Bratislava, announcing the session.

Communist sources said the Russians apparently forced Dubcek to summon the central committee, the party's ruling body. They said the Soviets want a thorough pro-Russian housecleaning.

There was no clear sign if Dubcek and his liberal reformers, their nation occupied by Soviet bloc forces 10 days ago, could withstand Kremlin pressure for purging.

Discussion of the "personnel question" could bring election of a new presidium, the central committee's leadership. It could bring election of a new first secretary.

Dubcek is the party first secretary who led the reform regime that first irked the Kremlin and then was buried by the Soviet bloc invasion.

The Slovak congress earlier this week ousted from leadership Vasil Bilak, denounced as a pro-Russian collaborator.

FOUR TRANSPLANTS

DeBakey Leads Historic Operation

Combined AP and UPI

HOUSTON, Tex. — Surgical teams removed four organs from a young woman shooting victim today and transplanted them into four men. The renowned Michael E. DeBakey called the mass transplants a world's first.

"As far as I know, there have been only two organs taken from a donor and given to recipients in previous cases," Dr. DeBakey said at a news conference.

The organs were heart, lobe of a lung and two kidneys. The woman's corneas were removed and placed in an eye bank for possible use later.

All the patients were reported in satisfactory condition hours after the operations.

Newsmen questioned Dr. A. C. Beall closely. He headed the lung transplant team.

Dr. Beall said there have been five previous lung transplants in the world and none of the patients are living. Concerning today's lung transplant he said, "We have to take an optimistic approach but at the same time we must be realistic. His condition at this time is satisfactory."

Dr. DeBakey became internationally famous as the developer of the mechanical heart operation.

The donor of the heart, two kidneys and a lung was Mrs. Nelva Lou Hernandez, 20, who died of a gunshot wound in the head.

She was first treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and then was transferred to Methodist, where she died as doctors prepared the recipients.

Her heart was given to William C. Carroll of Scottsdale, Ariz.

Her lung was given to William J. Whaley, 39, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

One kidney was given to William C. Kaiser, 41, of Odessa, Tex. The other went to Thomas A. Stevenson, 22, of Houston.

The multiple transplants were parts of a program at Baylor University's College of Medicine aimed at using as many donor organs as feasible.

The lung transplant was the first at Methodist, which is in the Texas Medical Center, professional home also of Dr. Denton A. Cooley, the world's busiest and most successful heart transplant doctor.

Methodist Hospital's committee for clinical investigation involving human beings approved the transplants of the organs into Whaley and Carroll.

The kidney operations were the 19th and 20th such transplants at Methodist, and for Kaiser, it was his second "borrowed kidney." He had received a kidney in transplant May 5 from heart-kidney donor Charles B. Brannon of Conroe, but the kidney did not function correctly.

Brannon's heart was given May 5 to James C. Cobb, 48, of Alexandria, Va., but Cobb died May 8 from the effects of his body's reaction to immunological drugs.

Carroll, 50, recipient of Mrs. Hernandez' heart, was admitted to the hospital Aug. 9, suffering from severe coronary arterial disease. Doctors decided only a heart transplant would enable him to survive.

Whaley, 39, the recipient of Mrs. Hernandez' lung, was admitted to the hospital May 13, suffering from chronic emphysema, which had incapacitated him.

Meanwhile it was reported another heart transplant was underway in Pittsburgh. (See also page 2 for Canadian transplant.)

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Rebel Movement In Congo Calms

MONTREAL (AP) — A 58-year-old father of five was reported "recovering very well" today after becoming the world's 35th heart transplant patient.

Officials at the Montreal Heart Hospital said the new heart of Elie Zaor, a native of Turkey who came to Canada 40 years ago, "took over in a beautiful fashion." It was Canada's third heart transplant.

One electrical shock was needed to start the heart taken from Aime Lamothe, a 38-year-old welder from Sorel, Que., spokesmen said.

Lamothe, who suffered a massive brain hemmorrhage, was taken unconscious Thursday to Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal and "for all practical purposes . . . was dead for a day and a half" before the operation, doctors said.

The operation began about 8 p.m. yesterday and ended near midnight.

The surgical team was headed by Dr. Pierre Grondin.

Canada's Third Heart Transplant

KINSHASA, The Congo (AP) — Brazzaville residents, evacuated from their homes yesterday because of siege by rebel elements, were told they could go home today.

Diplomatic reports said fighting had shifted to Pointe-Noire, the Congo Republic's second largest city.

A defense department communique, read over Radio Brazzaville after it resumed normal transmissions at noon, said residents could return to homes near Camp del la Meteo. The curfew was moved back from 7 to 9 p.m.

The broadcast indicated the army had subdued a group of armed attackers believed to be left wing supporters of deposed Information Minister Andrew Hombessa and Interior Minister Michael Bindi. The ministers were deposed in a shakeup Aug. 3-4.

Heavy mortar and gunfire was heard throughout the night. Diplomatic sources said dissident youths of the National Revolutionary Movement, the Congo republic's only party, were making a last-ditch stand at the port of Pointe-Noire. There were no details of the fighting.

Cabbies Return

CHICAGO (AP) — A two-week strike that idled most of Chicago's taxicabs during the Democratic National Convention ended last night less than 24 hours after the convention adjourned.

A new three-year contract was ratified overwhelmingly by drivers and mechanics for Yellow Cab and Checker Taxi companies. It provides immediate wage increases for all fulltime drivers with more than two years service.

Yellow and Checker cabs began returning to the streets within an hour.

Spokesmen for the companies said the settlement would make it necessary to ask the city council to approve fare increases.

Quake In Iran

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — A potentially destructive earthquake struck an area of Northeast Iran today, the National Earthquake Center reported.

A spokesman said the tremor, with a magnitude of 8 on the Richter scale, was reported at 6:47 a.m., EDT, and was centered approximately 390 miles east-southeast of Teheran.

The quake was greater than the shock of Sept. 1, 1962, centered near Buyin-Zara, Iran, which killed 12,225 persons, officials said. That tremor had a magnitude of 7.5.

Seek Asylum

VIENNA (AP) — The Austrian Interior Ministry announced today 553 Czechoslovak citizens have asked for political asylum since Aug. 20-21, when Warsaw Pact troops invaded Czechoslovakia.

Another 2,078 Czechoslovaks have entered Austria since yesterday, while 7,984 have returned to their homeland from Austria, the report said. Reports from Prague said the Austrian legation is handling 2,000 visa applications daily.

A ministry spokesman said it was impossible to give an exact figure of Czechslovaks currently staying in Austria, because of the changing situation.

11 Convicted

ATHENS (AP) — Eleven persons idenitfied as members of the Patriotic Front were convicted yesterday by a military tribunal of advocating the overthrow of the army-backed Greek government and distributing subversive leaflets, it was announced here.

Seven were sentenced to two to five years in jail and four others were given suspended sentences.

Refutes Attacks

BELGRADE (AP) — A major Yugoslav daily said today that recent Soviet press attacks on the country "heap mud and untruths" on Yugoslavia.

The exchanges between the two countries speared to be gaining momentum as the Belgrade daily Borba accused the Soviet news agency Tass and newspaper Isvestia of "distorting Yugoslavia's attitude toward the events in Czechoslovakia."

Biafra Plea

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Three Scandinavian governments have directed an urgent appeal to the Nigerian government not to hinder mercy airlifts into Biafra.

A spokesman of the Norwegian Foreign Office said yesterday that envoys of Norway, Sweden and Denmark have been instructed to deliver the appeal in Lagos.

They were ordered to reply to a statement by Nigeria Thursday that it considered the mercy airlifts a "hostile action."

14 Flood Deaths

MANILA (AP) — Fourteen persons have drowned in widespread floods caused by heavy monsoon rains in central Luzon since last weekend, Philippine press reports said today.

The government ordered relief and rescue operations in the area, threatened by hunger and disease.

Discharged

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — Josef Cardinal Beran, exiled Roman Catholic archbishop of Prague, was discharged today from Stuttgart's Marien Hospital, where he underwent a hernia operation Aug. 5.

His secretary said the 79-year-old prelate would remain in Southern Germany on recuperative leave for a time before returning to the Vatican, where he heads the prefecture for economic affairs.

Missourian Takes Demo Chairman Job

CLINTON, Mo. (AP) — Delton L. Houtchens said today he was "very happy" to accept the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee, offered to him yesterday by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. (See other political story, page 2.)

Houtchens, 50, chairman of the Missouri Democratic Committee, said Humphrey talked to him yesterday in Chicago after the vice president had been nominated for president at the Democratic National Convention.

A former member of the Missouri House and a Clinton lawyer, Houtchens will formally be named to the national post after the election Nov. 6. Lawrence O'Brien, former postmaster general, will fill the office of national committee chairman until that time. O'Brien also will be Humphrey's campaign manager.

Houtchens said he knew that he had been under consideration for the national post. He had been suggested for the job several weeks ago.

He said it was his understanding that O'Brien was planning to go into private employment after the election.

Houtchens, a native of Deepwater, Mo., is a graduate of Westminster College at Fulton, Mo., and the University of Missouri School of Law.

Policeman Poses As A Yippie

CHICAGO (AP) — A policeman who infiltrated the Youth International Party has disclosed how Yippies planned in advance to riot and provoke attacks on them by police during the Democratic National Convention, the Chicago Tribune said today.

The Tribune said in a copyright story that the policeman, Robert L. Pierson, told the newspaper he was given a leave to serve as an investigator for the state's attorney's office, won the Yippies' confidence and became bodyguard for their leader, Jerry Rubin.

FOUND OUT

Pierson, 35, said he guarded Rubin from Sunday afternoon until Wednesday afternoon when his identity was discovered in a chance meeting with a member of the Blackstone Rangers, a South Side street gang, who recognized him.

Demonstrations by antiwar groups, including the Yippies, during this week's Democratic convention resulted in violent exchanges between protesters and police. The outbreaks brought swift action by police and charges that they attacked demonstrators without provocation, often clubbing them into submission.

Several hundred were arrested and scores were injured.

As a result of Pierson's undercover work, the Tribune said, police officials knew in advance what the Yippies were planning.

GREW BEARD

Pierson related that after he received permission from the Cook County—Chicago—state's attorney's office riot control unit to attempt to infiltrate the Yippies, he grew a beard for six days, rented a motorcycle and rode into Lincoln Park on Monday. The Yippies generally operated out of the North Side park and it was the scene of a number of violent exchanges between them and police early in the week.

The policemen said he came to the attention of Rubin by breaking up fights among hippies three times on Monday. It was then that Rubin assigned Pierson as bodyguard, Pierson told the Tribune.

It was on Monday, too, Pierson said, that Rubin entrusted him with his personal diary of Yippie plans and told him to hold on to it at all costs.

GAVE PLANS

Pierson said he later excused himself by telling Rubin he had to go to a washroom in the park. Instead, he said, he "picked a fight" with a policeman and was arrested. While in detention, the undercover officer said, he identified himself, turned over the diary and gave police details of Yippie plans for Monday night in the park area.

After his release, through Rubin's intercession with a Legal Aid Bureau attorney, Pierson told Rubin he had destroyed the diary when arrested rather than have it fall into police hands.

With information from the diary, police arrested Rubin Wednesday night in the downtown area and charged him with solicitation to commit mob action, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. He was released on $25,000 bond Thursday night.

When arrested and confronted by Pierson, Rubin said, "Well, at least he was a good bodyguard," Pierson related.

Nelson Resigns As Public Works Chief For State

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Samuel B. Nelson resigned as state public works director and Nelson's 36-year-old deputy as his successor.

Taking over will be James A. Moe whom Reagan called "an energetic man of proven executive ability." Nelson's resignation came yesterday.

Nelson, 67, retired manager of the Los Angeles water and power department, was named to the post last October, succeeding John Erreca who was fired by the Reagan administration. Erreca was a holdover from the previous Democratic administration of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Moe served in the Navy for two years after graduating as a civil engineer from the University of Minnesota. He was project manager for Pozzo Construction Co. in Los Angeles before joining the Reagan administration in February 1967 as a deputy public works director.

BEAUTY VS. BRAINS

A Gorgeous Dish Not Bookish Type

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Beautiful women and female scientists are a world apart, the scholarly American Psychological Association was told today.

A gorgeous dish just isn't likely to ever be a nuclear physicist, and Ph.D. types simply aren't likely to become swingers.

The little discoveries turned up in the standard Strong test of vocational interest, Dr. David P. Campbell, University of Minnesota psychology professor, told the association's 76th annual convention.

Campbell noticed the same patterns developed among successful fashion models, night club entertainers and airline stewardesses.

The obvious thing they have in common, he said, is physical attractiveness. "Now and then a Phyllis Diller may come along but even she is, for my purposes, psychometrically beautiful."

Campbell used the pattern as the standard for what came to be known around his office as "the swinger scale" and measured the responses of 10,000 women on the Strong test against it.

At the very bottom of the scale were Ph.D. mathematicians and power sewing machine operators. They were only a trace below Ph.D. chemists, math-science teachers and licensed practical nurses.

While admitting some exceptions must exist somewhere, Campbell said, "The conclusion stands — women scientists do not enjoy the same things as do women who are in occupations where beauty is an essential asset."

As further confirmation, the researcher reported that among centerfold girls in Playboy magazine, who usually describe themselves, only three among the last 78 in seven years expressed the slightest interest in scientific activity.

What the beautiful women had in common were preferences on the Strong test for variety, thrilling activities, taking chances, entertaining and being the first to wear the latest fashions.

The kinds of work they most liked were actress, model, professional dancer and, oddly, criminal lawyer.

Campbell also compared 14 occupational sample groups tested in the 1930s with those of the 60s and found "women are becoming more vivacious."

"One might note especially that the YWCA is apparently not what it used to be," he said. While all 14 groups had moved sharply upward on the swinger scale, YWCA staffers shot from near bottom to hailing range of the beautiful women.

Campbell, 34 and married, said it's too bad the government doesn't contribute a bit of money "to study beautiful women."

"If we could somehow increase our output by 1 per cent, think what this would do for our national product," he smiled.

He allowd that his wife, a Phi Beta Kappa musician who, he said was beautiful, had mixed feelings about his studies.

Eisenhower Continues To Improve

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower continues to show steady but "understandably slow" progress from his recent heart attack, his doctors reported today.

They said the progress has been sufficient to allow him to read current western paperbacks.

The doctors also said in defining the excellent spirits which they had attributed to him Friday that he has "maintained his superb sense of humor and keen interest in personnel around him throughout his long illness."

They added that "those in attendance have found him to be an exemplary patient."

The doctors, at Walter Reed Army Hospital, also reported in answer to reporters' questions that Eisenhower has been advised of the nomination of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Edmond S. Muskie of Maine to the Democratic national ticket. But they offered no statement on what reaction Eisenhower had to these nominations.

In their formal medical bulletin issued shortly before 8 a.m. (PDT,) the doctors said:

"General Eisenhower had a comfortable night. He continues to show steady progress. However, this has been understandably slow compatible with the extent of his underlying coronary artery disease. The general's visitors are still being restricted to members of his immediate family."

In answer to a question submitted by newsmen, the doctors said Eisenhower is still being administered oxygen intermittently through a tube attached to his nose.

Atlantic City Blaze Damages 14 Buildings

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—A general alarm fire heavily damaged 14 stores and restaurants and a section of the Boardwalk here today before it was halted several hundred feet from the hotel-headquarters of the Miss America Pageant.

A block-long area of the Boardwalk, which will be the scene of a parade of 50 pageant beauties Tuesday, was heavily damaged, fire department officials said.

"Workmen will start immediately to repair the boardwalk and we will definitely have it ready for the parade in time," Mayor Richard S. Jackson said.

No injuries were reported in the blaze which was brought under control in about an hour.

Some 200 firemen were summoned to fight the blaze, the cause and origin of which was not determined. Several surrounding communities sent firefighting teams.

Several hundred Labor Day weekend guests who jammed into the resort city Friday night watched from hotel windows and the beach, as firefighters fought the flames. Thick black smoke could be seen from miles away.

The huge Haddon Hall Hotel, headquarters for the Miss America Pageant, was not evacuated because officials were advised that the fire was under control.

Two Miss America contestants—Miss Georgia and Miss New Mexico—were in the hotel posing for pictures in the height of the blaze.

"Everyone was running in and out and we could smell the smoke," 20-year-old Burma Ann Davis, Miss Georgia, commented. "We were not alarmed, however, because pageant officials told us the hotel was not threatened."

Wheeler Sees Czech Crisis Reason To Remain In Europe

DALLAS (AP) — Gen. Earle Wheeler said today the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia shows a "substantial requirement" for U.S. forces to remain in Europe.

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff argued against placing too much reliance on the ability of U.S. planes to rush troops back to Europe once they have withdrawn.

"Our security needs in Europe . . . cannot be principally met by long-range, heavy lift aircraft," Wheeler said. "I believe a substantial requirement persists in that area for U.S. forces in being and in place."

Thousands of American troops have been pulled out of West Germany in recent months under a "dual-basing" plan which would speed them back from the United States in case of a military emergency.

About 200,000 U.S. troops remain in West Germany. Before the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia some members of Congress were demanding that the force level be further cut. Some have since publicly said their views have changed.

Wheeler commented in a speech prepared for a reunion of the 36th Infantry Division.

The "sudden and overwhelming application of Soviet power" against the Czechs raised "crucial strategic considerations," he said.

"First among these lessons in the clearly demonstrated requirement to maintain our focus upon Soviet capabilities," the general stated.

Three Tots Perish In Auto Blaze

SOUTH SAN GABRIEL (UPI) — Three children burned to death in a locked car in a super market parking lot yesterday, despite the frantic efforts of bystanders to rescue them.

Enrique Estrada Sr., 23, and his wife, Consuelo, 26, of San Gabriel, left the youngsters in the auto when they went to the market to cash a check.

While they were gone, the children found and ignited a road flare, which the family carried in the car for emergencies. Little Martin Estrada, 4, and his brother Enrique, 2, and their 11 month old sister, Consuelo, began screaming in panic after the interior of the car caught fire.

William Zavala, 23, of Temple City, rushed to the auto grasped the heated door handle, and tried to rip the door open. He failed and was treated for hand burns. Zavalla said the hysterical children could not understand his shouted orders to push the inside handle of the door down so they could get out.

Joseph Bartar, 25, an off duty firemen from nearby San Marino, tried to break a window, but was unable to do it quickly enough to reach the children. He was treated at Garfield Hospital in Monterey Park for second and third degree burns. The children's mother was admitted to the hospital for treatment of shock.

The Estradas had been in the store less than five minutes when the fire broke out.

Parents Charged With Murder Of Daughter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sheriff's officers have charged a mother and father with the murder of a 4-year-old girl whose body was found wrapped in rags in the rear of a store last week.

They are holding William Bryant, 35, and his wife, Mattie Beatrice, 31, in the death of the child, Cynthia, last Friday.

The girl had been reported missing by her parents, but sheriff's investigators said Bryant hid her body after she died last Thursday night.

Sgt. H. W. White said the mother punished the girl by forcing her to run and walk across the family's living room until she collapsed of exhaustion. When the parents failed to revive the girl, they decided to hide her, he said.

Ukiah Murder Trial Recessed

SAN JOSE (AP) — The trial of two Washington state youths on charges of murdering a 17-year-old Ukiah boy a year ago was recessed until Tuesday after six more prospective jurors were eliminated Thursday.

Working on the second group of veniremen, the defense has 13 peremptory challenges remaining and the prosecution 21.

Thomas E. Braun and Leonard E. Maine, each 20 and from Ritzville, are accused of killing Timothy Luce of Ukiah and the kidnaping, rape and attempted murder of his companion, Susan Bartolomei, 18.

Barbecue Set For Tomorrow

The 13th annual Mill Valley Lions Club chicken barbecue will start at noon tomorrow in Boyle Park.

Chicken dinners with all the trimmings will be served until the chickens run out, according to Roy Carlson, barbecue chairman. A variety of games, including the dunk tank and coin toss, will highlight the afternoon.

Proceeds will finance the club's youth and civic projects, Carlson said.

Newsmen Get Court Order Against Police

CHICAGO (AP)—A federal court order restraining Chicago police and Police Supt. James B. Conlisk Jr. from interfering with newsgathering efforts of newsmen and photographers has been issued by the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Judge Elmer J. Schnackenberg signed the order Thursday on an appeal by attorneys representing four photographers who charged they had been beaten while trying to take pictures of disorders in Grant and Lincoln parks since Sunday.

Revolver Is Stolen, But Cash Is Ignored

Ronald Buoncristiani of 408 Scenic Avenue, San Anselmo, reported to police Thursday that while he and his wife were away between 10 a.m. and 11 p.m. someone pried open a window of his home and stole a .45-caliber revolver.

About $190 in cash in a drawer beside the revolver was not taken, police said.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Cousins Seek Solution To End Mother-Aunt Five-Month Feud

DEAR HELEN:

My Mom and my aunt had an argument about five months ago over something we know nothing about. We don't ask, as it's none of our business. They have been good friends for the longest time.

We are the kids and it's really terrible to see them not talking. Is there any way we can get them back together? — UPSET COUSINS

DEAR COUSINS:

You might try sneaky psychology. Tell each fighter confidentially that the other feels miserable about the fight and would like to make up but is afraid she'll get cut down. Then get them together, and hope for the best.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

After reading "I Care's" request for kids to start "people power," I thought I should tell you it has already been started. I'm sure you've heard of "Up With People," a worldwide organization.

It was started in 1965 in Michigan when a youth conference decided to sing out their convictions that American youths aren't all draft card burners, rioters, etc. A national cast was started to tour America and it was soon receiving invitations from foreign countries.

There are now five national casts and over 15,000 American young people in local "Sing Out" casts. These are tomorrow's leaders who are learning to discipline themselves now. From being in "Up With People" they learn they must live by absolute standards of honesty, purity, unselfishness and love before they can hope to change the world. We realize, though, that no one can be absolute but God, so we just try to do our best.

"Up" reaches millions of people by giving positive demonstrations, or singing about the things we're for, not against. By the time, in the show, where we sing, "Up With People," everyone in the audience has caught the spirit and is singing with us. Knowing they are with us, gives us such a feeling of great pride in our country and her people that it's indescribable.

If anyone would like further information on Up With People, write to "Sing Out," North Hudson, 507 Twenty-sixth Street, Union City, New Jersey, 07087; or to MORAL RE-ARMAMENT, INC., 833 South Flower Street, Los Angeles, Calif. 90017. — JEAN FROM S.O.N.H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am 18. My boy friend is planning to go to Greenwich Village to live. He asked me to come along. Helen, I want to very much.

My parents are divorced. My mother comes home drunk every night. I have two younger sisters, 12 and 14, but they are capable of taking care of themselves.

I love my sisters, but also love Edward. Should I go where I'll be happy, or stay where I'll be miserable? — UNDECIDED

DEAR UN:

Why trade a bad situation for one that might become much worse? Young love in Greenwich Village may sound romantic but it can be deadly — and perhaps you'll be the unlucky one who ends up dead. The Village environs are where the drugs are, and these people don't stop with weak tea.—H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Tweedies Celebrate Anniversary

A young man from Maine and a young lady from Kansas met in Oregon, beginning a love story that celebrated its 50th anniversary last week. Mr. and Mrs. John Tweedie of Santa Venetia are the principals in the marriage that started in Oregon City, Ore., Aug. 24, 1918, ten days before the bridegroom was to enter military service. Upon his return to civilian life, Mr. Tweedie drove a gravel truck and the couple moved rather frequently those first few years in the Willamette Valley of Oregon.

"Take life as it comes and be happy; keep working," was the advice Mrs. Tweedie would give married couples today. She emphasized the therapy in keeping busy with family and work.

In 1941 the Tweedies moved to California and made their home in San Rafael. Moving to Santa Venetia later the couple founded Tweedie's General Store in 1948. In their store they carry the ordinary line of general merchandise but also include such items as gold pans and hurricane lamps.

A small dinner party was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Tweedie last Saturday evening to commemorate their golden anniversary. It was co-hosted by their sons, Dorsey Tweedie of San Francisco and John Tweedie and his wife, Janet, of San Rafael. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bertoni, Mrs. Katie Calcaterra and Pete Melano, all of San Rafael, and Earl Olsen of San Francisco.

The family was pleasantly surprised by Mr. Tweedie's sisters, Mrs. Margaret Dartt and Mrs. Ferne Craven, and by Mrs. Tweedie's brother, Clyde Kunze, who traveled from Oregon and Washington for the occasion. They were accompanied by Ron Craven, Mrs. Clyde Kunze and Oren Parker.

Mr. and Mrs. Tweedie plan to retire completely in the near future. With four grandchildren and one great-grandson it would be nice to have time at home, they said.

Leslie Ann Harder and Malcolm L. Johnson were united in marriage at the Protestant Chapel at Hamiltom Air Force Base on Aug. 24.

Leslie, who is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Richard S. Harder of Hamilton, chose as her matron of honor Mrs. Karl Smith of New York City, and bridesmaids were Sharon Annette James of New York City and Maureen Cavanaugh of Travis Air Force Base.

Jimmie Neal of San Francisco was best man for the bridegroom, and Richard Harder of Hamilton and Robert Frazier of Travis were ushers.

Following a reception at the Officers Club at Hamilton and a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, the couple will reside in San Rafael. They are both employed with Pacific Telephone Co. in San Francisco.

The bride was graduated from high school in Mascoutah, Ill., and attended San Jose State College. Richard and David Harder are the bride's brothers.

SEW SIMPLE

Folds Placed In Patterns Make Adjustments Simple

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

How can I adjust a one-piece pattern for a larger bust and a short back? I get a bulge of fabric in the back that seems to indicate a need for back darts.

MRS. M.B.

DEAR MRS. M.B.

You make a fold across the back of your pattern just above the waistline, the width of the fold would depend on the amount of adjustment needed. At the same time, increase the size of the underarm dart according to the fold you took out of the back. This will give you a much better fit through the bust and eliminate the excess fabric in back.

There is another reason why a dress bulges in back, and this is usually caused from fitting the skirt too tight below the waist. Most women who put on extra weight need more room than the pattern allows for at this point. I have also found that unless a woman is very thin, she will look better with a small dart at the back of the garment. You must experiment with these changes until you find the ones that will do the most for your figure.

DEAR EUNICE,

I love to sew and consider myself quite professional when it comes to the finished product, yet I seem to lack the courage necessary to make anything unusual. As I look through my wardrobe, there isn't one thing in my closet that wouldn't look great on my mother. This isn't exactly the way I want to look at my age.

MRS. J.W.

DEAR MRS. J.W.:

Your letter reminded me of a friend of mine who was asking my advice about a new pattern she was considering. The bodice was in a contrasting color, and the collar and front edges were bound in the contrasting color of the skirt. She told me she liked the pattern, but thought she would make it all in one color and perhaps add a contrasting collar. She was thinking of the practical part of the garment, which undoubtedly was going to take away the joy and thrill of making her original pattern.

Clothes are a means of expression, and leading authorities agree that they can greatly influence your state of mind and well being. Be free; make something unusual; be courageous, and I'll personally guarantee it will brighten your entire life. In this day and age, we must think young and know that nothing is forever; we must be willing to change our ideas and not form a set pattern.

Today, we don't expect one dress to cover every occasion. This was a necessity during the depression days, and many women are still in the same rut. We have clothes for at-home wear, sports, evening clothes, etc. This is the reason women have run back to the sewing machine again. Please try one project that has a little more daring than you've ever had before and let me know if I'm right.

Mrs. John Bennie, Camillus, N.Y., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"My little love the new 'leather look.' After making a pair of slacks, I found a way to crease them easily. I folded the slacks where I wanted the crease, placed a turkish towel over them and pressed with my steam iron, being careful not to touch the leather with the iron. The crease stays in fine and is so simple to do."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have sewed for my family for years and am told I do a good job, but there are several areas I have avoided because of lack of know-how. My daughter is fond of big checks and plaids, and I have reached the point where I do a very respectable job of matching them. My problem is in finishing the hem. In order to get the garment to hang evenly, I find my plaids are always uneven at the hem. What in the world is causing this?

MRS. B.J.

DEAR MRS. B.J.:

You have run into a very common question that comes up with homesewers. Somehow, when a woman buys a coat ready-made, she doesn't seem to be aware of this; it's only when you sew that you dwell on each and every little detail.

The plaids can never come out even at the hem if you have a garment with an A-line or circular-type shape. Actually, plaids are so beautiful and exciting, that one doesn't notice this, and it certainly isn't important.

If it really bothers you, there is only one solution for you. You must confine plaids and checks to absolutely straight line garments. Then you will follow the line of your plaid for the hem rather than measuring the length even from the floor.

2.5 Million Respond To 'Take A Letter,' And More Are Needed

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Take a letter, Miss Jones.

There are some 2.5 million of you in the nation's offices. You're the secretaries and stenographers without which business and industry, no matter what the size, would not operate. And more of you are needed.

But the employer is getting fed up with second-rate secretaries, no matter how great the shortage of women with your particular skills. And some of the really efficient secretaries also are fed up with the price the inefficient ones are making them pay in prestige, respect and recognition.

Among the repeated complaints are these: Time wasted in the ladies' room, can't spell, clock watching, unnecessary interruption of brain-storming boss, acting the prima donna, ineptness on the telephone, lack of interest in the job, but plenty of interest in the men.

Now before the 2.5 million of you, good or bad, haul off and clobber me, Miss Jones, let it be said these are views from management's suite, not mine.

They were compiled by Patricia van Olinda, a former secretary with a book publishing company. Miss van Olinda, schooled at Allegheny College and Hofstra University, asked "What wrong with secretaries?" of bosses, secretarial supervisors, employment agencies and personnel experts. Her findings are in the current Today's Secretary, a publication for the white collar girl. Miss van Olinda is its managing editor.

Listen to the words of an executive secretary in a suburban public school system who's been supervising a secretarial staff for more than 10 years: "Present day secretaries have no sense of dedication or responsibility. Inefficiency is shrugged off; they don't seem to care if they make an error . . . and they don't have any thought of giving an honest day's work for an honest day's pay."

Or, how about this chastening from an executive with a national temporary office help company: "The big problem with secretaries is a lack of flexibility . . . secretaries are prima donnas—they're afraid to get their hands dirty."

Mrs. Robert K. Holst Heads Jack And Jill

MRS. ROBERT HOLST

A four-year Marin resident will head the Jack and Jill branch of the Marin General Hospital Auxiliary this coming year. Mrs. Robert K. Holst of Kentfield has been elected to serve as president of the group. She has been a member of the auxiliary three years and was vice president last year.

"It is hard to answer what I enjoy most," said the wife of Robert Holst, a consultant for the American Appraisal Company in San Francisco. Anne, the mother of 20-month-old Andrea, says she likes to swim, ski, cook and go with her family on outings. She is active as a volunteer to the Marindale School for Handicapped Children; enrollment chairman for the San Francisco Wells (College) Club; and helps with youth work at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo.

Anne was employed by the New Yorker Magazine in New York, came to California six years ago and was employed in the City in personnel work and as a legal secretary. She is a graduate of Wells College in Aurora, N. Y.

The Marin General Hospital auxiliary raises funds to buy toys and equipment for pediatrics and to perform in-service activities.

Assisting Anne this year will be Mesdames Howard McGill, vice president; Alan Shattuck, treasurer; Todd Cary, corresponding secretary; and John Taddeucci, recording secretary.

Food Poisoning

Protect yourself and family against food poisoning on picnics and outings. If you prepare perishable dishes at home, refrigerate them immediately, and keep such food cold until serving or cooking. Discard any food that appears spoiled or tainted. Take along several nonperishable food items such as canned food, potato chips, and clean raw fruits. The use of vinegar in meat, salad and fish dishes will help retard bacteria.

Span Panel Boots Jump Barrier Plan

A committee proposal to seek design cost estimates for a suicide barrier on Golden Gate Bridge was rejected yesterday by a 6-5 vote of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors.

The security committee had recommended that barrier studies be sought from the architectural firm of Anshen and Allen.

Before the Vote, President Johen E. Nelson got a tongue-lashing from director Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco.

Nelson announced he would "probably cast the only vote" against ordering the Anshen and Allen report. Lerer accused him for putting too much credence in a report last week by Dr. Jesse L. Carr of San Rafael that a barrier would only send potential suicides elsewhere. Lerer said Carr is no psychiatric expert and had admitted he was not qualified to predict what potential suicides would do.

Lerer said Carr's testimony was contrary to that of dozens of experts, some of whom told the security committee earlier this year that many persons never attempted suicide a second time if prevented on the first try.

A voice vote on authorizing the Anshen and Allen study was inconclusive, and Lerer asked for a roll call. On it, Nelson was joined by L. E. Castner and E. J. Guidotti of Sonoma County, George H. Ludy of Marin, Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco and Lowell Edington of Napa County in opposing the barrier study. Voting for the study were Lerer, Edwin M. Frazer of Del Norte County, and John E. Dearman, William D. Hadeler and William Moskovitz of San Francisco.

The board discussed at length a recommendation by Hadeler and Edington that Arthur C. Jenkins, recently retired as the district's chief engineer, be hired as a $245 a day consultant to "start turning studies into rolling stock" to produce a working mass transit system.

Reaching no decision, the board agreed all members should attend the Sept. 11 meeting of the Tri-Partite Transportation Committee to hear its ideas.

Over opposition of Leonoudakis and Dearman, the board agreed to contribute $25,000 to the Redwood Empire Association and $8,500 to the San Francisco Convention and Visitors' Bureau for publicity.

Leonoudakis called it "an unlawful expenditure of public funds for an advertising program we don't need."

He proposed in jest to donate the directors' salaries to the association if they would stop trying to draw more traffic to the bridge.

The Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District board also:

WALDO GRADE — Resolved to ask the state Highway Commission for a high priority on widening Highway 101 to four lanes northbound from Spencer Avenue to the Mill Valley exit.

BATS — Reaffirmed appointment of Ludy as district representative on the Bay Area Transportation Study Commission.

NEGOTIATORS — Named Hadeler and Edington to negotiate with state departments of finance and public works on terms of a $5 million early payment to the state for a 1945 loan, and reimbursement to the district's counties for taxes levied in 1929 to 1931 for preliminary district costs. The payments were authorized under a bill by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, passed by the Legislature.

ANNUAL REPORT — Awarded Recorder-Sunset Press of San Francisco a contract to print 2,000 copies of the annual report for $1,845. Only other bidder was Dettners' Printing House, Inc., San Francisco, at $2,975. Printing last year cost $2,500.

INSPECTION — Heard from engineer Robert E. Shields that an inspection of the main bridge cables showed them to be in excellent condition.

FRED F. ENEMARK

Fair-Marin President Quits Post

Fred F. Enemark of San Rafael yesterday submitted his resignation, effective immediately, as president of Fair-Marin board of directors.

Enemark, executive vice president of Marin County Savings and Loan Association, resigned with "regrets" and gave his reason as "press of business and personal reasons."

The resignation will go to the county board of supervisors Tuesday morning.

Fair-Marin directors were appointed by the supervisors last October to operate the Veterans Memorial auditorium and the county fairgrounds site.

Next meeting of the Fair-Marin board is set for 8 p.m. next Thursday in room 343 of the Civic Center. Vice President Harold Stockstad, a structural engineer from Marin City, will chair the meeting.

The Fair-Marin board has been trying to work out an agreement with the county, setting forth the authority and the extent of jurisdiction the board will have over the fairgrounds site.

Phillip Drath Will Not Back Demo Ticket

Phillip Drath, Democratic congressional candidate in the Sixth District, today said he will not support Democratic presidential nominee Hubert Humphrey.

"The Chicago convention in itself is enough to keep me from supporting anyone who could possibly have been nominated there," declared Drath. "The fact that Mayor Daley is a Democrat is enough to keep me from it. The pro-war Vietnam plank is enough.

"But the reports of what happened on the 15th floor of the Hilton Hotel to the McCarthy staff workers, coupled with the knowledge that Hubert Humphrey made no effort to stop either those attacks or the ones on the demonstrators in the streets is more than enough to keep me from supporting him.

"If Mr. Humphrey can overlook the action of the Chicago police, then he is most certainly not fit to be president of this country."

U.S. position.

"There should not be any doubt in the minds of anyone as to where the United States of America stands on a question so fundamental to the peace of the entire world," he said.

"We have misled some heads of state in recent years, in my judgment, and they have misinterpreted the workings of democracy.

"It led us into World War I and World War II and into other troublesome events since then.

"But I repeat tonight that no would-be aggressor (should) misjudge American policy during this administration."

Loud Music Leads To Drug Raid

A complaint about loud music led to the arrest of four young men and a 17-year-old Mill Valley youth on suspicion of possessing marijuana early today in San Anselmo.

Held in county jail for investigation of possession of marijuana were Garth J. Upton, 24, of 41 Forest Avenue, San Anselmo; Mark E. Vincent, 21, of 78 Wreden Avenue, Fairfax; Robert J. Sullivan, 20, of Menlo Park, and Dave M. King, 20, of Woodside, San Mateo County. Bail was set at $1,150 each. All are to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday afternoon.

Upton, in whose apartment the arrests occurred after the complaint was received at 3:10 a.m., was also booked for investigation of possession of a marijuana smoking device. Police said a pipe used to smoke marijuana was found in the apartment.

San Anselmo police said they saw two plastic bags containing suspected marijuana on the floor of the apartment when they arrived and found the door open.

FLY-BY FOR DEPARTING CHIEF

Maj. Gen. Carroll W. McColpin gave a final salute yesterday as a 16-plane fly-by passed over the Hamilton Air Force Base flightline during formal retirement ceremonies for the Fourth Air Force Base commander. As a surprise to the general, a World War II Spitfire (not seen in photo) followed the supersonic fighter planes in the fly-by. The plane, of a type which McColpin flew with the American Eagle Squadron of the Royal Air Force before United States entry into the war, was lent by the Antique Airplane Museum of Los Angeles. Kent Woodlands Asks Flood Project Reroute

By MARY LEYDECKER

Changing the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project to the tune of $100,000 to satisfy Kent Woodlands residents is agreeable with the advisory board if the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control zone doesn't have to pay for it.

At a meeting called by the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Advisory board yesterday in Larkspur City Hall, residents of Kent Woodlands vociferously protested the planned route of the project through their area.

Instead, they favored an underground channel which would run up Woodland Avenue and take care of flooding which occurs during storms at the intersection of Goodhill Road and Woodland Avenue.

Roger Kent and about a score of other Kent Woodlands residents said they doubted that the original plan, for a concrete ditch in Tamalpais Creek, is needed at all.

Col. Frank Boerger, district engineer of the Army Corps of Engineers, disagreed.

The waters of Tamalpais Creek must be controlled, he said, to protect the huge investment lower down Corte Madera Creek in the $8 million Army Engineers' project. The alternate route through Kent Woodlands would do this just as well, he said, but the additional cost is a local problem and cannot be paid by the federal government.

Board Chairman Neil R. Brixon, a Larkspur city councilman, voiced apprehension that the flood control zone, which includes Larkspur, Corte Madera and unincorporated areas of Kentfield and Kent Woodlands, would be expected to pay for the change.

"We were wined and dined with words," Brixon claimed, accusing Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen and former Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker of misleading promises three years ago when Larkspur and Corte Madera agreed to join the zone.

"We were told that we would have a maximum of a 1-and-one-half-cent tax rate for maintenance," Brixon said. "Instead, the tax rate has varied from 4.5 to 8 cents, and Larkspur and Corte Madera have already contributed about $85,000 to the project."

Mayor Edward W. Colthurst of Corte Madera, also a flood board member, agreed with Brixon. "Corte Madera receives no benefit from the project," he said, and "Larkspur very little." They both said their cities joined for the benefit of the whole area.

Asked by a member of the audience if Larkspur and Corte Madera could withdraw from the zone, Brixon said he had been informed it is legally impossible.

Marin County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost agreed with Brixon and Colthurst that it would take an additional 11-cent tax rate in the flood zone to raise the additional $100,000 for the Kent Woodlands underground channel.

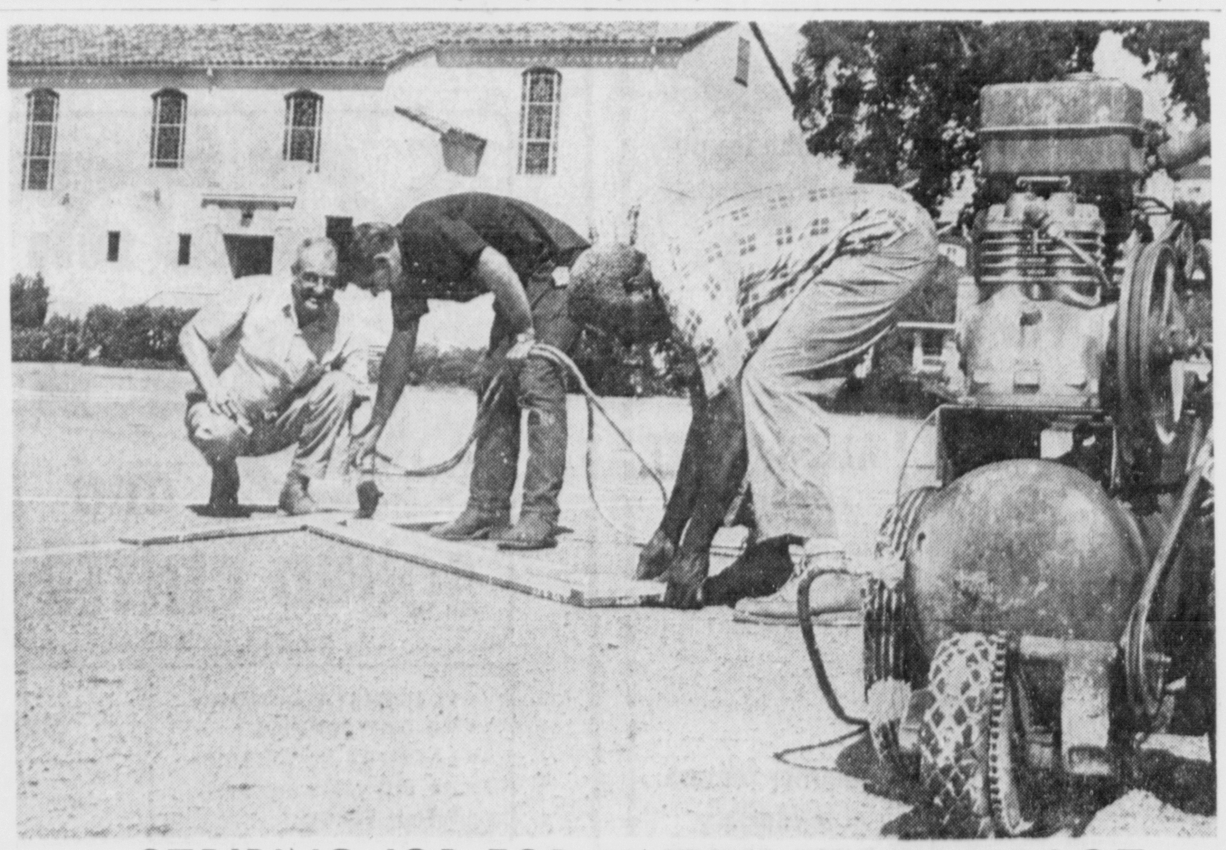
Supervisor Kettenhofen, who had asked the Army Corps of Engineers to prepare the alternate plan, said yesterday that he plans to recommend to the supervisors that it be used and the additional cost be borne by the county.

A motion by the third member of the board present, Mayor Frederick S. Allen of Ross, that the board approve the change if someone other than the flood control zone pays for it, was passed unanimously.

Brixon's suggestion that Kent Woodlands residents pay the cost was not put into the motion.

The supervisors will discuss the problem Tuesday. They can decide to levy a tax in the flood control zone if they wish, as the flood control zone board only has advisory capacity.

Two other members of the board, Ann McCorry representing the unincorporated area, and Mayor Alfred Malvino of Larkspur, were not present yesterday.



STRIPING JOB FOR FAIRFAX CHURCH LOT

A Fairfax city crew yesterday striped parking spaces on the lot of St. Rita's Catholic Church on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Fairfax. Mayor Robert R. Sousa said he had authorized the city crew to do the job if the church would agree to pay wages and costs of material. The striping will provide a one-way pattern so traffic will enter the lot from Drake Boulevard and leave via Marinda Drive. Edgar Phillips, Fairfax street superintendent, is at left, directing Sonny Sturges and Bill Street. (Independent-Journal photo)

Murder Trial In Recess For Holiday

The double murder trial of Johnny Lee Sommerhalder, 24, recessed for the Labor Day weekend yesterday with the conclusion of testimony by Suzanne C. Mulkley, teen-aged daughter of murder victim Shirley Ackley of Santa Venetia.

Trial is to resume Wednesday at 10 a.m. for Sommerhalder, accused of slaying Curtis and Shirley Ackley Jan 12. in their Santa Venetia house trailer.

Mrs. Mulkey, 19, explained to the jury yesterday that she did not immediately tell police of Sommerhalder's involvement in the killings because she feared for her life.

Sommerhalder had told her that the Ackleys died when they interrupted a burglary of their trailer house and he warned Mrs. Mulkey that if she talked "there would be more grief or more trouble. I was frightened," she said.

Referring to her testimony that she stole money on several occasions from her mother's trailer house, Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales asked if Mrs. Ackley seemed to mind the thefts.

"She never said anything about it," Mrs. Mulkey said.

Marin's Hot Spell Is Over

Cool breezes and rolling fog put an end to Marin's short-lived heat spell yesterday and the Weather Bureau predicted still cooler temperatures tomorrow.

Two days of 100-degree weather gave way to temperatures in the mild 70s this afternoon.

Novato recorded an 89 noontime temperature yesterday but a pleasant 71 this noon. An 86-degree reading in San Rafael at noon yesterday compared to 72 degrees today.

The weather for tomorrow is expected to be fair and cooler with temperatures in the 70s. The low tonight is predicted to be in the 50s with westerly winds 10 to 20 miles per hour.

High temperatures recorded yesterday included: Novato, 98; Bolinas, 94; San Anselmo, 93; Woodacre, 91; San Rafael, 87; and Sausalito, a mild 73.

ROMANIA

ty Chief Alexander Dubcek. But the press continued to give top coverage to Czechoslovak developments.

The Bucharest regime withheld comment on President Johnson's statement which quoted rumors of another Soviet invasion in southeast Europe.

Government-controlled news media did not report the speech, but many Romanians heard about it from Western radio stations.

The official silence was part of the strategy of avoiding moves the Kremlin could take as provocation. In private conversations, officials welcomed Johnson's words as a sign of encouragement.

"The United States will not go to war to defend us, but surely the Russians will listen to Johnson."

Kidnap Foiling Ends Ex-Con's Get-Rich Try

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—From the wreckage of the automobile deliberately rammed by FBI agents, Robert L. Dacy screamed: "Why don't you kill me."

For Dacy, a 39-year-old ex-convict, it was the end of his grandiose get-rich-quick dream.

For the FBI it was the successful culmination of an intensive two-day manhunt designed to secure the safety of a little boy.

HAPPY ENDING

And for 4-year-old Stanley Stalford Jr., it meant returning to his loving parents who had given $250,000 to an intermediary for the return of their kidnaped child.

The crash of the FBI car into Dacy's vehicle followed a 28-block chase punctuated with gunfire through the streets of southcentral Los Angeles.

The agents found young Stanley huddled in the seat beside Dacy. Stanley, son of the president of $100 million Fidelity Bank of Beverly Hills, had a scratched cheek and a leg gash that required 13 stitches.

SENSES TRAP

Dacy had driven the boy, kidnaped Wednesday, to a meeting with an intermediary who was to hand over $250,000 in $20 bills. But as he arrived at the rendezvous, the ex-convict with a four page police record sensed he was heading into a trap.

He sped away without picking up the money, and FBI agents who had been trailing the intermediary gave chase, rammed the Dacy auto after the chase which reached speeds of 90 miles per hour, and rescued the boy.

Dacy was arraigned by Beverly Hills Municipal Judge Leonard Wolf at his bedside at Morningside Hospital. Dacy was charged with kidnaping, and kidnaping with bodily injury. The latter offense is punishable by death in California. A preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 20.

Motel Room Burglarized

Three burglaries, including one that occurred while a couple was asleep in a motel room, were reported by San Rafael police yesterday.

A woman's jacket worth $15 and two purses containing a total of $10 were taken from a room at Bermuda Palms Motel, 737 Francisco Boulevard, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Allan Wells of Kent, Wash., between 1 a.m. and 9 a.m. yesterday, police said.

A tool chest containing diesel engine tools was taken from the unlocked garage in the home of Nancy J. Crow, 470 Cedar Hill Drive, between 11 p.m. Wednesday and 9 a.m. yesterday.

A lamp was taken by a thief who forced open the garage door of an unoccupied home at 465 Cedar Hill Drive, between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 6 a.m. Thursday. The home is owned by American Housing Guild, Inc.

Silverthorne Wins Case Delay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A continuance to Oct. 17 was granted yesterday to Don Silverthorne for setting a date a new trial in Superior Court.

He is charged with withdrawing $25,000 shortly before the closure of his San Francisco National Bank.

Last week Silverthorne, 68, who now lives in Tiburon, won a reversal in the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals of his conviction on charges of misapplication of the bank's funds.

Employees Back; Ratify Contract

MARTINEZ (AP) — Contra Costa County employees were back at work today after ratifying a settlement of ther nine-day strike yesterday.

Supervisor Edmund Linscheid said the agreement hammered out in negotiations beginning Tuesday provides a 2 and one-half per cent wage increase for employees earning $530 a month or less.

Before the strike the board of supervisors had voted a 5 per cent increase to which the other boost will be added. The employees had demanded $50 across-the-board salary increase.

Retardation Services Talk

A request that all responsibility for planning, coordinating and continuing services to the mentally retarded in Marin be assigned to the Community Mental Health Services will be made to the board of supervisors on Sept. 10.

Dr. Gerald Hill, chairman of the mental health advisory board, said that request was drafted at the board's Wednesday night meeting.

Hill said that retardation is presently the partial responsibility of a number of local agencies, with no particular group in charge.

The advisory board also resolved that a preliminary application for state funds be made by the Oct. 1 deadline.

Saddles Stolen From Tack Room

Two burglaries were reported by Marin sheriff's officers yesterday.

Someone broke into the tack room at Novato Boarding and Training Stables Tuesday night and stole two saddles and four bridles, officers said.

Thieves crept into John R. Hodge's open garage at 751 Appleberry Lane, Marinwood, Wednesday and stole wine and soft drinks, deputies said.

Self-Sufficient, Private City By The Sea

Majestic Mount Tamalpais stands a silent guard over San Quentin Prison, a sprawling bayside complex that currently houses more than 3,700 inmates. The fortress-like structure at center, typical of the solid prison architecture popular in the late 19th Century when it was built, is the main pedestrian entrance to the security area. Immediately behind it are the chapel, adjustment center and old industrial building which now includes classrooms and a gym. Four cell blocks, the long, stark buildings at left, surround the prison's dining hall and kitchen. The south block, once the biggest in the world and still larger than some prisons, can house up to 2,000 men. On the extreme south tip of the point is the hospital, known as the "hen house" until women prisoners were removed from San Quentin in the 1930s. Prison factories and shops are concentrated in the large, low buildings at upper right. Included are furniture, and clothing factories, shoe, print, auto body and fender shops and a cotton textile mill. Just across the arm of the bay, though an ocean away in reality, are Greenbrae (right) and Corte Madera. (Photo by Burt Levenhagen of Aero Photographers, Inc., Sausalito)

Churches' Privileged Tax Status Under Fire

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. International

One of America's wealthiest property holders is getting a free tax ride, and some people wonder if it's fair, right and proper.

The freeloader is organized religion.

U.S. churches and synagogues own about $80 billion worth of real estate and $20 billion worth of stocks and bonds. Their total wealth exceeds the combined assets of the nation's 10 largest industrial corporations.

Along with many other types of non-profit institutions, including hospitals, colleges, social welfare agencies, fraternal organizations and scientific societies, churches enjoy special benefits under the tax laws.

The most important is that the government encourages voluntary contributions to such organizations by making them deductible from the contributor's income tax. This has proved to be a very significant stimulus to philanthropy.

Organizations eligible for tax-deductible contributions do not have to pay income taxes on any revenues derived from their regular activities. But most of them do have to pay taxes on "unrelated business income"—that is, revenue earned from the publication of a magazine or operation of a business which is not directly related to the organization's primary purpose.

Churches, however, do not even have to pay taxes on "unrelated business income." Thanks to a loophole which Congress wrote into the tax laws in 1950, religious organizations can and do own all kinds of business enterprises, ranging from a baseball stadium to a chain of hamburger stands, whose profits are entirely tax exempt.

Income tax exemptions are important at the federal and state levels. On the local level, churches—along with private schools, hospitals and most other non-profit civic activities—are exempt in most communities from property taxes.

The constitutionality of the property tax exemption was challenged in the Maryland courts in 1966 by militant atheist Madelyn Murray. The state's highest court rejected her claim that it violates church-state separation for religious bodies to be free of taxes on their real estate. The U.S. Supreme Court refused to review this ruling.

But Alfred Balk points out in his new book, "The Religion Business" (John Knox Press), that property tax exemptions for churches and other non-profit institutions raise serious questions of public policy, even if there is no constitutional problem.

"Three decades ago," says Balk, "only about 12 per cent of the real estate in the United States was tax exempt. Today, the figure has risen to 30 per cent, with values of more than $325 billion."

Some states and communities already are tightening up on exemptions, Balk reports. Tennessee now limits churches to one tax-free parsonage for each congregation. Harrisburg, Pa., has begun imposing taxes on church-owned parking lots. Nearly a dozen Colorado cities collect "partial taxes" from churches to cover the cost of fire, police, water, sanitation and other essential community services. Similar legislation is under consideration in several other states and dozens of cities.

The attitude of many religious bodies toward this problem is to ignore it and hope it will go away. But some voices within the religious community are speaking up to encourage a re-examination of the churches' privileged tax status.

The American Lutheran Church declared recently that it is "sound public policy" to levy upon churches "nondiscriminatory charges for municipal services such as water, sewage, police and fire protection."

A study commission of the United Methodist Church urged all religious bodies to consider their "responsibility to make appropriate contributions in lieu of taxes for essential services provided by government."

There also is growing support in the religious community for repealing the tax exemption for "unrelated business income." "On the face of it," says the Catholic magazine America, "no exempt organization should be allowed to operate an unrelated business tax-free." A report prepared for the National Conference of Christians and Jews points out that church-owned, tax-exempt business enterprise enjoys a grossly unfair advantage over tax-paying private firms with which it may compete.

THE EMPTY PEWS

Ministers Meet Summer Problems

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunday schedules are different in summer. In the season when the outdoors beckons, when the call comes from beaches, golf courses and travel, the church congregations shrink. Pews go empty. Many members don't show up.

Sermons are shortened. Visiting ministers sub for the vacationing pastor. Classes are thinned or suspended. Other activities are curtailed. The church spirit seems to sag.

While many churchmen deplore this annual Sunday letdown, a few congregations have recognized it as a weekend inevitability and changed their time of worship accordingly until the period ends.

THURSDAY RITES

They moved services to Thursday night instead of Sunday for the summer. One church which took this step was the Excelsior, Minn., United Church of Christ.

Its pastor, Rev. Paul Flucke, says: "If Christian freedom means anything, surely it means we can worship the risen Christ on any day of the week."

The denomination's periodical, the United Church Herald, said that several other congregations followed suit and changed services to Thursday night for the summer period.

It noted that four churches in Belleville, Ill., joined in holding weekly Thursday night worship services, along with church school classes and family recreation, at Hope United Church there.

Other recent items about stimulating religious operations:

BEST PROP

"My best evangelism prop is the swimming pool," says Rev. J. Eric Gustavson, pastor of the Village Church in Milwaukee, Wis., a special ministery sponsored by the Lutheran Church of America in a complex of high-rise apartments.

He says the aim is to communicate the Gospel to apartment dwellers by association with them "at the swimming pool, in the lounges, shopping center parties—wherever the residents gather."

The Village Church uses various new forms of evangelism, including drama, guitar concerts, experimental worship forms, art exhibits, motion picture festivals, open dialogue and a student coffee house. A chapel is situated in the shopping center.

In Raleigh, N.C., Rev. William B. Kennedy, an official of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A. (Southern), said Sunday schools as now organized might well be abolished.

CITES CHANGE

"Perhaps Sunday school would accomplish more and interest more people if it were not limited to Sunday morning 52 times a year," he said. "Some people who won't get involved with Sunday school every Sunday would be quite interested in a specific short course on a specific topic."

He suggested that scheduled, concentrated courses, such as on a weekend retreat, with 36 hours spent together in intensive Christian study, could provide "the equivalent of a whole year's Sunday school study."

A Wisconsin minister Rev. Thomas C. Lembcke, has called for a radical shakeup of Christian education to provide both for hiring Sunday school teachers instead of relying on volunteers and for charging tuition.

This would increase both the quality and effectiveness of Christian teaching, he writes in the Methodist magazine, the Christian Advocate.

As for parents who wouldn't want to pay for religious school, he says their interest is so lukewarm anyhow that they now don't bother to insist that their children attend classes regularly and don't care what they learn.

"Those who don't care won't register," he says.

Greenwich Village Church Also Used As Off-Broadway Theater

By WILLIAM VERIGAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Al Carmines, a shaggy haired preacher who is as comfortable on a stage as he is in the pulpit, has turned the loft of a Greenwich Village church into a dynamic force in the off-Broadway theater.

The drawling young Methodist minister, whose father was a Virginia fisherman, has a full-time job as associate minister of the Judson Memorial Church, but he still finds time to act every night in a show called "In Circles," a musical he also composed.

Since 1961, the Judson Poets Theater has produced 75 plays, several of them so successful that they were taken out of the church loft and produced in off-Broadway theaters. "In Circles", a sprightly, friendly musical that charmed the critics and captivated sell-out audiences, was moved to the Gramercy Arts Theatre after its success at the Judson, and Carmines will take the show to England in the fall.

"Of course it's nice to move to an off-Broadway theater because the actors get paid," said Carmines, who teaches religion at New York University and drama for the New York Earlham College Seminar.

NO ADMISSION

"I don't believe in charging any admission at the Judson, and the contributions average about 37 cents a person, which isn't enough to split among the actors. But I'd never structure our program at the Judson just so we could move off-Broadway. That would be disastrous. We just have to do what we feel is artistically right and creative and experimental."

The Judson Poets Theatre, just part of the church's arts program along with a dance theater and art gallery, has received 11 Obie awards for off-Broadway excellence and was given an achievement award by New York state for its work in the arts.

"In Circles" is the second play composed by Carmines to win an Obie as the season's best musical. He also got an Obie for best musical in 1964 with "What Happened", and his plays "Home Movies" and "Gorilla Queen" also had long-running success. He recently received the New York Drama Desk Vernon Rice Award for "outstanding contribution to off-Broadway."

"I see the church in a community role, fulfilling the needs of the community in addition to having religious services. One of the needs of the 1950s and '60s was a place for playwrights to have their plays performed.

AIDED WRITERS

"A lot of playwrights couldn't get commercial productions of their work because producers weren't willing to take the chance. The church offered them an opportunity to see their plays on the stage and provided a place where people can see theater for free. Lots of people who come to the Judson rally can't afford to pay Broadway or off-Broadway prices."

Carmines has avoided using the theater as a "propaganda center" for religion, and some of the plays at the Judson might be a little shocking to less progressive clergymen.

"The theater and worship are very closely connected," he said. "They're both rituals by which people express the meaning of their lives. But the Judson shouldn't become a propaganda center because then it becomes decadent and loses its artistic value."

Seminary Professor Named Interim Minister Of Church

Rev. John D. Furnas, a member of the San Francisco Theological Seminary faculty since 1959, has been named interim pastor of the Novato Presbyterian Church.

He fills the vacancy left by Rev. C. M. Croughan, who resigned to re-enter the engineering profession.

Reverend Furnas, who holds a doctorate in theology, is professor of field education at the seminary. He also has held the professorship of Biblical literature and Greek at Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Ore., and at one time was field director of the Oregon Synod.

Former positions also include minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Moscow, Idaho and university pastor at the University of California in Berkeley.

Before assuming his duties at the San Anselmo seminary, he was pastor of the Community Presbyterian Church in Davis.

Raiders Slight Favorites In Big Game Tomorrow

A Sellout Assured At Kezar

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —It's been 10 years since Kezar Stadium has been filled for a pro game, but there will be 59,000 fans in the old ballyard tomorrow when the Oakland Raiders come across the Bay to do battle with the San Francisco 49ers.

It will mark the second meeting ever between the two Bay Area rivals and already the contest has wrapped itself in traditional robes, mostly because of the bitter rivalry that exists between the two cities.

The Raiders, who lost 13-10 to the 49ers in the Oakland Coliseum in the first match a year ago, are 2½ point favorites over the 49ers this time, mostly because they are the defending American Football League champs while the Niners are rated no better than middle-of-the-packers in the National Football League.

Because victory is so important in this traditional battle, both coaches —John Rauch of the Raiders and Dick Nolan of the 49ers — will go with their veteran players for the most part.

Logic would indicate, since it is an exhibition, that the coaches give the newer and younger players a chance so they can gain game experience for the tough season ahead, but logic goes out the window when the rivals are Oakland and San Francisco.

MIRA MAY START

Scrambling George Mira, battling veteran John Brodie for the starting quarterback berth, probably will open at quarterback for the Niners. Daryle Lamonica, the 1967 AFL player of the year, will start at the Oakland helm.

John David Crow and Ken Willard, San Francisco's top two runners, will be in the starting offensive backfield with Mira, while Hewritt Dixon and either Clem Daniels or Pete Banaszak will open with Lamonica.

The 49ers, absorbing new offensive and defensive patterns, rewarded Nolan, who is starting his first year in San Francisco, with a 22-6 victory over the AFL Denver Broncs last week while the Raiders, who have yet to beat an NFL team in three tries, lost to the Kansas City Chiefs of their own league, 31-21.

INTRICATE OFFENSE

Last week's victory, although marred by mistakes, gave Nolan a lot of encouragement. He said he thought the players were starting to gain the timing necessary to make his intricate offense work.

Ready for full scale action tomorrow after a couple of weeks of intermittent action are receivers Dick Witcher and Sonny Randle. With Kay McFarland, they represent Mira and Brodie's chief targets.

Forty Niner starters offensive tackle Len Rohde, defensive back Alvin Randolph and defensive tackle Charlie Krueger also probably won't start because of injuries but all can play if needed.

Oakland is in good shape except for defensive tackle Tom Keating, sitting out the exhibition season while his knee heals from surgery.

Oakland's primary passing targets are Billy Cannon, Warren Wells and Fred Biletnikoff.

Both clubs are in fairly good physical shape for the game, which will get underway at 1 p.m.

Angel Home Runs Ruin Oakland A's

ANAHEIM, (UPI) — Jim Fregosi, the California Angels' standout shortstop and a player noted for his memory, thought for a moment and then shook his head.

"No, I can't remember it happening in this park before," he said.

The question he replied to was whether he remembered two home runs being hit on consecutive pitches in spacious Anaheim Stadium before last night.

Bobby Knoop and Tom Satriano, two guys who aren't noted for their power, performed the feat in a 5-3 Angels' victory over the Oakland Athletics.

"I certainly can't remember it happening before here and if Fregosi can't remember it, I guess it didn't happen," Angel manager Bill Rigney remarked.

Knoop's third home run of the season into the left field stands and Satriano's seventh homer over the right field wall chased Oakland starter Jim "Catfish" Hunter from the mound and gave the Angels a 4-1 lead with none out in the second inning.

HIT FASTBALLS

"I hit a fastball and so did Bobby," Satriano offered after the fifth California win in 16 games with the A's in 1968.

"Hunter has the kind of a fastball that moves around a lot," the former University of Southern California athlete continued. "He's the kind of a pitcher who can stand out there all night and challenge you with his fastball because it's so live.

"But some nights a pitcher doesn't have it. I guess it was one of those nights for him."

Jim McGlothlin went the first seven innings to receive credit for his 10th win against 12 losses. Andy Messersmith pitched two hitless innings of relief.

"We did a good job tonight," Rigney declared. "I was impressed with both our pitching and hitting."

DUNCAN HOMERS

Rigney, who hasn't been impressed too many times by his eighth-place club this year, removed McGlothlin after a seventh inning in which Dave Duncan homered over the right field fence with John Donaldson aboard on an error. It was Duncan's seventh four-bagger of the season.

"They (the A's) were hitting the ball pretty well after the homer so I decided to take Jim out after the inning was over," the veteran skipper explained.

Hunter, who pitched a perfect game against Minnesota this season, was tagged with the loss to make his record 11-12.

Oakland manager Bob Kennedy used 18 players including four relievers in a bid to beat California but the damage was done by the time he removed Hunter.

Shollander Shows Gold Medal Form

By JACK STEVENSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Schollander, the swimming hero of the 1964 Olympics, could do it again in 1968.

Three world records fell last night in as many events of the U.S. Men's Olympic trials, and the blond Yale senior had one of them.

The winner of four gold medals at Tokyo lowered his record of 1 minute, 55.7 seconds in the 200-meter freestyle to 1:54.8 in the preliminaries and to 1:54.3 in winning the final.

Other world marks on the first program of the five-night meet were by Mark Spitz of Santa Clara, with 55.6 in the 100-meter butterfly and Charles Hickox of Phoenix, Ariz., and Indiana University with 4:39.0 in the 400-meter individual medley at the Belmont Plaza pool.

"I'm very definitely stronger," said Schollander in comparing this campaign with 1964. "I hope I'm a little smarter and a better swimmer all the way around. If I'm not, there's something wrong."

FOUR EVENTS

Schollander swims the 100-meter freestyle on Monday and also probably will win spots on both the 400 and 800-meter relay teams, so could have a chance for another four gold medals in the Olympics at Mexico City this October.

Also qualifying in the 200 were John Nelson, from Pompano Beach, Fla., a Yale teammate of Schollander's, and Stephen Rerych of Paterson, N.J. They were timed in 1:56.64 and 1:57.33 respectively but after 50 meters weren't serious threats to the winner.

The 100-butterfly was something else. Doug Russell, 22, of Arlington, Tex., posted the fastest preliminary time of 55.99 while Splitz, 18, clocked 56.43. Russell led the final until the final 20-meters when Spitz surged ahead to lower his own world record of 55.7 by a tenth of a second.

EXTRA STROKE

Russell, needing an extra stroke, finished second in 56.1 with Princeton's Ross Wales third at 57.7 to repeat as an Olympian.

Hickox led the 400 individual medley—butterfly, backstroke, breastroke and freestyle, all the way but was continually challenged by Greg Buckingham of Santa Clara, Calif., and Gary Hall, a 17-year-old from Long Beach.

Earlier in the year both Buckingham and Hall had bettered the official world record of 4:45.4 set by Dick Roth of Atherton, in 1964. This time Buckingham finished second in 4:40.25 and Hall qualified for the team at the third place with 4:40.63.

On today's program are the 400-meter freestyle, the 100 breaststroke and the 200 individual medley where the Hickcox, Buckingham, Hall trio is expected to duel again.

Schollander has a theory to explain the record breaking.

"Since 1964, training techniques are going way up. We used to swim 8,000 meters a day, now everybody is doing 10,000 (more than six miles) to 12,000. So everybody is in better condition."

According to earliest records, polo was first played in Persia.

Five Errors Help Dodgers Turn Back The Giants, 5-4

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants may not catch the St. Louis Cardinals in the pennant race unless they take advantage of breaks.

The Giants went into last night's game with the last-place Los Angeles Dodgers knowing they could gain ground on the Cardinals by winning. The Cards had already lost to the New York Mets.

So what did the Giants do? They made five errors and lost 5-4 to the Dodgers.

The defeat leaves the Giants 13 games behind St. Louis, and now there are only 28 games left to play.

It took a remarkable pitching job by relief man Jim Brewer to win for Los Angeles. Brewer struck out Willie Mays with the tying and winning runs on base in the ninth inning to end the game.

"There are lots of other batters I would rather pitch to in that situation," Brewer said. He struck out Mays with a screw ball, a pitch that breaks away from a right-handed batter.

UNEARNED RUNS

The five errors by the Giants bring their total in the last two games to nine. The miscues last night accounted for two unearned runs for Los Angeles in the ninth inning, and that proved to be the margin.

Ron Hunt and rookie outfielder Bobby Bonds each made two errors, and Willie McCovey the other. Bonds' errors had no bearing on the game.

The errors by Hunt and McCovey in the ninth did hurt. Losing pitcher Gaylord Perry, 13-12, got the first out in the ninth and then gave up a single. Winning pitcher Claude Osteen, 9-17, sacrificed for the second out.

Willie Crawford grounded to Hunt, whose wild throw pulled McCovey off the bag on the play that should have been the third out.

Willie Davis then singled to score one run and Tom Haller also singled. McCovey tried for a play at the plate on Haller's single and threw wildly; and another run scored.

The Giants scored two runs in the last of the ninth before Brewer fanned Mays.

Scheduled starters today were Mike McCormick, 9-13, for San Francisco, and Don Sutton, 6-13, for Los Angeles.

Murphy Confident In T'Bird Tourney

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Bob Murphy spent the month of August making almost $42,000 and looks like he'll start September the same way. He's so confident, he sent his wife out to buy some new clothes.

"I have to do well here," he said after his four-under-par 68 gave him a two-stroke lead over 12 others in the first round of the $150,000 Thunderbird Classic yesterday. "My wife just went into town for some new clothes to go to England."

The 25-year-old Murphy, who joined the tour in January, had won only $23,000 entering August.

"I'm just playing as well as I can play," the freckle-face former U.S. Amateur champion said. "I feel so comfortable over the ball and I feel awfully strong."

CREDITS GALLERIES

Murphy, who was born in Brooklyn but moved to Florida when he was 6 months old, credited the galleries in the New York area with giving him a big lift.

"What can I say, they've just been great," he said. "They won't give up. They're in there all the way."

Included in the pack at 70 was Gary Player, participating in his first competitive round since winning the British Open six weeks ago.

"I'm extremely happy to have shot a 70," said Player, who bogeyed the 15th and 16th holes after being four under. "I've only played nine rounds of golf in the six weeks."

Also in at 70 were rookie pro Jerry Abbott, Billy Casper, Bruce Crampton, Steve Reid, Lou Graham, Homero Blancas, Lee Elder, Dudley Wysong, Bert Weaver, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Mason Rudolph.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer was tied with 10 others at 71 and pre-tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus was one of 18 players at 73.

Nicklaus, playing his fifth tournament in a row, said he was tired.

"I figured three consecutive tournaments is about as long as I can keep my concentration," he said. "You wear a hole in your thinking cap. After this week I'm going fishing."

Murphy's round included five birdies and only one bogey.

Pele Wows Record Crowd In Oakland Soccer Tilt

OAKLAND (AP)—The largest crowd in Northern California soccer history watched as Pele, often acclaimed as the world's greatest player, scored two goals in leading Santos of Brazil to a 3-1 victory over the Oakland Clippers last night.

The Oakland Coliseum attracted 29,161 paying fans for the exhibition event.

They rose and yelled tributes a number of times as Pele led the assault that kicked and shouldered their favorites into defeat.

Santos' other score was booted by Mauro.

MARIN SCORERS

The Clippers' lone tally was kicked by Edgar Marin from Costa Rica, one of Oakland's host of foreign imports.

Pele said after the game that the Clippers, main contenders for a Pacific Coast championship in regular league play, were the best of seven American teams Santos had met.

The game was the second for the Brazilians in a current three-game American tour. Wednesday night, they beat the Atlanta Chiefs 6-2 and Sunday they will be in New York's Yankee Stadium playing Benfica of Portugal, recognized as another of the world's best soccer teams.

Pro Leagues May Add Two Teams

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Pete Rozelle, commissioner of professional football, indicated last night the American and National Football Leagues might add two more teams, possibly in 1970.

The NFL had 16 teams and the AFL 10.

Rozelle, at an impromptu news conference before the start of the Cleveland NFL-Buffalo (AFL) exhibition game here, did not say whether the two additional teams would be added to the NFL or the AFL.

He said that to add more teams it would be necessary to work out a schedule that would be most acceptable to interleague play.

"Maybe 1970 would be too soon to expand," Rozelle said, "but if it is we'll expand shortly thereafter. We should know by November."

Sticking To Hockey

DENVER (AP) — After skating through the winter season without injury, Jim Wiste, University of Denver hockey player, showed up at a sports award dinner with his face bandaged. He was smacked in the nose by the ball during a friendly softball game.

49ers Release Three Players, Activate One

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco 49ers waived three players yesterday.

They activated one, Leo Johnson, a wide receiver from Tennessee A&I who has been on military reserve duty.

They waived Bill Belk, defensive end from Maryland State; Dennis Patera, place kicker from Brigham Young, and Don Street, a free agent from Mississippi.

Belk and Johnson were sixth round draft choices; Patera 17th round.

Czech Team To Compete In Games

PRAGUE (AP) — The first contingent of the Czechoslovak Olympic team will leave for Mexico City Sept. 19, it was announced today.

There was no word on how the athletes would leave Prague. All international flights were discontinued since the Aug. 21 invasion by Soviet-led Warsaw Pact troops, and the airlines have received no date when flights will be permitted to resume.

Inside the country the Bulgarian-Czechoslovak soccer game and the Hungarian-Czechoslovak track meet were canceled.

There was no explanation whether the events were canceled due to lack of transportation facilities or whether they were the result of a possible Czechoslovak decision to boycott the sports organizations of the five occupation countries.

Prison Team Gets Freedom

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A Boise softball league team which was limited to home games the past 20 years is now allowed to go on the road.

The team is the Penitentiary Outlaws, composed of State Prison convicts.

Some team members had been apprehensive about the new freedom.

"At first, I was filled with tension about how the crowd would react to us," one said. "After my first time at bat, and I heard the cheers of the fans, all my fears vanished."

Warden Orvil E. Stiles said that by playing outside the prison, the prisoners are presenting themselves to society as people who, if given the opportunity, can play an important role in society by fitting into it rather than rebelling against it.

A Winning Goalie

DENVER (AP) — In three seasons as goalie on the University of Denver soccer team, George Krog made 127 saves and allowed only 11 goals. Denver has a 23-2 record over that period.

Spurs Hike Soccer Lead

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Spurs have tightened their hold on first place in the Gulf Division of the North American Soccer League.

Manfred Rummel's first half goal gave the Spurs a 1-0 victory over the St. Louis Stars, their closest pursuer, in a vital game on the St. Louis pitch last night. The victory gave the Spurs seven points and increased their lead over the Stars to 12 points.

Chicago defeated San Diego 2-1 and Vancouver blanked Dallas 3-0 in other games.

A second half goal by John Kowalick, the league's leading scorer, provided the margin by which the Mustangs edged San Diego in Chicago.

Cheung Chi Wai's goal at 39:22 of the first half was the only one Vancouver needed as the Royals scored over Dallas on the road. It was the 13th shutout of the season for Dallas, winner of only two games.

It's Another Big Upset For Bengals

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

The fledgling Cincinnati Bengals, hoping to gain ground in a hurry on their established rivals, are speeding the exhibition season keeping people from gaining much ground on them.

Paul Brown's wunderkinds, who shocked the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League a week ago, kept the embarrassment in the family last night and knocked off their American League colleagues, the New York Jets, 13-9. They held the Steelers to 29 yards on the ground and the Jets to 42.

A crowd of 24,358 at Memphis, Tenn., roared its approval of two former University of Tennessee stars—quarterback Dewey Warren and center Bob Johnson, a pair of rookies. Warren guided the Bengals 70 yards in the closing minutes to the winning touchdown with Johnson opening the holes up front.

Elsewhere, Cleveland of the NFL rallied for 12 points in the final period and downed Buffalo of the AFL 22-12 in a renewal of an old All-America Conference Lake Erie rivalry. It was the 16th inter-league game and trimmed the AFL's lead to 10-6.

SAN DIEGO WINS

Dennis Partee, a rookie from Southern Methodist, booted field goals of 13 and 30 yards to give San Diego a 6-3 triumph over Denver in an all-AFL battle.

Eight more games are on tap over the Labor Day weekend. Tonight, Baltimore (NFL) is at Miami (AFL), Dallas (NFL) at Houston (AFL) and Kansas City (AFL) at Los Angeles (NFL) in inter-league scraps. NFL matches find New Orleans at Atlanta and Pittsburgh vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Wis.

Tomorrow it's Oakland AFL at San Francisco (NFL) in an afternoon game and Minnesota (NFL) at St. Louis (NFL) in the first nationally televised Sunday night contest CBS-TV, 6 p.m., (PDT). The weekend winds up Monday with a game between Boston (AFL) and Philadelphia (NFL) at Cambridge, Mass.

The Bengals, 2-3, won the game with 1:57 remaining when another Johnson—Essex of Grambling, climaxed the 70-yard march with a one-yard touchdown plunge and Dale Livingston converted. After Jets' quarterback Babe Parilli fumbled on the first play following the ensuing kickoff, Livingston wound up the scoring with a 15-yard field goal.

Joe Namath played three quarters for the Jets, 2-2, completing 12 of 25 passes for 188 yards.

ROOKIE TANDEM

Running backs Leroy Kelly and Charley Harraway ripped the Bills, 2-2-1, apart in the fourth period before a throng of 45,448 in Buffalo. But it was Buffalo's rookie tandem of quarterback Dan Darragh and halfback Max Anderson who stole the show from the Browns, 3-1.

Darragh, a 13th-round draft choice from William & Mary, got his chance when Jack Kemp, the Bills' regular signal-caller, was racked up in a scrimmage and sidelined for the season with a knee injury. The cool rookie completed 15 of 33 tosses for 185 yards and Blanton Collier, the Browns' coach, went over to shake his hand at the final gun.

"He did a fine job, he has a strong arm and wonderful poise," said Collier.

"I wasn't completely satisfied," said Darragh, "but it was a great break playing as long as I did. It really was a chance of a lifetime."

Anderson, a stumpy 5-foot-8 from Arizona State, carried 23 times for 103 yards.

"I had a complex when I as in high school," he said. "I was only 5-5. But now my height doesn't bother me a bit. I've got to use my head when I'm running. I can't use power."

San Diego's Partee sent his game-winning 30-yard field goal through the uprights with only 18 seconds left to end the spirited defensive struggle before 10,328 at San Antonio, Tex. The Chargers are 3-2, Denver 1-3.

"The kid really came through in the clutch," said Coach Sid Gillman. "He's now 5-for-5 as a pro. You can't do any better."

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Seaver And Mets Top Cards Again

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tom Seaver, ace of the precocious New York Met pitching staff, moves to the back of the class today. He gave the St. Louis Cardinals two runs.

Seaver pitched seven perfect innings against St. Louis last night, extending to 25 the string of zeroes dealt the Cards by Met pitchers this week.

Then he blew up and surrendered three hits and two runs for an 8-2 victory. That almost won't do for the Mets, who became accustomed to shutting out the Cards when Jim McAndrew and Dick Selma produced consecutive blanks earlier this week.

Elsewhere in the National League yesterday, Chicago dropped Houston 5-3, Philadelphia took Cincinnati 7-4, Atlanta shut out Pittsburgh 2-0 and Los Angeles shaded San Francisco 5-4.

CEPEDA DOUBLES

Seaver, 13-9, retired 21 consecutive batters before Orlando Cepeda broke the spell by dropping a leadoff double to right field opening the eighth inning. Mike Shannon's run-scoring double and Lou Brock's ninth inning single were the only other hits off Seaver.

Meanwhile, the Mets had built a wide bulge against loser Nelson Briles with a six-run fifth inning, climaxed by Art Shamsky's grand slam home run.

Shamsky unloaded after two errors and a pair of singles by Jerry Grote and Bud Harrelson had given New York two runs. It was the ninth homer of the year and first grand slam of his career for Shamsky.

Ron Santo drove in all five Chicago runs with a pair of home runs as Ferguson Jenkins, beat Houston for his 16th victory.

Santo, who has 22 homers for the year, connected with two on in the fourth and again with one man on in the sixth.

Denis Menke homered for Houston—one of 10 hits Jenkins gave up.

PHILS WIN

Doug Clemens rapped a three-run homer and Philadelphia halted a five-game losing streak by beating the Reds.

Clemens' shot—his first home run of the year—keyed a four-run Phillie rally in the sixth inning that opened a 7-0 lead. Chris Short won his 14th but had to leave after five innings when he wrenched his knee making a putout at first base.

Milt Pappas allowed four hits in eight innings before an injury forced him out of the game but Claude Raymond preserved Atlanta's shutout against Pittsburgh.

Pappas pulled a muscle in his back making a throw in the eighth inning and Raymond pitched the ninth. Felipe Alou and Felix Millan drove in the Braves' runs with singles in the fifth inning.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Braves and third straight shutout loss for the Pirates.

San Jose State Gridder Injured

SAN JOSE (AP) — Defensive halfback Bruce Rosenberg was knocked out for a month yesterday in the San Jose Spartans' first football drill.

The 6-5, 200-pound junior from San Francisco suffered a shoulder separation. He sat out most of last season because of injuries.

Coach Harry Anderson said 60 players turned out, including four from last year's freshman team among 40 varsity newcomers. He has 20 lettermen.

A Costly Punch

FOUNTAIN, Colo. (AP) — Bettors collected on show tickets on a horse that ran out of the money in a quarter horse event at Pikes Peak Turf Club, No. 9 finished third, but a state steward operating the tote board punched No. 7 instead. So the track redeemed show tickets on both horses. The error cost the track $129.60.

Schollander To Quit This Year

LONG BEACH (AP) — Swimming star Don Schollander, winner of four Olympic gold medals in 1964 and qualified for this year's games already with a world record setting performance, said last night he would definitely retire from competition this year.

"After October, I probably won't even take a shower or a bath for a couple of months," the 22-year-old quipped.

Schollander will complete his competitive swimming at the Olympics in Mexico City during October.

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia's basketball team, defending Ivy League champion, will play in the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu next December.

Jittery J.C. Student Has Lead In U.S. Amateur Golf

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bruce Fleisher overcame a bad case of jitters and now has a crack at winning the coveted U.S. Amateur golf championship in his first try.

The 19-year-old junior college student from Hialeah, Fla., carried a two-stroke advantage into today's final 18-hole round of the 68th National Amatuer.

He started poorly yesterday but picked up momentum at the finish for a one-over-par 71 that gave him a 54-hole total of 214. That was four strokes over par on the par 70, 6,762-yard Scioto Country Club course that has had most of the players in the 62-man field talking to themselves.

"I was nervous at the beginning," the crewcut Fleisher confided. "It was the largest gallery I'd ever played before. I was scared and felt the pressure.

Fleisher, who shared the halfway lead with Hubie Green of Birmingham, Ala., played with Green in the last twosome of the round.

The 21-year-old Green was Fleisher's closest pursuer after firing a 73 for a 216.

The tense Fleisher double-bogeyed the second hole when he put his second shot in a bunker and needed two to get out. He seemed to settle down after that despite a bogey on No. 6, offset by a birdie on the seventh hole.

Fleisher bogeyed the short 14th when he drove into a trap and missed a four-footer. But he rallied with putts of 12 and 25 feet for birds on 15 and 16.

Three back of Fleisher was Bob Barbarossa of Osseo, Minn., one of two players in the field to shoot an even par 70. He was in at 217. A 70 helped Jack Lewis of Florence, S.C., move into fourth place at 218.

Steady Michael Bonallack, the British Amateur champ, saw his hopes for a Little Slam practically vanish when he posted five bogeys on the way to a 75. He was in a tie at 219 with John Birmingham of Pittsburgh, Pa., a 28-year-old dairyman who finally broke the ice with a 69, first sub-par round of the tourney.

Marvin Giles, a Charlottesville, Va., law student who was runner-up in the 1967 Amateur, was in seventh place after a 73 for a 220.

Oaks Set Nine Pre-Season Games On Road

OAKLAND (AP)—Coach Alex Hannum of the Oakland Oaks announced today a nine-game preseason schedule for his American Basketball Association team's second season.

All games will be on the road — three against the Indiana Pipers in Indiana cities starting Oct. 3; two against Minneapolis in Minnesota; two against the Colonels in Kentucky, and two against Los Angeles, at Reno, Nev., and San Luis Obispo, Calif.

The Oaks open their regular season against Indiana in Indianapolis Oct. 18.

They will open fall training at Hayward State Sept. 15 with 25 candidates expected.

A Winner Retires

DENVER (AP) — Al Oviatt, with the best winning basketball record among Denver high school coaches, has retired from coaching at 55 to devote his time to teaching. In 15 seasons his Manual High teams won six city championships and tied for two others as well as winning two state titles.

Wilson And Tigers Jolt Oriole Hopes

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit's Earl Wilson, who lost his pitching edge by leading with his chin, has found it again by swinging his bat.

Wilson hurled a four-hitter and drove in four runs with a homer and single as the American League leading Tigers shook Baltimore's pennant hopes last night by jolting the second place Orioles 9-1 in the opener of a three-game show-down series.

The loss, third in a row for the Orioles, dropped them seven games off the pace. They were only four out last Tuesday.

The home run was the fifth of the season for Wilson, who won 22 games for Detroit last season but has been sidetracked this year by five line drives he couldn't dodge. Three of them resulted in shoulder, knee and heel injuries that knocked him out of the starting rotation.

"My health hasn't been good, but I've been pitching well," said the strapping right-hander, whose second triumph in five days brought his over-all record to 12-11. "The injuries have hurt me just enough so I don't have that little extra on the ball . . . the fine edge."

Wilson, who stopped Detroit's four-game losing streak last Tuesday with a 3-0 six-hit triumph over the White Sox—and drove in two of the Tigers' runs to boot—crashed a three-run homer in the third inning and punched a run-scoring single in the fifth to cap a five-run wrap-up burst.

His 31 career homers are eight less than the all-time mark for pitchers, held by former Cleveland right-hander Wes Farrell.

"They pay me to pitch," said the 6-foot-4 right-hander. "This is the first time I've had this much of a lead this year."

A crowd of 53,575—largest to see a game in Tiger Stadium since 1961—watched Wilson ret

Old Pancho Livens Up U.S. Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. Open tennis championships, which have been playing to yawning, empty seats, get a shot in the arm today—Pancho takes the stage.

Pancho Gonzales is now 40. His hair is getting gray around the edges, his step is a half-second slower and his marvelous reflexes have dulled considerably.

But he still serves at 113 miles an hour and sends electric impulses through tennis galleries.

Returning to the center court at West Side, where he won the last of his two National crowns in 1949, the tall, copper-skinned Mexican-American makes his debut in the Open against Colin Stubbs of Australia.

It's a second-round match, both having drawn first-round byes.

Gonzales has mellowed considerably over the years—he is quite unlikely to climb into the stands and slug a jeering spectator—but he remains the people's choice.

The third day's program also features appearances by left-handed Tony Roche of Australia, No. 2 seed and runner-up to Rod Laver at Wimbledon; Tom Okker, the Dutchman who knocked over the pros at Bournemouth, England, in the spring, and Bob Lutz of Los Angeles, runner-up Sunday to Arthur Ashe in the U.S. amateur championships at Brookline, Mass.

OLDSTERS SHINE

If Gonzales fears that age may militate against him in his debut, he should find some comfort from another pair of old U.S. Davis Cuppers who came through admirably yesterday.

Vic Seixas, celebrating his 45th birthday, won over Tom Gomran of Seattle, Wash., 8-6, 6-4, 6-3. Chuck McKinley, 1963 Wimbledon champion, took a back-breaker from Bill Tym of Peoria, Ill., 6-3, 8-6, 2-6, 3-6, 6-1. They meet in the second round.

Pro John Newcombe of Australia, 1967 U.S. winner and seeded fourth, crushed Allen Quay of South Orange, N.J., 6-1, 6-3, 6-3. Seventh-seeded Clark Graebner won a slugging match from Premjit Lall of India 6-3, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4. Marty Riessen, seeded 15th, topped young Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia 11-9, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Top-seeded Rod Laver, the Wimbledon Open champion, makes his start tomorrow against Tomas Koch, Brazilian Davis Cupper.

A former Scottish night club singer, Joyce Williams, upset seventh-seeded Mary Ann Eisel of St. Louis 5-7, 6-2, 6-4. Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones of Britain, Judy Tegart of Australia and Virginia Wade of Britain, all seeded, gained the second round, only Miss Wade being carried to three sets.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Aug. 31, the 244th day of 1968 with 122 to follow.

The moon is between the first quarter and its full phase. The morning star is Saturn. The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1866 the first major earthquake recorded in the United States killed 41 persons at Charleston , S.C.

In 1954, 68 persons were killed and property damage was estimated at $500 million as hurricane Carol lashed the New England coast.

In 1965 Argentine President Juan Peron offered to resign to end political unrest in his country. He withdrew the offer but was later ousted and forced into exile.

A thought for the day: Roman poet, Horace, said, "Force without wisdom falls on its own weight."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Using The Brain Is Best Action In Confronting Tough Opposition

The average bridge player resists his opponents. If they try to zig, he will try to zag. This is better than having no plan at all, but it isn't as good as thinking for yourself.

TAKE WITH ACE

East won the first trick with the ace of spades and returned a low trump. South won with the king of hearts and saw only that the opponents were aiming to deprive him of a spade ruff. Reacting to this threat, South took the king of spades and ruffed his last spade in dummy.

Now there was the problem of getting out of dummy. Declarer took two top clubs, on which East played the four and the ten. Expecting the clubs to break favorably, South led a third high club from dummy. West ruffed, and the two red aces then put South down one.

NEEDLESS RUFF

There was no need to ruff a spade in dummy. After taking the king of hearts, South should continue with the queen of hearts to force out the ace.

East then returns the jack of spades to South's king. Declarer draws the last missing trump and tries the clubs. If the suit happens to break favorably, South would have the rest of the tricks.

PLAYS DIAMONDS

When the clubs break badly, South ruffs a club and leads a diamond. By this time South knows that East started with ace-jack of spades, ace of hearts and jack of clubs. If East also held the ace of diamonds, he would not have passed as dealer, so South should play West for the ace of diamonds and thus make his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-no trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠—Q 10 7 4 2
♦—A 7 6 4
♣—7 3.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades.

Because of your unbalanced distribution you will probably fare better at two spades than partner woud at 1-no trump. Partner should pass two spades unless he has a good spade fit and 17 or 18 points — and even then he should bid only three spades.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

The Editor's Notebook

Public Servants Needed, Not Bureaucratic Bosses

WHEN PHIL GIBSON WAS chief justice of the California Supreme Court, he was a tireless advocate of upgrading the lowest courts of our judicial system.

His stated reasons were simple. More people come in contact with the lowest courts than with higher courts. Lower courts, therefore, exert more influence on the public attitude toward our entire judicial system than do higher courts. Lower courts need to provide the best possible examples of the administration of justice.

Chief Justice Gibson obviously had a very perceptive view of how to raise the prestige of one branch of government in the public eye.

IN THESE TIMES WHEN our institutions are under criticism, they need more than ever to have their "image" raised instead of lowered.

Certainly the "stock" of every law enforcement man in uniform went down in the eyes of every individual who witnessed the deplorable actions of Chicago police on television this week.

No wonder cries of police brutality reach audiences of believing ears in our big cities.

Public office holders decry the low regard in which politics and politicians are held. But what went on at the national party convention in Chicago this week can only have lowered the esteem in which the public holds politics and politicians.

No wonder our youth are in rebellion against our "establishment." Certainly national political party conventions are overdue for drastic reform.

THERE ARE AMONG US here in Marin a few who lived long ago under the ancient, feudal monarchies of Europe before the last of them reformed half a century ago.

What these old-timers have to say about the declining days of monarchy is in many ways uncomfortably applicable to our American situation today.

Everything was bound in red tape. They had different names for it, but they all translate to what we mean when we say red tape. They had bureaucracy. That is, they had government bureaus which did NOT serve the people but in fact made it more difficult for people to solve their own problems.

(If you want a sample of this today, talk to anyone who has had to deal with the state Lands Commission staff. There is a unit which shows no signs of ever having heard of the American idea that the government exists to serve people, not thwart their efforts to help themselves.)

What the old-timers who knew monarchy first-hand say, adds up to a government totally unresponsive to the people it governed.

In this respect, civil service today is both a curse and blessing. While it protects a government job holder from capricious firing by a politician, it also protects in government jobs those who are contemptuous of the public they are paid to serve.

IF WE ARE TO AVOID increasing disrespect for our institutions of government and increasing movement toward a destructive anarchy, we must find a way to instill in government job holders at all levels — policemen, clerks, administrators and the rest of the horde of civil service employees — a consciousness and dedication to their role as public servants.

Neither party's presidential candidate shows much sign of being able to provide leadership in this field but if our system is to overcome its ills, there must be a change in attitude of public job holders. They must dedicate themselves to serving people, not obstructing or harassing the citizenry.

—Jack Craemer

One Plank Worth Saving

In the hotly debated — and finally defeated — minority plank on Vietnam at the Democratic national convention was one paragraph which, we think, should be the pledge of every candidate, whether Republican or Democrat. It said:

"We are also resolved to have no more Vietnams. We accept as basic each nation's right to choose its political, economic and social system."

In other words, we would grant other nations the same rights we have exercised in our own.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to sponsors of the Sausalito Art Festival, which opened today and will continue through Monday at the Bank of America parking lot on Bridgeway. Although only a few years old, this festival has already become a welcome Marin Tradition.

BRICKBAT to Marin County supervisors for their continuing inaction regarding the cluttering of Richardson Bay with houseboats and other structures and its pollution through lack of sanitary facilities. The supervisors keep pretending they need some new law to correct the situation. As County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney reminded them this week, there are ample laws on the books — the question is of enforcement. This should be a job for the district attorney; the supervisors should see that he does it.

BOUQUET to Gov. Ronald Reagan for signing the public records access bill (AB 1381) which takes the "secret" stamp off most records of public agencies in California — and BOUQUETS to Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who introduced the bill, and State Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, its co-author.

THE CYNIC'S CORNER By Interlandi

"I'll admit the Democrats are messier, but they put on a better show!"

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Aug. 31, 1958

Residents of Tiburon Boulevard near Highway 101 and sheriff's deputies hunted two mountain lions reported prowling in the area.

Milk prices went up one cent in Marin to 23.5 cents per quart in stores and 24.5 cents for home delivery.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

The Money Goes Where Action Is

With Mayor Alioto's clampdown on a one per cent worktax, we Marinites all agree to leave and keep the money in Marin County. Just to show how this actually works:

Friend "A" wishes to buy a TV color set. He comes to an agreeable price with the one disagreeable point: Half cash and half in 30 days, which is considered cash. But no go and so Friend "A" picked up the set in San Francisco under the same conditions, half down and half to go.

Friend "B" needed a frame. He had chosen the particular type and the price was $6.60. The merchant wanted part of it on payment down and the rest by delivery. Friend "B", who does some painting and always needs frames (to date he has some 12 unframed pictures) considered the a frontation an insult and went to a San Francisco wholesalehouse, picks up some molding and makes his own frames:

Well, marinated merchants. The money goes where the action is. If you do not need the business, why then kill yourself trying to make a living.

Multiply above cases by 1,000 or 10,000 or 100,000 and see what is going to happen. If you don't want the business why keep a store? If you keep a store to insult your customers, how long can you do that? The money goes where the action is.

H. L. Hunt Letter Found Remarkable

The recent letter by Texas oilman Hunt, trying to explain his carpetbagging on behalf of Mr. Rafferty, the candidate so acceptable to Mr. Hunt and his oil interests is remarkable indeed, not so much for the blatant sophistry it contains, than for the fact the Mr. Hunt and possibly Mr. Rafferty felt than an explanation was needed.

One might give some credence to Messrs. Hunt and Rafferty, were it not for the fact that Mr. Hunt's carpetbagging was done with tax-free, oil depletion allowance money and not with tax-paid income with which the average citizen must support his candidate.

A Clergyman's Soul-Searching: Many Lead Where God Is Not

By RABBI HAIM KEMELMAN

It is said that people get the kind of leaders they deserve. Is this also true of spiritual leadership?

Although I wish not to be irreverent with my clergy colleagues, I have the uncomfortable and nagging feeling that we have not played our role consummately and gloriously in recent times of crises and upheaval. This is not a blanket indictment of all clergy; neither is it motivated by truculence of accusation. It is simply an expression of soul-searching. Priest, rabbi and minister must ponder and ask what they have done or haven't done, that we have reached this unseemly mass-mess of social disorder and mental anguish.

THE SCENARIO for our role was in our hands; the script (all in Scripture) superb and time-honored; the curtains for the act unfurled; but somehow, the main characters in the play — we the clergy — were either missing or ineffectual. How else can you explain the presence of such a poverty of spirit and lack of equanimity on the scene of modern and affluent America?

The lights were out, but the cast failed to appear promptly to the cue with ready lines. The few — few too many — who used foot power and fist power were audible and visible beyond proportion to their actual numbers. And the many who used faith power and spirit power were neither heard nor seen on the scene.

SOME OF OUR religionists have become so engulfed in an extreme form of social activism that relevance has become the watchword, to the exclusion of everything else. They have aspired, above all, to be relevant and up to date with the world of the pill and the bomb. However, by doing so, they have taken religion out of the sanctuary and placed it into the streets. And there, something unavoidable has happened. As the street is splintered and fractured, so has the religious institution become fissured and diffused by class and intra-community struggles and upheavals. And religion, in too many quarters, is no longer the citadel of healing unity and conscious peace.

Pandering to relevance is as dangerous as catering to popularity. Not all popular platitudes are right and not all relevant demands are righteous.

To update religion, some have swiftly joined the race for "a new morality" and "ethics situation," which are neither new, moral or ethical in context of the ancient and hallowed commandments and traditional values; but are simply archaic impulses and undisciplined drives which remind us of the days of Astarte and a rerun of dark moments in ancient history, with new and modern subtitles.

WERE THE PROPHETS relevant and popular with the masses who sought to discover meaning in idol and joy in lust? One of them, Isaiah, speaks sternly to those who would prefer pleasure to truth and popularity to righteousness: "For it is a rebellious people, lying children . . . that say to seers: 'See not!' and to prophets: 'Prophesy not unto us right things; speak unto us smooth things, prophesy delusions'."

Some contempoary teachers and preachers of morality and spirituality have prophesized either "smooth things" that people want to hear, or have indulged in "delusions" that bring neither physical redemption nor spiritual salvation.

MANY TODAY (who knows how many) have turned to the chemical bliss of drugs, to the animal freedom of cohabitation, to a manic violence of arms and civil strife, to open defiance of law and elected authority. But the voice of prophetic religion is woefully silent and confused. We speak in a Babel of languages — all in the name of God. But who is right? To which voice of God are we to listen: Where are the marchers and pickets to ban the gunplay of strife, the mob rule of lawlessness, the soul-burning of needle bliss and drug addiction, now affecting countless lives?

None of us has a pipeline to God, and His will and purposes are revealed to few and done by fewer yet. But we do know, as far as experience and holy writ has informed us, where God is not. He is not in discord and arrogance. He is not in the whirlwind of belligerency, neither in the fire of rancor, nor in the storm of battle; but in the still small voice of human compassion and comprehension, in the peace that is healing and gives in reconciliation as much as it takes in justice, in the voice of sanity and persuasion — and not in clawing and howling, threatening and over-powering; in civilized humanity, not in jungled animality.

Don't Discount Hubert Humphrey In His New Role As Leader

CHICAGO — There is still fire in the ashes of the Democratic Party.

It would be dangerous for the Republicans to blithely assume that Hubert Humphrey is not the man to kindle the ashes into flames. It is true that the fashionable reaction to the shambles in Chicago is that the ebullient Humphrey is headed for defeat, with the consent and connivance of his fellow Democrats. It is true that just about everybody is accepting the idea that the party is so disorganized and divided, so bitter and limp, that it can't possibly recover soon from its self-inflicted wounds. But many people don't realize what Humphrey is like when he's in charge. They'll find out because he will be in command from here out.

Many people are thinking that the Vietnam issue, which almost tore this conventiin to bits, will be the same on Nov. 5 as it is today. It would be, but it may be radically different — and to Humphrey's advantage.

THERE ARE TWO reasons.

One is that events may alter the picture. Now that there is little prospect that Hanoi can capitalize on the U. S. election, now that it is clear that neither presidential nominee will be a softer negotiator than the other, there is a better chance that the North Vietnamese will stop stalling and start negotiating seriously. This could bring an end to the bombing by election day. Obviously this would enhance Humphrey's prospects.

The other reason why Vietnam may not be an overriding liability to the Democrats is that the choice in November will not be Humphrey or McCarthy — it will be Humphrey or Nixon. The issue will not be over how to conduct the war but over how to shape the peace. And on that choice the softer-line peace advocates would not likely find Nixon as appealing as Humphrey.

HUMPHREY'S PROBLEM will not primarily be to keep the peace vote from going to Nixon but to keep it from staying home, silent and sullen on the ground that there is no real choice between them. This is the kind of task Humphrey will relish.

I am not suggesting that the political tide is running with Humphrey. It isn't. It's running with Nixon and he may keep it that way. The polls show him in the lead. He has the armor of unusual party unity while the Chicago convention has given Humphrey a broken sword.

But the campaign hasn't really started and it is premature to say that the Democratic party is on its way to dissolution or, if headed in that direction, Humphrey is going to prove hopeless and helpless.

My guess is that he is going to prove far more formidable than many think. This campaign isn't over before it's started.

A SENATOR'S NOTEBOOK

Odds Are On Nixon As Campaign Begins

By EVERETT McKINLEY DIRKSEN

Hubert Humphrey's nomination was certain. Now the battle is joined, and we are about to experience in the next weeks the most gigantic and nation-shaking efforts ever presented to the American people for election of a President. Never in the history of political campaigns in the 20th century have the two major political parties had to face so many problems, each of them towering in its implications for the future.

There is an old saying to the effect that when a man or an idea is on the skids, it appears that all creation is greased to speed him on his way. The best political minds in America agree — publicly if they are Republican or nonpartisan or disaffected Democrat and privately if they are wise old Democratic warhorses — that Richard Nixon has the bit between his teeth and will defeat Mr. Humphrey if the Republicans make no serious mistakes.

HOW IS THIS Battle of the Century going to be fought?

Both Mr. Nixon and Mr. Humphrey have been in public life long enough to have set a record of their views on all the issues — all of the gut issues. The question then is where will the emphasis be placed and what will be the principal items of discussion between them.

Mr. Nixon's record as a fighter against communism is coming back to help him. Just when the administration began to feel that the Russians could be trusted, we discovered that the Soviet violation of the sovereignty of an independent country — Czechoslovakia — is yet another in a long series of monstrous deeds that demonstrate bluntly to any who will look and listen that you simply cannot deal with the Russians. You can't trust them. Richard Nixon knows this. Does Vice President Humphrey know it?

THE VIETNAMESE war, while not exactly partisan in character, is a major item. Long ago, Mr. Nixon asserted a firm position and at no time has he retreated from that position. His views are obviously based upon many briefings with our military leaders.

Mr. Humphrey is obviously confronted with a sharp division in his own party over Vietnam. The division that still splits the foundations of the Democratic Party is going to affect the election — unfavorably for Mr. Humphrey, it now seems certain.

ANOTHER MAJOR item is the problem of civil disorder and everything that has been equated to it. This involves crime and law enforcement.

It may be assumed that both candidates will be for law enforcement and the curbing of crime. Likewise, they will be heard to agree that there must be an end to rioting, burning, looting, destruction of property and civil disorder. At this point, however, differences develop.

The first difference will be the Republican insistence that in strengthening the local police in our large cities a major effort must be made to do so through the governors. The administration's position has been to go directly from Washington to the local authorities, thus in large part ignoring the governors of the various states.

THE DEMOCRATS are now faced with the back-breaking task of fighting a national dissatisfaction everywhere down the line. The dissatisfaction was spawned and was allowed to develop during the Democrats' control of the White House.

The most important position of all is the Republicans' assertion in their platform that every man is accountable for his own conduct and that the idea of explaining away criminal conduct by going back to the early environment of a person may be regarded as an explanation, but not an excuse.

Every political mind in this country knows that the people — the majority of Americans — will not stand for any more of what they have had.

That is why Vice President Humphrey is commencing a long march of 10 weeks that is almost tragic in its foreboding promise of political catastrophe.

That is why Mr. Nixon is off and striding freely with every reason to be convinced that he will be first under the political arch of triumph.

Your true dull minds are generally preferred for public employ, and especially promoted to city honors; your keen intellects, like razors, being considered too sharp for common service.—Washington Irving.

All Classes Participate In Labor Day Observance

NEW YORK (UPI) — The steamfitter from Local 89, the anti-union lumberyard operator and the non-union bookkeeper—all neighbors get together for a barbecue with their families every first Monday in September.

There's a lot of beer drinking, a lot of laughs, and most likely not a word spoken about this being the day dedicated to the social and economic achievement of organized American workers.

Labor Day, American style, is a phenomenon that drives believers in Karl Marx crazy. And three words from the staid Encyclopedia Britannica explain the difference between the U.S. Labor Day and European workers' grimly militant observances of May Day:

"All classes participate" in America's Labor Day.

Except for traditional speeches by labor leaders and politicians, a few union parades, breakfasts, picnics and dances across the country, the three-day holiday has evolved into an outdoor ceremony that puts the lid on summer and hails the oncoming football and ski season, to be enjoyed by the Wall Street broker and the beer truck driver.

In short, the average American working man is rarely any more, a class conscious "laborer." He's a man with an honest job, money to spend and time to spend it, and if the nationwide observance of Labor Day, 1968, had an informal theme, that would be it.

Labor Day didn't start out that way, however. It once belonged exclusively to the "working stiff."

On the first Monday of September, 1882, an army of 10,000 union men marched six miles up New York's Broadway, from city hall to 96th Street, in an orderly demonstration of labor unity.

It was the first experiment at setting aside a day for workers and its success marked the beginning of a long campaign to make labor day a national holiday.

The idea was the brainchild of Philadelphia carpenter Peter J. McGuire, founder of the Carpenters Union. He proposed it to other leaders of the Knights of Labor, predecessor of the American Federation of Labor, explaining such a holiday could be "an occasion devoted to the industrial spirit, the great vital force in every nation."

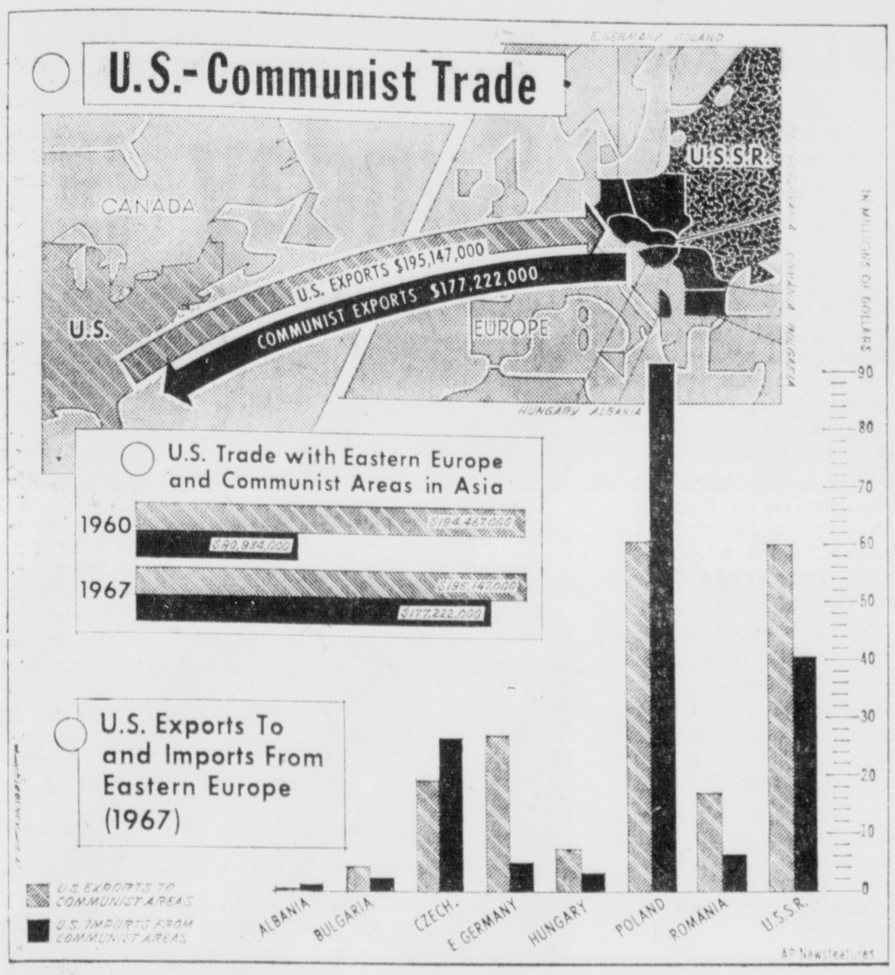
The proposal was accepted and by the mid 1880s Labor Day parades were being organized in other cities across the country and accompanied by proposals to make the holiday official.

The first bill to that effect was introduced into the New York State legislature, but the first to become law was passed in Oregon on Feb. 21, 1887. During that year four more states — Colorado, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York—passed laws creating Labor Day.

By the end of the decade Connecticut, Nebraska and Pennsylvania had followed suit. In 1894, Congress passed, without discussion, an act making Labor Day official in the District of Columbia and the U.S. territories. At the turn of the century most of the states fell in line. Wyoming, the last, didn't accept the new holiday until 1923.

In the early days of union organization drives and counter moves to smash them, Labor Day was marked by huge turnouts where union members heard such fiery leaders as AFL founder Samuel Gompers, Eugene V. Debs, and William D. Haywood call for labor power.

But labor day itself was gradually becoming an all-American holiday, unmarked by social schisms, or ideas of "class." After World War II, most union turnouts for parades and rallies began to fall off, and one by one over the years, traditional events were cancelled.



LONG RANGE TREND

Trade Between America, Communists Is Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pattern of U. S. trade with Communist bloc countries has moved erratically but generally upward over the last decade and if the Johnson administration has its way the traffic will climb even higher.

Poland and Russia last year carried on about two-thirds of the Communist bloc's export and import trade with the United States but the entire traffic was in nonstrategic goods.

Despite administration efforts to increase East-West trade, total U. S. exports and imports moving between this country and the Communist bloc declined slightly last year but remained at a relatively high level.

The long-range trend, however, has been up.

The $372.3 million in over-all trade last year represented only about one half of one per cent of total U. S. world trade of $58.3 billion but is considered by the administration an important bridge between East and West.

East-West trade reached its peak in 1947 when exports and imports combined totaled $448.1 million.

But with rising tensions this trade subsided and the outbreak of the Korean War resulted in total embargoes against Red China and North Korea. An embargo against North Vietnam went into effect in 1954.

U. S. exports to Eastern Europe almost vanished during and after the Korean War when tensions remained high. But an easing set in during the last half of the 1950s and export controls were modified and credits granted to Poland.

In October of 1966 in response to a directive from President Johnson, the Commerce Department relaxed export restrictions on 400 items for shipment to Eastern Europe and the regulations have been relaxed further since.

This dramatized the administration's efforts to foster more trade with the Communist bloc in an effort to ease tensions and isolate Red China.

In 1958, total U. S. trade with Eastern Europe — exports and imports combined — totaled $176.6 million. It dropped to $169.9 million the following year but has remained about $200 million throughout the 1960s.

It rose to $438.4 million in 1964 largely because of food shipments to Russia and Eastern Europe to help relieve shortages, dropped the following year to $277.5 million but remained above $370 million the last two years.

Although the basic U. S. export trend has been upward, imports from Communist bloc countries have increased even more dramatically.

With only two exceptions, imports from the Communist bloc over-all have risen steadily since 1957 from $61.3 million to $177.2 million last year. Imports were slightly higher in 1966 at $178.7 million.

U. S. exports, meanwhile, totaled $86.1 million in 1957 and $195.1 million last year. They ran higher in 1964 at $339.9 million because of the food shipments, and in 1966 at $197.8 million.

One reason for the recent surge in Communist bloc imports is Russia, where the level went from $20.2 million in 1964 to more than $40 million in each of the last three years.

Poland also has upped her exports to the United States from $54.2 million in 1964 to $91 million last year. Poland was also the biggest customer for U. S. exports last year at $60.8 million, barely ahead of Russia at $60.2 million.

Despite a trade deficit with Poland, the United States has consistently exported more to Eastern Europe than it imported from that part of the world.

But the margin shrunk to only $2.5 million in 1965 although it widened to $19 million in 1966 and $18 million last year.

Czechoslovakia has consistently held third spot in selling goods to the United States over the last decade. Third place for U. S. exports in that decade has been shared by the Czechs, Hungary and East Germany.

Most of the goods exported to the Communist bloc by the United States are agriculture products while the largest single import is meat products, especially from Poland. Iron and steel and platinum metals rank second and third on the U. S. import list.

Despite the Asian embargo, the Commerve Department will approve applications for U. S. exports to friendly diplomatic missions in Red China, North Korea and North Vietnam if there is reasonable assurance the goods will not enter the economies of those countries.

Last year, it licensed exports of an auto and parts valued at $3,088; an $800 air conditioner, $875 in refrigerators and a $250 electric range.

Behind The News

THIS WEEK In The World

By United Press International

Twenty years ago at the Democratic party convention in Philadelphia the young, crusading liberal mayor of Minneapolis led a successful fight for a civil rights plank in the party platform that provoked a walkout by Southern delegates. They named their own presidential candidate and ran him on the Dixiecrat party ticket.

In Chicago last week the Democratic party convention overwhelmingly selected the former Minneapolis mayor as its presidential candidate to run on a party platform that provoked almost as much bitterness as the plank of 1948. The platform endorsing President Johnson's Vietnam policy was opposed by one-third of the convention's 2,600 delegates.

For Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, now 57, selected to unite the party and the nation torn by war, violence, the fight for civil rights and a youthful rebellion against the "establishment" the rebels blame for the nation's troubles, it was a moment of joy temperated by sorrow.

Humphrey had been shocked at what he had seen in the streets of Chicago, where some 10,000 young people protesting the policies of the party in power were routed in repeated clashes with police and National Guardsmen. The demonstrators were clubbed by police in the sight of convention delegates and in the face of television cameras that carried the violent scenes into millions of homes.

"May America resolve tonight that we never again will see what we have seen," Humphrey said, in an emotion-charged acceptance speech interrupted 75 times by applause in the bastion known as Convention Hall.

In a bid for the support of dissident doves on the Vietnam War issue, Humphrey said "the policies of tomorrow need not be limited by the policies of yesterday." If elected, Humphrey said, "I shall apply that lesson in search for peace in Vietnam."

To be his running mate, Humphrey chose Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the Roman Catholic son of a Polish immigrant. Muskie has twice been elected to the Senate after serving two terms as governor of Maine.

Only one of the two men Hunphrey defeated for the nomination, Sen. George S. McGovern, pledged his support. The man who showed the nation how deeply divided it is on the Vietnam issue, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, did not show up at Convention Hall for Humphrey's acceptance.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Chicago: Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, the party boss who brought the Democratic convention to his city and who was blamed by many for police tactics against the demonstrators, said his policemen had followed the advice of the President's commission on civil disorders "to use manpower instead of firepower."

Austin, Tex.: President Johnson, who observed his 60th birthday Tuesday but did not show up at his party's convention because of the turmoil in Chicago streets and dissension in party ranks over his Vietnam policy, telephoned his congratulations to Democratic presidential nominee Hubert H. Humphrey.

Hyannis Port, Mass.: Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who rejected a move in the Democratic party to nominate him for President, addressed the convention by closed circuit television during a memorial to his slain brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, and said: "We should not hate but love one another."

Prague: Alexander Dubcek, Czechoslovakia Communist party first secretary who was taken to Moscow when Soviet-bloc countries occupied his nation, returned to tell his countrymen in a tearful address: "We will have to take some temporary measures which will reduce the degree of democracy which we already have." The Soviets were keeping troops in Czechoslovakia to see that the Czechs did just that.

TRAGEDY BELT

Pacific's Ring Of Fire: Earthquakes, Volcanoes

PASADENA (UPI) — Four out of five earthquakes occur around the edge of the Pacific Ocean, and many of the world's active volcanos are located in the same belt.

Seismologists call it the circum-Pacific belt; it is also known as "the ring of fire."

In one recent week, tragedy struck at three points on this ring: Major earthquakes rocked Mexico City and Manila and a long dormant volcano in Costa Rica erupted.

BRIEF SPAN

The brief time span in which these disturbances occurred caused some to speculate there might be a connection. Not so, say seismologists.

Actually, earthquakes are far more common than most persons realize. The National Geographic Society says that seismograph stations around the world detect 500,000 a year.

Earthquakes and volcanos are nature's way of relieving tremendous stresses that build up beneath the earth's surface. Mountain ranges are built by this deformation (the process by which rocks are folded, faulted or compressed by earth stresses) of the earth's crust.

ON EDGES

"The greatest deformation tends to occur on the edges of large crustal blocks as these blocks move relative to adjoining crustal blocks," explained Dr. James Brune, associate professor of geophysics at the California Institute of Technology.

Brune said that the north and the southwest Pacific Ocean form one of these giant crustal blocks, which explains why there are few tremors on the floor of the Pacific and many on its edges.

There are more quakes on the circum-Pacific belt because the Pacific crustal block is moving faster than other blocks. Why it moves faster is not known, Brune said.

PLOTS QUAKES

A map plotting the location of major earthquakes reveals not only the belt around the shores of the Pacific but the fact the concentration of earthquakes is heavier in the Orient. Brune said the reason is that the Pacific crust moved in that direction.

As a result, the type of earthquake in Japan is different from that in California. On the Oriental shore of the Pacific, earthquakes are caused by the crustal blocks crunching together and one being forced under the other, while in California the earth is being pulled apart and the blocks are sliding past one another.

It is estimated that the portion of California west of the famed San Andreas fault is moving northward an average of two inches a year compared to the land east of it.

While there is no way yet of predicting when an earthquake will occur, energy being stored up along major earthquake faults must eventually be released.

21 FEET

For example, Brune estimated recently that 21 feet of potential displacement were stored up along the San Andreas fault in Southern California.

For some unknown reason, the number of major and great earthquakes has decreased, in recent years. A major temblor measures from 7 to 7.9 on the Richter Magnitude Scale. Both the Mexico City and Manila quakes were major. "Great" earthquakes measure 8 and above. Both the San Francisco quake of 1906 magnitude 8.3 and the Alaskan quake of 1964 (magnitude 8.5) were "great."

Ordinarily there are an average of 18 major quakes a year, but in 1967 there were 7, in 1966 10 and 1965 9, according to Dr. Charles Richter, who recently retired from Caltech. He devised the Richter scale.

GREAT QUAKE

A great earthquake has not been recorded anywhere since the Alaska temblor and this is the longest period without a great earthquake since man began keeping reliable records in 1896, Brune said.

"This doesn't necessarily mean anything has drastically changed in the stress pattern of the earth," he said.

The Richter Magnitude Scale is based on a logarithmic scale and thus each step on it represents a shock 10 times greater in power. A quake of magnitude 8 is 10 times more powerful than one of 7 and 1,000 times more powerful than one of 5. The scale has no upper limit, but the strongest quakes ever recorded—in South America on Jan. 31, 1906, and off Japan on March 2, 1933—had magnitudes of 8.9.

Sculpture, Folk Rock Musical Anger Proponents Of Flag Laws

NEW YORK (UPI) — Are Americans losing respect for their flag?

There are many who believe this is so. One is Daniel J. O'Connor, chairman of the American Legion's National Committee on Americanism.

"There's no question that derision against the flag is on the rise," O'Connor told UPI. "It's all part of the general relaxation of discipline, when you have antiwar demonstrators publicly burning the flag.

900 TOO FAR

"There's a general license to disrespect. We want freedom, that's what we veterans fought for, but you can go too far."

Another who feels the American flag is being increasingly desecrated is Lawrence Phelps Tower of Newport, R.I., president of the U.S. Flag Foundation which was formed in 1898 "in favor of honoring the flag of our country and preserving it from desecration."

One focal point of current distress over what's being done to the Stars and Stripes is the folk rock musical "Hair" currently playing on Broadway and in which hippie characters prance on stage carrying an American flag and proceed to play with it.

NO VIOLATION

Indignation over "Hair's" flag antics rose to such a pitch that Asst. Dist. Atty. Jerry Slater of the County of New York went to investigate the cause, and arrived at this conclusion:

"While the conduct of the actors was, at times, somewhat irreverent towards the U.S. flag, clearly there was no violation of the law . . . at no time did the actors mutilate, defile or cast contempt on the flag . . ."

Obviously, there is some question about what is and what is not defilement or desecration of the American flag.

Even the new flag act signed into law by President Johnson July 5 of this year apparently does not clarify the issue.

The law calls for "not more than $1,000 fine," or imprisonment for a year, or both for "publicly mutilating, defacing, defiling, burning or trampling, upon the flag, or any part or recognizable representation of it."

What those words really mean seems open to widely differing interpretations.

Is it illegal to wear those political paper poster dresses which James Sterling Paper Fashions Ltd., whipped up with faces of the various candidates against a flag background?

Is it punishable to burn a flag in an anti-war protest, even though the demonstrators insist it was an old flag and various state codes called for the burning of old flags?

The Legislature has deleted the part of the New York State flag code that allowed a citizen to prosecute a desecrator. Now only the district attorney's office can bring legal action against an offender."

Before that change occurred in the New York code, Tower exercised his rights as a citizen and took action against the Radich Gallery in Manhattan because of a series of stuffed-flag sculptures the gallery had on display.

That case will serve as a legal test of the new flag law, when it comes up before the Supreme Court in October.

The sculptures in question were created by New York artist Marc Morrel. One sculpture showed the flag as a lynch victim hanging from a noose; in another the flag was shaped like a part of the body and draped on a cross.

Taken to court, gallery owner Radich was fined $500, a sentence the U.S. Flag Foundation is protesting as far too meager.

SOME GOOD

There are some who see no wrong—and possibly some good—in a more casual treatment of the flag than once was accepted. One such viewpoint was expressed by critic Coral Crosman who wrote in her review of "Hair" for the Schenectady, N.Y., Union-Star:

"In 'Hair,' the sacred rules concerning the flag are not broken. Suddenly, in a flash of insight, it seems that the American shouldn't have to be rocked in his cradle any longer. He is no longer the patriotic, blindly nationalistic baby. He is coming of age. The flag, the symbol, must no longer represent the security of the cradle, rocking him in unthinking bliss."

Those Votes Cast In November May Not Elect The President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Everybody knows that on Nov. 5 Americans will elect their next president.

Or will they?

Suppose, with third party candidate George C. Wallace in the field, neither major party candidate wins a majority of the presidential electoral vote. Then what?

Then the decision goes to the House of Representatives next Jan. 6.

Starting on that day the House, under the constitution, will be charged with the task of electing the next president.

That means resorting to an illogical, risky, outmoded multi-stage electoral system under which the democratic process has suffered, with varying effect, since 1789.

To wit:

Three times—1824, 1876, 1888—the nominee who got the most popular votes failed to get elected and his opponent was installed as president.

Twice—1800 and 1824—the House decided the election outcome, awarding the prize once (1824) to the candidate who ran second in both popular and electoral votes.

Once—in the Tilden-Hayes election of 1876—a Congressionally-created commission disregarded the popular will (as reflected in the popular vote for Samuel J. Tilden) and installed Rutherford B. Hayes as part of a deal with Southerners to end Reconstruction and pull federal troops out of the South.

The heart of the problem is the electoral college.

The electors are chosen by the people, who generally select between slates offered by the two major parties, with each slate committed to vote for the party's nominees for president and vice president.

Each state's total electoral vote (based on the number of its representatives and senators) goes to the candidate getting the most popular votes in the state. Thus (among other complaints about the electoral system) each state's minority is effectively disenfranchised. And a continuing possibility is that the candidate with the most popular votes nationally may lose the election in the electoral college.

The real trouble comes when a minority party picks up enough electoral votes to stymie either major party candidate from getting a majority. That happened in 1800 and 1824. It almost happened in 1948, when the Dixiecrats and Progressives offered tickets, and could have happened again in 1960, when some unpledged electors were chosen.

If the House should have to decide the 1968 election outcome, here is the way it would work.

Each state delegation will vote as a unit—and according to outstanding precedent, in secret.

Each state has a single vote, whether as big as New York or as small as Nevada.

If a delegation is evenly split, or can't agree it loses its vote.

Of the three top contenders, whoever first gets 26 votes is declared to be president.

Four Receive Marin Music Scholarships

Four talented Marin County boys, ranging in age from 14 to 19, have been awarded $200 Marin Music Chest scholarships following auditions at San Domenico School in San Anselmo, announced Mrs. Carl Riznik, Music Chest president.

Receiving his first Music Chest scholarship was trumpeter Bert Truax, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester T. Truax of 110 Jordan Avenue, San Anselmo. Bert has studied six and a half years. He has been soloist three times with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, and despite his youth, has been teaching trumpet for two years. He will enter San Rafael High School this fall.

Also receiving his first Music Chest scholarship was 17-year-old Charles May, oboist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. May of 201 Cleveland Avenue, Mill Valley. Charles has studied eight years and will enter University of California this fall. At Tamalpais High School, he was selected for the California State Honor Band.

For the second successive year, 16-year-old John Tomlinson, flutist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tomlinson of 264 Emerystone Terrace, Marinwood, was awarded a Music Chest scholarship. John attends Terra Linda High School and has studied three and one-half years.

Also receiving his second Music Chest scholarship was 18-year-old Robert Borgmann, pianist, son of Mrs. Letah E. Mealey and George R. Borgmann of Tiburon. Robert, who has studied three years, will enter College of Marin this fall.

Chamber Reports Door Prying Attempt

An unsuccessful attempt to pry open a rear door leading to the manager's office at the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, 824 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, sometime between 5:30 p.m. Tuesday and 9 a.m. yesterday was reported to police by Carroll A. Snyker, chamber manager.

He said there have been several recent attempts to pry open doors at the chamber headquarters.

Dollar Mansion Is Leased To Atheneum Foundation

Falkirk, the San Rafael estate of the Dollar family, has been acquired by the Atheneum Arts Foundation, directors reported yesterday.

New life will be breathed into the foundation which had been beset with financial difficulties, they said. The 14-room mansion on Mission Avenue was leased to the foundation rent free except for utilities and maintenance by Mrs. Joseph C. Hickingbotham and her brother, R. Stanley Dollar Jr. Members of the Dollar family, known for Founding the Dollar shipping line, have resided in San Rafael for three generations.

"Now that we have a new home, we'll be moving forward again," said Mildred Kenny, who's in charge of the San Rafael foundation office. She added that other non-profit groups in the performing arts field will be sharing the home.

The foundation will be seeking use permits from the city when planning cultural events at the home.

Reorganization of the foundation was necessary when it ran into financial problems with plans for an $18 million arts center at Marincello. Lincoln National Bank filed suit in March against Thomas Frouge, developer of Marincello, for more than $18,000 it says the foundation owes on a loan guaranteed by Frouge.

In an attempt to put the foundation on better financial footing under new management, a new board was appointed including Mrs. Angela Hill Dunham of San Francisco, James Reed of San Anselmo, Esther Dearth of San Rafael and Mrs. William Hoxie of Ross.

Pair Pleads Guilty To Reduced Charges

Two Hamilton Air Force Base men, Hughel Ray Osburn and Howard L. Kliever, both 21, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charge of petty theft and were ordered to return at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 27 for sentencing.

Osburn and Kliever originally were charged with burglary of a San Rafael home June 24.

Electric Car Gets New Life In Long Race

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Massachusetts Institute of Technology entry in the Great Electric Car Race sizzled through Oklahoma City last night on its way to the West Coast.

The white modified Corvair with its 2,000 pounds of batteries and 300 pounds of ice limped into a service station's driveway, past the gas pumps and over to the nearest power line pole as the attendant watched in amazement.

There, assisted by officials of Oklahoma Gas and Electric Co., the crew repowered their $20,000 worth of batteries while the rest of the entourage showered and changed clothes.

The car is in a race with an entry from the California Institute of Technology.

The two cars were to meet somewhere just west of Oklahoma City but instead met 80 miles west—near Weatherford.

The cross country race began Monday when MIT's car left Cambridge, Mass., for Cal Tech's campus at Pasadena and the Cal Tech car started toward Cambridge.

Changes Plea

Robert D. Vanoy, 18, of Novato, changed his plea yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to guilty of a May 31 burglary in Novato. He was ordered to appear at 11 a.m. Sept. 23 for sentencing.

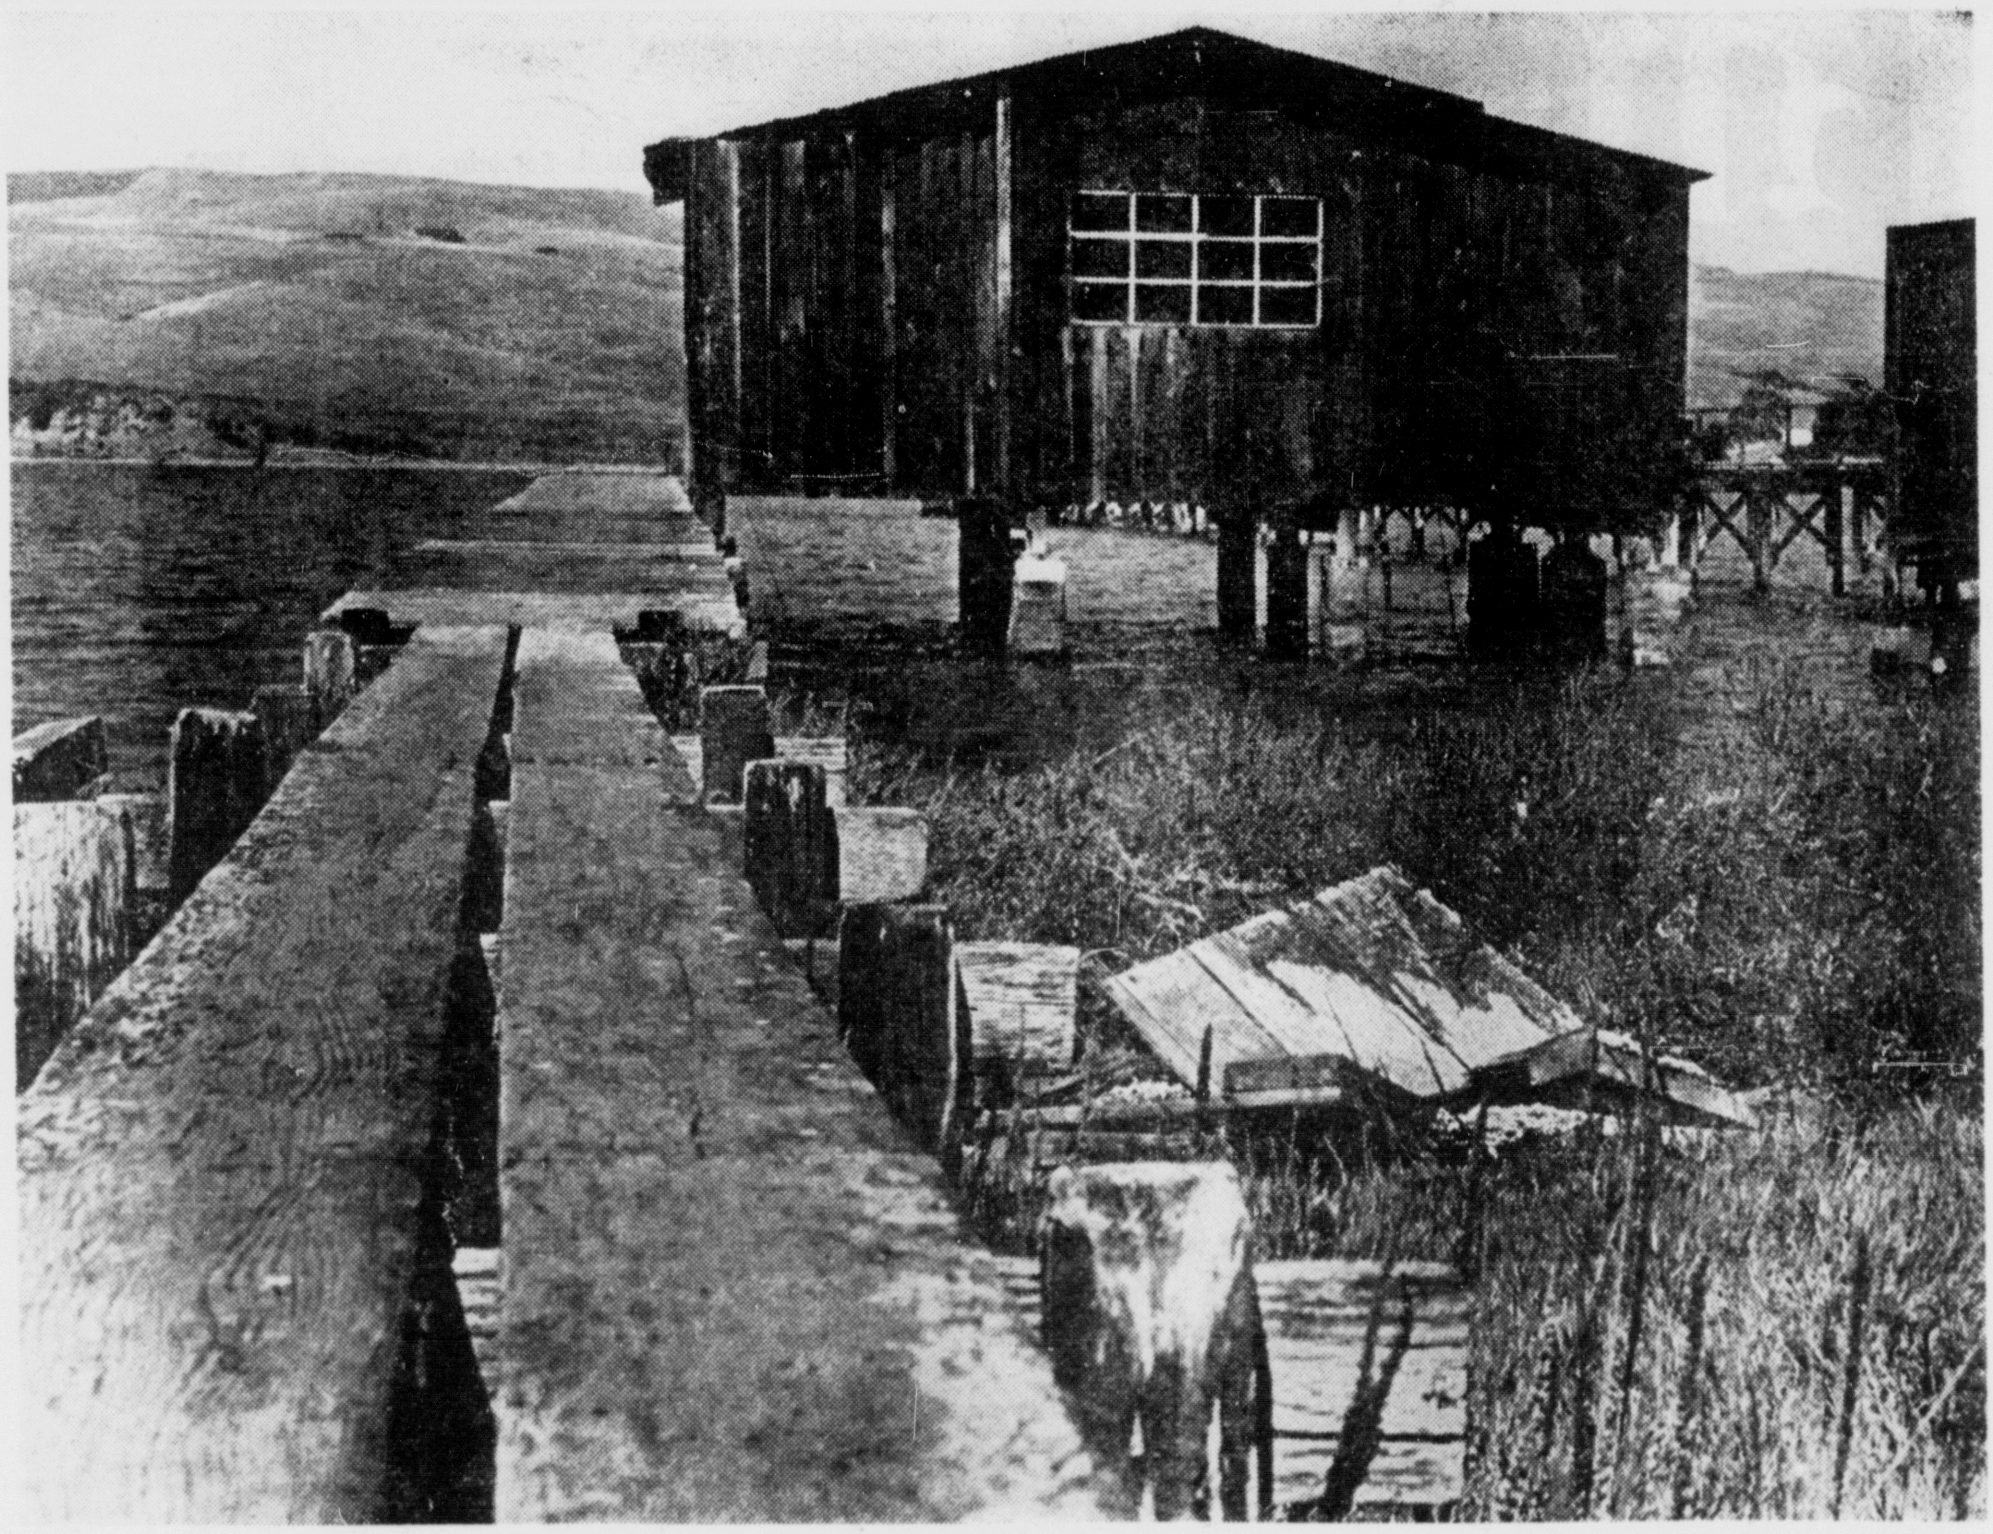
Music Signaled Through The Glass

See Page M8



MUCH OF THE CHARM of Inverness lies in its rusticity and its serenity. While most of Marin County has sounded and resounded to clashing gears of bulldozers and to pounding of the jackhammers, the Inverness area has generally escaped the noise and scars of change. It remains today surprisingly the same as it was in pioneer times. (Independent-Journal photo)

The Picnickers Returned To Inverness

An Outing That Introduced Future Residents To Area

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

Riding on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, along the shore of Tomales Bay, a delightful community, Inverness, comes into view.

The land was owned by the pioneer Shafter and Howard families, whose holdings also included the Point Reyes Peninsula.

The property included two original land grants, Rancho Punta de los Reyes with Joseph Snook as grantee, and Rancho de los Reyes Sobrante with Antonio Osio as grantee; both large parcels were patented to Andrew Randall.

In 1856-57 Justice Oscar L. Shafter of the California Supreme Court, and his brother, Judge James McMillan Shafter, bought the property. Later they were joined by Charles Webb Howard, who married Emma Shafter, daughter of Oscar Shafter. The land was leased to ranchers but the owners maintained large estates.

James McMillan Shafter, who built his residence at The Oaks at Olema where he engaged in agriculture and stock-raising, particularly "blooded" horses, was the developer of Inverness.

THE MARIN Journal on May 23, 1889, reported:

"Inverness is the name of a new town laid out by Judge Shafter on the Point Reyes shore of Tomales Bay. More than 11,000 acres are laid out in tracts of 40 to 2,000 acres. It is a beautiful section of Marin County."

Shafter sold the land through real estate firms.

Under the auspices of Cyrus H. Street, a real estate man, a few members of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in San Francisco came to Inverness to picnic and search for a location for a summer camp. However, the church people considered it too far from the railroad station at Point Reyes Station for a camp.

BUT SEVERAL of the picnickers bought lots for themselves there in the summer of 1889. One of these was Capt. Alexander Howard Baily, grandfather of Hazel Snell Schreiber, later Mrs. Holmes. She said her grandfather was called "captain" because he loved the water and built not only a wharf but also a number of boats which plied the waters of Tomales Bay.

Captain Baily bought 1,500 acres at Inverness and pitched a tent on his property. Later he built a cabin.

He was the first postmaster at Inverness when service was established in 1897, after enough people had taken up residence.

Hazel Holmes said Inverness was divided into the First Valley and the Second Valley, and that her grandfather's home was the first residence in the First Valley. A larger house, The Gables, was built in 1890.

THE INVERNESS Land and Water Co. was organized in 1898, with the G. H. Umbsen Co. as agents, lots in Inverness were advertised in San Francisco newspapers. Waterfront lots were sold for $500; inland property was cheaper.

Attilio Martinelli and his cousin, Olympio, had taken over the Jerry Adams general merchandise store in Olema, and they had a telephone exchange in the store.

In 1897 Attilio Martinelli and his wife, Jennie, moved from Olema to Inverness where they built a combination residence and store. Later the post office was moved from Baily's cabin to the store.

MARTINELLI WAS a progressive business man. As he had experience with the telephone exchange in Olema, he wanted to bring the service to Inverness. His efforts were opposed by residents of the area, who insisted on being kept out of telephonic range.

By 1899, Martinelli had mustered sufficient moral and financial support to have a telephone installed in the post office section of the store. Most of the money for the installation was put up by the Martinellis,

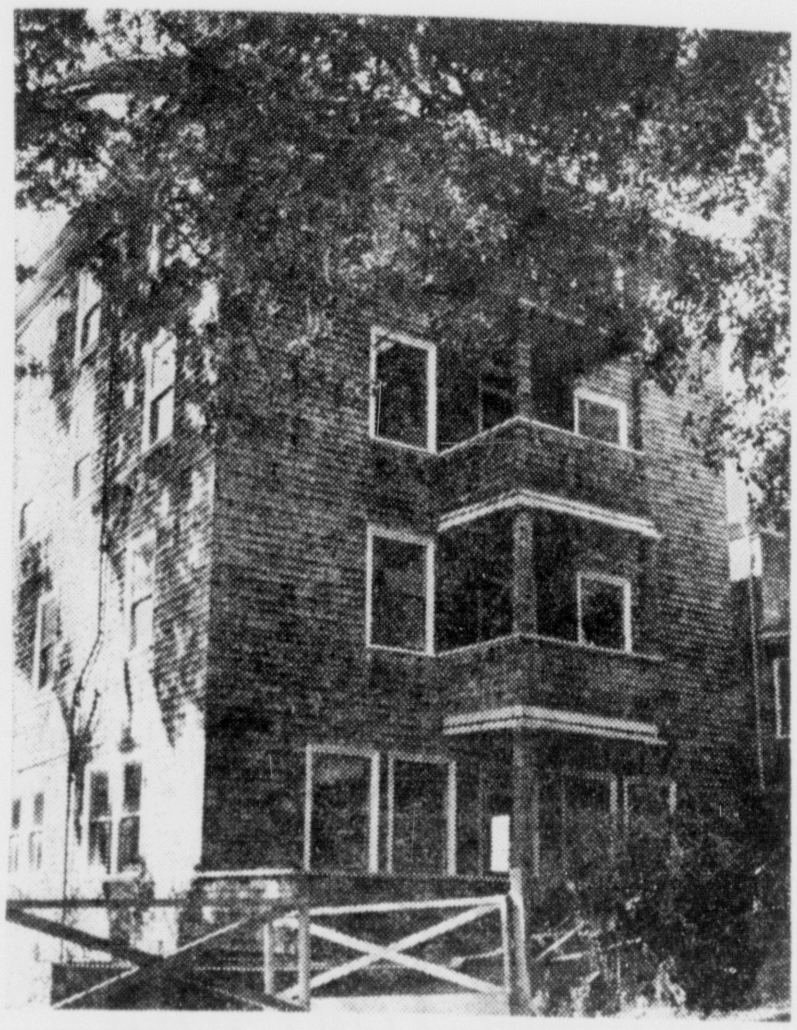
"Why Did A Hand-Print Appear On My Party Dress?"

If the hand-print had been black, it might be attributed to soil or a sinister plot of the "black hand society" known to a much older generation than yours. However, this hand-print is almost white and it appears on the back of your beautiful blue acetate gown.

Such a color change, garment analysis shows, is caused by an alkaline solution. Although this solution is found in facial soaps and shampoos, it is present in perspiration, too. In this instance, judging from the position of the hand-print on the back of your gown, we have a strong reason to suspect the perspiring hand of a nervous dancing partner of yours.

We would suggest that you shake hands with a partner before dancing and refuse the dance if his hand perspires excessively or don't make yourself so alluring that he becomes nervous when he has you in his arms.

By Robert and Ronald Cassasa, Marin Cleaners, Inc.



INVERNESS HAS enjoyed a reputation for many years for hospitality, thanks to its fine inns and restaurants. One such landmark, the old Drake's Inn, was built in about 1905.

The Story Of Inverness and Jennie was the telephone operator.

A pamphlet issued about the turn of the century had this to say:

"INVERNESS — A tract of virgin forest, of undeveloped hill and dale, with wild woodland walks and vista views of Tomales Bay. The natural beauty of the tract is left undisturbed, in the belief that its attractiveness lies in its aspects. . . . Inverness subdivisions have improvements now aggregating $400,000."

The article was followed by a list of people who had built houses in Inverness. Among them were Capt. William Leale, father of Mrs. Bruce Johnston; Judge William Carey Van Fleet (Mrs. Van Fleet was a member of the widely known and wealthy Crocker clan); Dr. William Mason Hugh Craig, former mayor of Piedmont; Rev. Amos Hackley, grandfather of Dorothy Huggins; Robert N. Frick, Thomas Drew, Christian Schreiber (the Schreibers had the first boarding house in Inverness) and William Helshaw Radford.

Hazel Snell Holmes told how a Mrs. Reeves, who lived in Inverness for many years, rode from Bolinas to Inverness on horseback before the community on Tomales Bay had a name.

LISTED IN THE Great Register of Marin County in 1910 was James Reeves of Inverness, a hotelkeeper.

Only 17 voters were registered then in Inverness. Among these were George Greiss, (brother of Mrs. Attilio Martinelli and who worked in the store), Attilio Martinelli, Ennio Martinelli, Christian Schreiber, Henry Van Valkenburg, Eustace Bellman and Sydney Schmitt.

Judge F. H. Lamb and his family were pioneers of Inverness.

A son, Roland Lamb, who lived on a bluff on the "mesa," said his father, a former superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Co. had a direct telegraph circuit from Inverness to his San Francisco headquarters in the early part of the century.

ROBERT FRICK, a lawyer, bought his first parcel of land in Inverness in 1898. When the Fricks' daughter, Madeline, was born, they built a cottage on the property.

The Fricks had two other daughters, Anne (Mrs. John Keller of Larkspur), and Barbara (Mrs. Barrett, who lived in Palo Alto).

The Fricks bought adjacent land, making their estate about eight acres. There is a fine stand of Bishop pine, a native of the area, on the former Frick property. The Fricks built a large house on their Inverness property and it was completed in 1930. Madeline and Daniel Allen were married in the new house on March 15 of that year.

THE INVERNESS STORY

West Marin Pioneer Laid Out A New Town Along Tomales Bay

Mrs. Frick moved to Larkspur to be near her family.

As there was no Episcopal church in or near Inverness, the Frick house and grounds were sold to become St. Columba's. The buyers only paid what had been the cost of constructing the house. Frick Hall is a part of the church complex, where community events are held.

There was great excitement in the community when news came that an $80,000 hotel was to be built on the Inverness bluff. However, the hotel was never built.

After 1906, when many refugees from the San Francisco fire and earthquake came to Marin, Inverness grew rapidly. At one time three inns were in operation. Once the Inverness Inn was enlarged and four-story annex built.

IN 1946 A primary school was built in Inverness. In January of 1968 it had 47 pupils, first, second and third graders, three teachers and one teacher's aide.

The school, on a hill above Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, is in the West Marin School District, under the supervision of the Marin County superintendent of schools.

In the early days, Brock Schreiber had a passenger launch that made pleasure cruises on Tomales Bay, taking people to picturesque picnic places along the shore.

Horse-drawn stages carried passengers to and from the trains at Point Reyes Station. Later motor stages provided transportation.

WITH THE advent of the automobile Inverness was no longer an isolated community. Many people now make their homes there the year-round. Some commute to San Francisco, others to towns and cities in Marin.

Inverness now attracts tourists who dine at its regionally famed restaurants. During the summer months, motels, boatels, stores and shops do a thriving business. Yachts bring pleasure seekers by water to the Inverness Yacht Club.

Each year the annual Primrose Tea of the Inverness Garden Club brings hundreds of people to the community of Inverness.

The club members make breads which are served and sold at the tea that concludes the showing and sale of the primroses which thrive in the gardens of the shaded hillside homes.

HUGH LOGAN, who had a large primrose garden, for many years opened his estate for the garden club's annual event.

Another traditional event which Inverness residents recall with affection is the old Inverness Fair, an annual indulgence in merriment that attracted many visitors from outside the community.

Fourth of July footraces are a continuing tradition.

More recently, the Inverness Music Festival, staged annually at St. Columba's Episcopal Church, has earned acclaim from lovers of fine music.

WALTER BLACKFORD, pioneer historian, wrote that in 1936 it became necessary to furnish 24-hour telephone service to Inverness. The Martinellis could not maintain night service in their store so a new switchboard was installed in Nels Johnson's Inverness Lodge.

Adjacent to the town of Inverness is Inverness Park. It, too, began as a summer resort and now has year-round residents. Most of these own their property.

My late uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Valdemar Hörnung (Gertrude Holland), were among the first to buy property in Inverness Park. There children learned to swim in the White House Pool, one of the upper reaches of Tomales Bay.

When the boys grew older they and their father went hunting, fishing and clam digging not far from their house. The property has remained in the family and a new house has been built as a permanent residence.

THE HORNUNGS spend only weekends and summers at Inverness Park, maintaining their home in San Francisco.

Visiting the Hornungs and hiking along the hillside trails one day I found two marble tombstones. They were broken and had lain on the ground so long it was impossible to decipher the names and dates. Later I went back but could not find the grave markers.

New roads had been built and evidently the stones had been covered by earth.

During World War II, the residents of Inverness as well as every one else on the Pacific Coast were alarmed at the possibility of attack from the water. The military, too, realized the danger and so Camp Heidel, an army base, was established between Inverness Park and the ocean. The young men stationed there found the place gloomy and isolated. For days fog shrouded the land. The soldiers found a pleasant relief from the monotony by going to Inverness and visiting with the villagers.

IT IS SAID, too, that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was a distinguished guest at Camp Heidel.

No more pleasant drive can be found in Marin than one through Inverness. The highway is smooth and you can stop at a "turn-out" and pick thimbleberries.

The red, flattened, spherical berries resemble thimbles. The plant has white and pink flowers and velvety leaves.

Blackberries, also, tempt the motorist. But, beware, all those who are allergic to poison oak.

Primroses And Thimbleberries

You'll Find Them Both In Inverness

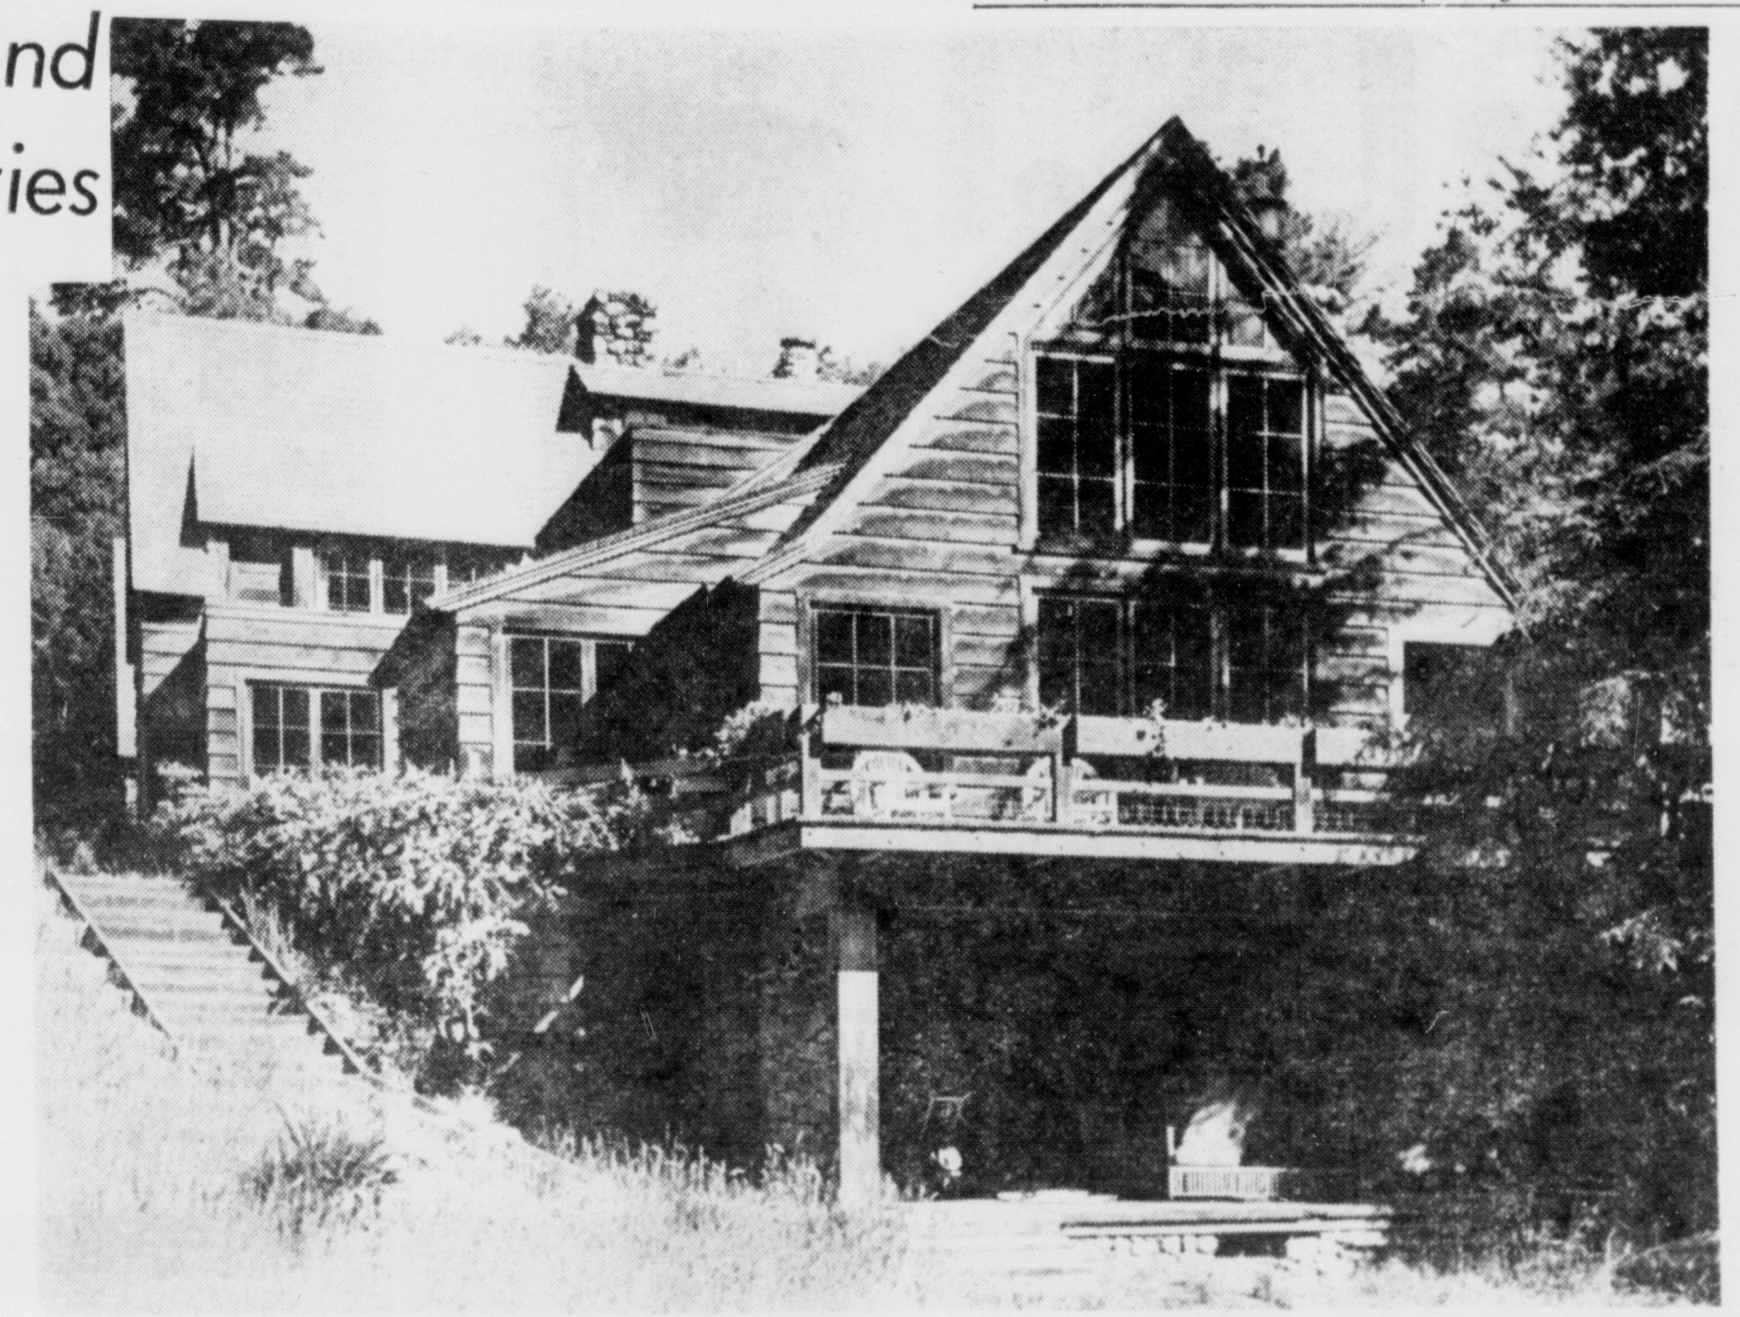
It thrives, too, where blackberries grow.

In 1948 when Walter Blackford wrote his article, he gave the population of Inverness as approximately 600 residents.

IT IS NOT often that poetry is called on to express the charm of a vicinity of Marin but Miles Overholt, who frequented Inverness, published "The Song of Inverness."

One stanza reads: "The ferns rear high their fronded heads, a tangled lichen carpet spreads beside the scented flower beds to shame the water cress; a deer leaps down the canyon walls; across the bay a wild goose calls, and sing the joyous waterfalls, the song of Inverness."

It was suited to early Inverness, and it remains apt for Inverness today, a charming community unspoiled by the passing of the years.



THE ROBERT FRICK home was an Inverness showplace, located on an estate with a fine stand of Bishop pine. Frick, a lawyer, bought his first Inverness property in 1898, but this large house was not completed until 1930.

ST. COLUMBIA'S Episcopal Church includes in its complex what was formerly the Robert Frick home. It is not only the site of worship services, but it has also been the scene of many civic and cultural events including the traditional Primrose Tea, pictured above in 1967, and an annual music festival. NO THAT'S NOT the late Humphrey Bogart, but instead look-alike George Malti, who is casting an approving eye as volunteers from the San Rafael Fire Department start loading the proper relics — oil drums, lifesavers, Gordon's gin, etc. — on board the African Queen, even as the refurbishing of the famed movie vessel was still under way.

NATURALLY, the Union Jack had to be raised on board the African Queen. Performing the honors is Richard J. McCarthy, an Irishman who grinned as he sent the British flag aloft: "I'd only do this for a queen — the African Queen." The colorful craft was renovated at McCarthy's San Rafael Marine Repairs Inc. boatyard.

BOGIE'S BOAT

A New Life For The African Queen

By DON KEOWN

Any poll of motion picture fans whose interest has spanned the past three decades would certainly place high among the movies they remember with the greatest affection two Humphrey Bogart films.

These would be "Casablanca," the 1943 picture of World War II intrigue in North Africa, and "The African Queen," the 1951 cinematic story of World War I comedy and adventure in the heart of the Dark Continent.

"CASABLANCA" had Bogie as a cynical nightclub owner, the incomparable Ingrid Bergman, a stellar supporting cast headed by Claude Rains, and Dooley Wilson playing the piano and singing "As Time Goes By." It won the Academy Award as the best picture of the year.

"The African Queen" had Bogie as a dissolute engineer, a marvelous Katharine Hepburn, magnificent African scenery, and a wonderfully rickety riverboat that gave the picture its title. Star Bogart won the "Oscar" as the year's best actor.

Bogart is dead. So are Rains and Dooley Wilson. Miss Bergman and Miss Hepburn are seen all too infrequently on the screen. "As Time Goes By," one of the best songs of the 1940s, is seldom heard in this age of folk-rock music.

AND THE OLD steamer launch that carried the gin-reeking Bogart and his determined missionary companion down the Nile, through swamps and over rapids, into Lake Albert to strike a blow at the Germans, disappeared for a time from sight.

Then, in November, 1967, a news story out of Africa announced that the African Queen was up for sale in Kenya's capital city of Nairobi.

That story caught the attention of Fred Reeve, a San Francisco restaurateur and a devoted Bogart aficionado. He flew to Nairobi, only to learn that the old launch had already been sold for $400 to a plantation

RETURNED TO her old movie standards by volunteers from the San Rafael Fire Department, the African Queen was finally pronounced ready for sailing on San Francisco Bay. And here she is being readied for that successful voyage. Richard McCarthy has donned a safari hat in keeping with the African theme of the gala occasion. (Photos by Edwin Hoffman)

The African Queen Sets Sail Again For A Good Cause

Rickety Riverboat Of Movie Fame Has Been Rescued From Obscurity

owner who planned to use it as transportation for fishing parties by tourists.

ON TO KAMPALA, capital of Uganda, went Reeve, where he contacted the new owner, examined the boat, and then purchased the African Queen for $730 plus a replacement boat.

The journey to the United States and its West Coast, first to Mombassa by railroad, then overseas on the deck of a freighter, took eight weeks and covered 7,000 miles.

Reeve already had his inspiration for what was to become the new career for the venerable old riverboat. Before the African Queen had left her native continent, she had been placed on display in Kampala and had helped to raise $3,000 to combat cancer.

THE QUEEN, Reeve decided, would be used as a star attraction for further fund-raising for the cause of cancer research.

But first the scars left by 56 years of hard use had to be repaired. And it was there that Marin County got into the act.

Richard J. McCarthy offered the space and facilities of his San Rafael Marine Repairs boatyard as the home base for the refurbishing project, and also offered to serve as coordinator of the work.

Most of the labor was provided by volunteers from the San Rafael Fire Department, headed by Battalion Chief Robert Marcucci. Twenty-two firemen in all rolled up their sleeves at various times and went to work restoring the African Queen to her old dignity if not splendor.

OTHER INDIVIDUALS and organizations also made their contributions, including the Marin County Sheriff's Marine Patrol, County Supervisor Tom Storer, Bill and Gary Muggenthaler of Loch Lomond Yacht Sales, Philip Westscott and Jerry Bredahl of San Rafael Marine Repairs, Vic Lenci of Wentz Realty, disc jockey Carter B. Smith of KSFO, and several business firms.

When they were all through, complete to the stowing of two cases of Bogart's favorite beverage, gin, in her hold, the African Queen sparkled with new life.

And with the Union Jack flying overhead, she departed from new snug San Rafael Canal berth in June of this year, crossing the Bay safely to San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf where she began her new service on behalf of cancer research.

AFTER THAT first stop in San Francisco, the Queen moved on to Seattle to begin a national tour.

Along with the showing of the launch which movie fans and particularly members of the Bogart cult remember so fondly, a brief film narrated by John Huston, a close friend of the late actor, is screened. There is also a display of Bogart memorabilia, and of arts and crafts from Uganda.

The showings are under the auspices of the African Queen Cancer Foundation, and the proceeds are divided among local and national cancer research programs.

AS THE AFRICAN Queen travels, she attracts publicity in newspapers and on radio and television across the country that often makes prominent mention of the roles of the Marin volunteers in the restoration of the historic old vessel.

One such story appeared in Time magazine. And press service stories were carried in newspapers throughout the United States and overseas.

The movie buffs who turn out to see the Queen are not disappointed. There she is, her wood-burning boiler perhaps somewhat less rusty than it was in the movie, her deck less rickety and less soaked with oil. But the character that made the old boat an unforgettable part of an unforgettable picture is unchanged.

AS OWNER REEVE put it to Time: "I've bought a legend."

And it's a legend to which Marin County has made a substantial contribution.

THREE of the key figures involved in the project to restore the venerable old African Queen to the dignified status of her movie days enjoy just one part of the national attention those efforts have received — a story in Time magazine. Left to right are Fred Reeve, who purchased the Queen in Africa; Richard J. McCarthy, whose San Rafael repair firm coordinated the boat's facelifting, and public relations man Art Blum, representing the African Queen Cancer Foundation under whose auspices the boat is now touring, raising money for cancer research. The Poets Of The New Music

By GARY TISCHLER

Ting-tang-walla-walla-bing-bang. Hop-hop at the hop. Instant sound of the mildewed 50s.

The strange thing about the youth music of the 50s was that nobody else wanted it. The one thing remembered is that there was very little to remember.

Except: Dick Clark's teeth, Elvis Presley's hooker hips and Connie (Wow?) Francis. And all the hillbilly wailers burning up in mountainside plane crashes.

So tell Laura I don't love her, never really did.

Because things are different now.

THE KID CAN'T hoard his sound in a plastic corner, much as he'd like to. It's yours and mine now, like something close to universal.

Leonard Cohen writes books, the Beatles make movies and daddy digs Donovan. It's a whole new thing.

The people, and that's a plus right there, who sing today's songs very often also write them. Music once again has become a personal, bleeding-laughing kind of thing, eyes open, surveying the scene. The minstrels, jesters and poets have somehow risen out of the woodwork a little naked, but alive.

"I LIKE TO think that I make musical photographs," says John Stewart.

"Musically, I'm just a poet," says Gale Garnett.

Sideburned gentleman John and black-eyed Gale are part of that vague whirl of today's music that defies a tag. John lives in the Mill Valley backhills, Gale in a Belvedere cottage. Both have been way up there where the money rolls in, the autographed pictures roll out and it's big.

BOTH ARE BACK somewhere else now, not quite up, not quite down, on the pregnant edge of "maybe," trying something radically different, a little new, all their own.

From there, the similarities scatter and break, not just in a male-female way, but in sound, speed, living style and focus, a long quiet apart.

Not too long ago, John Stewart, now 28, sans sideburns and comfortable blue jeans, was the youngest, slightly troubled face on a million album covers of the Kingston Trio, the hit of the campus circuits and Las Vegas.

"WE EPITOMIZED the collegiate 60s. The fraternity beer bust. The clean hygienic look and a lot of nostalgia, with a touch of folk music. It was a lot of fun for me. But time ran out on us. And I wanted to do my own songs, my own way. We disbanded last June."

Stewart does his own songs now, lives his own way, unruffled it seems, by success or no success worries.

He's comfortable in his grass menagerie, a rambling place, full of children, dogs, cats, discarded toys, rope ladders and leaf shadows. There is a wife, Julie, a striking, languid woman whose name is sprinkled through some of his songs, three children (Mikel 6, Jeremy 5, and Amy 2½), a huge, loving St. Bernard, pups tucked away somewhere, and a suspicious beagle. And ghosts.

THERE IS THE house, once a children's school. ("It's haunted by the children. Really," whispers Buffy Ford, Stewart's blonde, wide-eyed singing partner). And Stewart's room, where he works, has walls crowded with Andrew Wyeth paintings, posters and Kennedy-clan mementos.

"He (Robert) was a friend. We went on the campaign road with him. I felt that he should run, and he did. We were recording in Los Angeles that night."

Now Stewart is quietly in his groove, home in a familiar place, a long way from Pomona and the Trio.

"I HAVE A creative outlet. A family, wife, and I'm intact of limb and mind."

His songs are unlike anything else being written in the field today. It is completely his world (although Sandburg, and Frost echo sometimes), peopled by slightly seedy, gray gentle men and women whom the dream has passed by, slowly, and who have not found the time to be bitter.

Names of old, small towns, California places and streets weave through the lines and melodies, leaving a grainy, real spell.

THERE ARE startingly, sometimes painfully familiar names of people who live on back streets, rummage in the backlog of childhood memories, expire in houses that need paint. The West and Midwest of a few decades ago are here, with a whiff of prairie-dust and toil-sweat.

Pomona, San Leandro, San Joaquin, Balboa, faded high-school clippings, a draft card in the mail, windblown fantasies are in his songs — not heroes, but things unnoticed before your eyes ("John writes songs you can touch," says Buffy).

"Clarence Malloy stands in his
is going away . . .
It had to come sooner or later
Clarence Malloy, you are draft age today . . .
and the boys have all gone to Balboa, with some girls that they met on the way . . .

"THE SONGS ARE about the forgotten people. They have a tremendous appeal, these people who go about their lives with a great amount of human dignity. You hardly notice them. It's my view of the world. They're people like the old guys that used to hang around race tracks. Hey, there's crazy old Zeke. They refused to let the world enter and break them. It's the courage of quiet responsibility.

People like Cody.

about the great Montana sky

'Performing Is Intoxicating' Says Gale

Cody sang to me and I could see Montana in his eye . . .
. . . there he falls down the road, won't you go and help him on his way . . .
he's the forgotten son of some old yesterday."

("Cody is a frontiersman given to fantasy, hanging on.")

STEWART IS sometimes confronted in the flesh by his own re-creations.

"I went back to Pomona once. Now it's a lot of cars lowered in front with guys sitting low in the seat. Going on the campaign trip, Buffy and I would actually be singing to some of the people whom I write about, and it's the first time they've heard anybody sing about them."

He has no noise, no big sound behind him ("The big band thing just wouldn't fit.") Sometimes they will do sets in Sausalito at The Lion's Share, a place seemingly suited for his kind of music.

BUFFY, A sort of fey 24-year-old girl from Kentfield who has a kind of child's charm and beauty about her, will light up as they go into a number. Stewart seems a little shy, casual, but comfortable. He smiles a little, chats a little, without even a fireplace.

And they draw a world. Bolinas, the San Joaquin, woodsheds and trains, road-dust and dull early-morning razorblades, the gnarled hand of a woman that worked. Little dreams that go "poof."

The pair have an album coming out next week called "Signals Through The Glass" on Capitol. Before that, Stewart coasted on money from "Daydream Believer," the first half of a caustic three-part song he wrote and which the Monkees (that's right) recorded and turned into a hit.

NOW, STEWART seems to be close again, with the big world whistling outside the door.

"I think we're in the brink," John Stewart says, casually—hopefully.

"I've been very rich, had it all. I'll probably have it all again."

Gale Garnett on the brink . . . again.

"I'm somewhere in the middle right now. I'm a semi-name. It could go anywhere now. You just have to make it go."

SHE CAN MAKE it go. She moves like some kind of carnival tornado.

What she had was a zooming big hit of a record — "We'll Sing In The Sunshine." 1964. RCA Victor. Grammy Award. Some more hits. And apparently not at all Gale Garnett.

"It was a 19th Century record company. They had me in the folk-singer groove and that's not me."

And before that it was Hollywood, the actress scene, doing native girls and tons of dubbing.

"I WAS SUPPOSED to study and train. Well, I didn't train worth a damn. It's a sluggish place, slow. The town is sexually backwards. Men leave their phone numbers and say: 'Call me.' The whole thing's reversed. It's full of sexual gadgets."

The girl comes on super-strong. Very female, free-spirited individualism pushed to a stylish, brassy cliff.

"I like to think of myself as hip, but I couldn't agree with Marshall McLuhan less. I still read books."

PICTURE A girl with a carved-out kind of beauty, scattered long, dark hair. Not Vogue magazine. Too alive. Big eyes, dark and wide awake.

There is the voice. Think of exploding, sugared soot, the way the good witch might have talked. Or sung, if she sang.

"It's been my cross to bear. I've had it since I was 5. (Picture a sexy 5-year-old). But it's mine. Nobody has one like it. It's me."

She's an Indianapolis girl, switching gears like A. J. Foyt coming into the straightaway. Cut to good-time, hi-there fella momma, switch to formal, sharply enunciated words, cut the No-Name Bar's resident swinger, then pan quietly to the druid person, hung up over death, pondering the morning headlines and throwing up.

"I FEEL I'M terribly aware of life. You don't have to be a victim to get sick over violence, assassination and dishonesty. The thought of the election of Nixon or Humphrey is unreal. It makes me want to flee."

As if maybe that black ugly is about to crash over the California state line, swallow up her Big Sur cabin, crash into Belvedere and blow away Paris in the process.

"You know, living out here is misleading. You begin to think the rest of the country is like this and it's not."

EVEN HERE, there is backwash.

"The weirdest thing happened. In Belvedere. This teen-age boy starts talking to me. He told me that I had better be careful, that they're watching me because I had all those long-haired people coming to my house. That's unbelievable. I'm very quiet. I don't play loud music. But they're watching me because of long hair. I couldn't believe it."

Like Stewart, Gale seems to be in some kind of groove now.

"I'VE TAKEN LSD. It helped me achieve totality. I don't need it any more so I don't take it. It's a chemical, all those chemicals in your body. I'm even nervous about taking birth control pills."

It is some kind of fragmented totality. She is 26, quarter of a century, and nauseated about death.

"I'm eclectic . . . enthusiastic . . . sentimental . . . anti-death . . . pro-life . . . an activist."

If Gale seems like some kind of emphatic super-woman ("I'm me, I'm alive" goes a song in "Your Own Thing"), nose-thumbing, red-hotting it, her music and songs, show something a little more muted and different.

IT'S A DIFFERENT kind of music. Say-something lyrics surrounded by a mind-blowing beat.

"Performing is intoxicating. Next to making love, there isn't anything like it. It's an exhausting kind of sharing, in a good way. You feel used up, and you hope you don't have to beg. It's a sacrifice and I feel naked up there."

("Doing your own songs in front of an audience," John Stewart said, "is like being naked.")

SHE TEARS right through the old pretty-girl-singer routine and leaves it a wreck. She sweats so you see it. She contorts. She moves.

She's backed up by her group — The Gentle Reign — organist Tony Hill, drummer Michael Aragon and guitarist Bruce

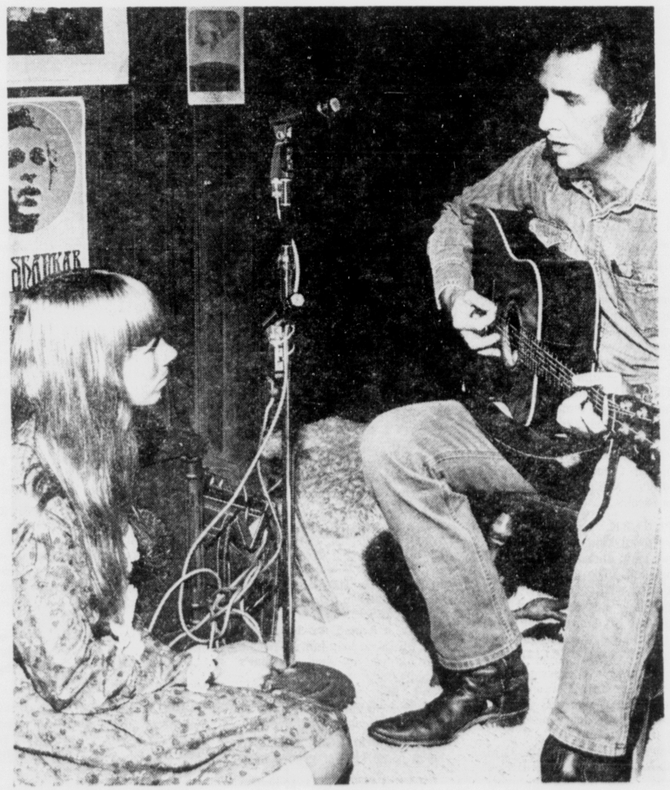
THE FACE OF John Stewart, right, was once a familiar one on television, college campuses, nightclubs and the concert stage, as a member of the popular

Kingston Trio. Since the trio disbanded, Stewart has been carving a new and more relaxed singing career as a single. More recently he has taken on a musical partner in blonde, wide-eyed Buffy Ford, a Marin girl.

THE INTENSITY that Gale Garnett brings to her singing is mirrored in these photographs taken by Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean during a rehearsal. "Performing is intoxicating," she says. "It's an exhausting kind of sharing, in a good way. You feel used up . . ." And she adds: "I'm eclectic . . . enthusiastic . . . sentimental . . . anti-death . . . pro-life . . . an activist." All these facets are reflected in the songs she writes and sings like, says writer Gary Tischler, "some kind of carnival tornado." The rehearsal scene is the upstairs of a building at the heliport on the Sausalito waterfront where many of the folk-rock artists and groups do their practicing.



IT'S REHEARSAL TIME for the team of John Stewart and Buffy Ford, and the latter listens as the former runs over one of his own songs. The scene is Stewart's own poster and painting decorated room in the house in the Mill Valley hills where he lives with his wife and three children. The pair have an album coming out next week on the Capitol label, and Stewart casually observes that he could be on the brink of success again.

The New Music — A Personal Thing

Horiuchi, a wildly talented trio.

Her songs are straight gut stuff. The love and after love route with a personal twist. Being a woman. The ugly outside things about society. Breaking out to something else.

"I WRITE ABOUT things that I believe are lovely. Unlovely things should be put down. Love — it's good and it's bad. I've chronicled an affair. It's just over and I'm not too happy about it."

The songs are either leaving, left and maybe try again. Very rarely is, but was and what next.

"Monday came swiftly . . .
I've looked all around me, but the pretty is gone.
The blame has no name and I want to die . . .
and the pretty is gone."

SHE RUNS THE gamut of up, down, tender, incisive lyrics in her songs from the soft "In My Mind's Own Morning," to the slightly harsh "Berkeley Barb Want Ad." And the fluctuating dangers of being up one moment, lost the next.

"Nobody gives a good godspeed for yesterday's bravery,
the day that you're a hero is the day before you're out . . . better buy some real estate heavy clothing for times when you get cold . . ."

And this business of being a woman.

"You wound up a mystic when you planned to be a woman at the start.
You don't believe in murder, you're too civilized,
besides you have a heart . . .
and you're breaking through."

LEFT-FIELD things come through sometimes. She wears an all-white net dress which she calls her ego dress.

"It makes me feel lovely. Not sexy, but lovely.

"I think I want to get to the point where I'm respected by my peers. I would like Donovan, the Beatles, to do my songs. That would be good. I'd like to think that I'm continually growing with my work and music."

She has an album on the racks with the enigmatic title of "An Audience With the King of Wands." There will be more.

SHE WILL probably never quite fit or move into the home-life groove.

"I'm violently opposed to marriage. I don't think two people should have to live together under binding rules, as if they were holy. But I love children and they get along with me. They still have their integrity intact."

It is a big word with her — integrity, as in honor, charm and style.

As with Stewart, the music, the life-style, is a personal thing. Non-manufactured, one and only real for both of them. A long cry from the 50s or anytime else. It's today.

(Copyrights: Songs by John Stewart, Montana Music Corp.; songs by Miss Garnett, Leprichon Music Corp.)

WHEN GALE GARNETT sings, she is backed by a group called The Gentle Reign. According to the vocalist, organist Tony Hill, guitarist Bruce Horiuchi and drummer Michael Aragon make up one of the most talented of the many young combos currently active on the West Coast. Scores of rock and folk groups now make the Bay Area their home base as San Francisco and its suburbs have become the centers for the new music.

Food Is Half The Fun Of Overseas Vacation

The Travel Pages

Ordering from a foreign menu when you don't understand a word of the language can be either hilarious or disastrous, according to whether your hunger or your humor is upfront at the moment.

"It's easy for Americans to figure out many of the items on a European menu, even without any language background," says Mary Gordon, Trans-World Airlines travel adviser and one of the most traveled women in the world.

French "boeuf" is not far from English "beef," and Spanish "esparragos" is close enough to asparagus not to cause any trouble. But without any German at your command, how are you to know that "reuhreier mit speck" is simply scrampled eggs with bacon?

MANY A traveler has rushed eagerly into his first restaurant in Italy with the word "spaghetti" already forming on his lips, only to search the menu in vain for that familiar dish. Unless, of course, he looks under the heading "zuppa."

His second surprise might come when, after carefully consulting his dictionary, he orders a "pero" for dessert, fully expecting a luscious fruit to be set in front of him. Alas, by putting the masculine ending on the word he has ordered the tree instead of the pear . . . and lost his waiter, too.

One of the helps Miss Gordon offers to the hungry traveler is her Menu Translator, listing words and translations for food commonly found on the menus of France, Spain, Italy and Germany. TWA will send a copy, free, to travelers who write to one of its offices.

READING THE menu is only the first — and least important — step in dining out in Europe. Sampling new dishes, or familiar ones prepared properly for the first time in your experience, is one of the highlights of a European vacation.

And for women traveling alone, Miss Gordon has another word of advice: If there's a famous restaurant on your list which you're just dying to visit, but you can't find an escort, go for lunch. You won't feel out of place.

Miss Gordon also enthusiastically recommends trying new foods in the countries you are visiting.

Maybe undisguised baby octupus is too much for you to take, no matter how the gourmets rave, but you shouldn't leave Portugal without making the acquaintance of their sardine dishes.

PERHAPS AT home you can't resist a big, gooey cake, but in Italy and Israel you'll become adept at peeling dessert fruit and end up thinking it's the perfect finishing touch.

If you're invited to a French home for dinner, you'll learn again what really fresh vegetables taste like, swimming in butter or properly sauced.

And if you don't order gazpacho before leaving Spain, you've missed one of the world's most delicious soups.

The Orient offers the westerner even greater opportunity for testing unknown delicacies. Chop suey and egg roll pale in comparison with less Americanized dishes of the Far East.

OF COURSE, when you fly overseas and back, you might make your first acquaintance with any foreign dish 30,000 feet up.

TWA's chefs, for instance, prepare foods that appear on menus all over the world.

On a first class Royal Ambassador flight to Europe perhaps you'll begin with a dollop of caviar to spread on thin wafers and sprinkle with diced onion, chopped egg white or yolk. Or, as you jet back from a vacation abroad, you're likely to find that all-time American favorite, filet mignon on your economy class card.

On transcontinental trips within this country, TWA gives you as many as five choices of American and continental entrees in first class, and three choices in jet coach.

FOR READERS who have grown hungry just thinking about food, Miss Gordon offers an easy-to-prepare whipped dessert she found in Italy. It can be served hot or cold.

The following recipe has been adapted for use in American kitchens:

ZABAGLIONE
Beaten Egg Dessert

6 egg yolks
6 tablespoons granulated sugar
6 to 8 tablespoons of Marsala wine

In a double boiler, combine the egg yolks, sugar and wine. Cook over hot water, beating constantly with an egg beater until think — about five minutes. Serve immediately. Makes six servings.

As a frozen dessert: Turn the temperature control on refrigerator to the coldest setting. Combine and cook wine mixture as above. Cool, then fold in one cup of heavy cream, whipped. Freeze in ice cube tray until just firm enough to spoon out. Makes eight servings.

A NEW PLAY by John Osborne is packing them in at London's Duke of York Theater in St. Martin's Lane.

Curtains Are Going Up In London

This winter season London's theater will dish up the kind of mixture for which it is famous: one part shocker, one part classic and one part castles-in-the-air; all stirred—not shaken — with the mad touch of English theatrical genius.

A revival of Christopher Fry's "Ring Among the Moon" and the hairy "Hair" provide the shocks; Sadler's Wells Opera (now in a new home, the London Coliseum), the National Theater playing "Love's Labour's Lost" and the sonorous pageant of the Royal Shakespeare Company contribute the classic.

Wacky Christmas pantomimes provide the fairytale ingredient.

THIS FALL there is a new element for the American theater buff — not to mention the traveling businessman who's tired of looking at hotel walls.

British Overseas Airways Corporation is offering a jet trip to Britain with eight good theater seats and 13 nights' accommodation thrown in as well.

There are several other juicy inducements besides. A car for three days with only a modest mileage charge; a polaroid camera loaned free (you buy eight rolls of film); a backstage visit at one of the theaters; a free casino membership, and a 10 per cent shopping discount.

FROM SAN Francisco the whole deal — called the "London Super Show Tour" — starts at $517. The price can vary according to when you decide to travel and which hotel you choose.

But if you are "allergic" to travel packages, you can always go over "on your own." Theater tickets in London are not difficult to obtain (except for the very biggest hits). Your hotel hall porter is your best friend in that regard. And ticket prices are much more reasonable than in New York City.

History And Festivity In Old Wexford Town

Ireland is making a determined bid for greater American tourist trade.

Indeed, the island republic does have much to offer the visitor — a serenity that still exists in few other places, a lush green landscape, mountains, seashore, lakes, a colorful history and culture, and a most friendly people, as well as long-standing ties with the United States.

And the costs of traveling, accommodations and entertainment are almost unbelievably modest.

THE TOURIST, however, does have one big problem — where to go and what to see? Ireland offers so many attractions.

One suggestion from an Ireland enthusiast: Include the town of Wexford on the island's southeast coast.

Wexford is a very old town with narrow, winding streets that seem to be straight out of antiquity. It is rich in history, and the surrounding countryside is beautifully scenic.

Americans will feel all the more at home because this is "Kennedy country" — the county from which sprang the clan that has provided our own nation with such great but tragically-fated leaders.

THERE'S A castle at Wexford. A waterfront with shipping. Some very interesting old churches. A great deal of folk singing and playing. And golf.

Nearby is Waterford with its famous glass works.

And in October, Wexford holds a festival that features opera, but also offers other music and arts, sports and gaiety.

Throughout the year each evening at 8 o'clock a member of the Old Wexford Society, a historical organization, conducts visitors on a free walking tour of the city.

THE IRISH people, bless them, are delightful anytime, but they are at their most charming when they are caught up in one of their festivals. And particularly when there is music involved. When the musicians, singers and dancers get together, some odd instruments are certain to appear. The colleen at left is playing a flageolet. The Irish have the knack of mixing culture and fun, and can even toss in some athletic competition.

A Picnic In Haiti

Not that the hotel luncheons in Haiti aren't Lucullan feasts — but a Haitian picnic can be an especially satisfying experience, even if it does take all day.

Half the fun is assembling the ingredients.

One of the supermarkets that dot Port-au-Prince is a good place to start. The shelves there will yield rum ($1 for a fifth of a dark and delightful potency called Rhum Barbancourt) for an apertif and the best French champagne comes off the shelf for under $5. The rum is drunk neat with a squeeze of lime, say the Haitians, and it goes down like fruit punch.

The Iron Market is the next stop. It is a teeming farmer's market which sells no iron but does have an array of mangoes, pineapples, fresh mushrooms, tiny tomatoes, quinipes (slightly tart grape-sized fruits) and small sweet bananas.

A selection of these completes the picnic hamper except for the main course and dessert. These are found off in the countryside.

The meat course will come from one of the little square stands on which a charcoal pot smoulders — those wonderful little chunks of pork, done slowly over the coals until all the grease is rendered, are called grillots. They're delicately flavored with onions which are roasted at the same time, but the woman who sells the grillots saves the onions for herself.

And along the road a bit one finds dessert: sugary chashew candy, in big chunks, is offered by enterprising youngsters who make it to sell much as American children have their lemonade stands.

Managing The Military

By DON KEOWN

THE ESSENCE OF SECURITY by Robert S. McNamara; Harper & Row, 176 pages, $4.95.

HERE AND HEREAFTER by Ruth Montgomery; Coward-McCann, 224 pages, 4.95.

Listen to this:

"But neither conscience nor sanity itself suggests that the United States is, should or could be the Global Gendarme. Quite the contrary, experience confirms what human nature suggests, that in most instances of internal violence the local people themselves are best able to deal directly with the situation within the framework of their own traditions. The United States has no mandate from on high to police the world . . . where our help is not sought, it is seldom prudent to volunteer."

Sound like Sen. J. William Fulbright, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy or the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy assailing the Johnson administration's Vietnam policy? Well, it isn't. The speaker is Robert S. McNamara, until recently secretary of defense under Lyndon Baines Johnson as well as under John F. Kennedy.

Also from McNamara's new book, "The Essence of Security":

"From the standpoint of combat readiness the United States has never been militarily stronger, and we intend to maintain that readiness. But if we think carefully . . . it is clear that this purely military posture is not the central element in our security. A nation can reach the point at which it does not buy more security for itself simply by buying more military hardware, and we are at that point. The decisive factor for a powerful nation already adequately armed is the character of its relationships that preserve its own intrinsic security."

McNamara then lists these relationships: protecting and assisting those developing countries that are willing and able to help themselves, achieving a more effective partnership with other nations in the sharing of international peace-keeping responsibilities, and reducing the risk of conflict with those states that might conceivably be tempted to confront us with arms.

How is it, then, that under the stewardship of a man of such principles, our military expenditures have mounted at a staggering pace, and our military forces have become mired in what seems to most observers to be internal violence in a country plainly unable or unwilling to help itself at least in the directions in which we would like to see it move?

Like Hubert H. Humphrey, Robert S. McNamara might plead that he was only one member of a team; he was not even the quarterback. Dean Rusk has been the signal-caller. And anyhow, coach LBJ has called the plays from the sidelines.

A more plausible answer, however, can probably be found in the complex character of McNamara. The former defense chieftain is unquestionably an acutely intelligent, decent and humane person. But he appears also to be a man of little passion. Convictions and ideals he has. But they are sufficiently malleable so that they seemingly can be hammered and reshaped to fit any reasonable set of circumstances.

Furthermore, McNamara is at heart a superb administrator, at his zenith in executing policies and directing personnel. But from our limited knowledge of his role in the policy-making, he was a great deal less forceful and effective there.

The country undeniably owes McNamara a considerable debt for bringing some semblance of order out of the mammoth and unwieldy military establishment, for opposing unrealistic expenditures and other harebrained proposals of the fanatical "hawks" in Congress, for reasserting the principle of civilian control of the armed forces, and for even saying "nay" at times to the pressures of the powerful industrial combine that feeds upon our armament appetite.

There is evidence that generally his voice was on the side of moderation in the councils of LBJ. It is just that his really basic ideas apparently were not presented generally with sufficient force to carry the day, although he did have his victories. Perhaps if he had spoken then as he does in "The Essence of Security," where he is sometimes eloquent, he might have prevailed against the State Department or even against Johnson himself, and our posture in Vietnam would be far different than it is today.

"The Essence of Security" is a well-written explanation of Secretary McNamara's thinking as he managed our enormous defense complex — collective security, nuclear weapons for deterrence only, a reliance upon a flexible response rather than massive retaliation, etc. The ideas expressed are usually sound and encouraging. It is unfortunate that they sometimes seem separated and apart from our military conduct during those same years.

"History," writes the former defense secretary, "has placed our particular lives in an era when the consequences of human folly are waxing more and more catastrophic in the matters of war and peace. In the end, the root of man's security does not lie in his weaponry, it lies in his mind. What the world requires . . . is not a new race toward armament, but a new race toward reasonableness."

What the world requires, too, McNamara might have added, is the efficient implementation, not just the eloquent expression, of that guideline.

ROBERT S. McNAMARA
U.S. is not a "global gendarme"

REINCARNATION is currently an "in" subject for book authors and publishers.

Whether this new surge of interest in an old subject will have salutary or detrimental effects can be debated.

It can be seen as an antidote for the gross materialism of today's society, providing understanding of our misfortunes and inspiration for self-betterment in order to earn a desirable entity in our next existence.

But it can also be seen as an excuse for society to escape responsibility for the injustices and hardships it imposes upon some of its less fortunate members, and as encouraging a kind of fatalism on the part of the individual who might come to feel predestined for handicaps and disappointments.

Readers of the newest book by Ruth Montgomery, "Here and Hereafter," can detect signs pointing in both directions, although she certainly accepts the favorable interpretation.

Her "A Gift of Prophecy: The Phenomenal Jeane Dixon" was a smashing best-seller, although Miss Dixon's supposed gifts were later discredited to a considerable extent. She followed that with "A Search for the Truth" about mysterious "guides" who brought messages through the medium of automatic writing.

Still exploring the psychical by-ways, Miss Montgomery in "Here and Hereafter" presents a long succession of experiences and testimonials concerning reincarnation. Some are supported by considerable evidence. But a good many are without substantiation.

The late mystic Edgar Cayce seems to figure in all non-fiction these days, except the cook books, and he is a prominent witness in Miss Montgomery's case on behalf of reincarnation or karma.

At one point even Miss Montgomery admits: "None of this proves the case for reincarnation. . . ."

But she hastens to add that "with such an impressive panel of witnesses, we surely can afford to keep an open mind, which is the hallmark of an intelligent man."

Miss Montgomery's own mind is closed on the subject. She believes. More skeptical readers will nevertheless find the book interesting and sufficiently persuasive to at least cause them to pause and consider a theory that has numbered among its advocates the likes of Aldous Huxley, Henry Thoreau, Waldo Emerson, Henry Ford, Harry Houdini and Arthur Schopenhauer.

The author has an answer for those who ask: "What if there is no such thing as karma, or reincarnation, or eternal life?" It's: "Yes, but what if there is?" And she suggests that we conduct ourselves in such a manner as to incur no karmic indebtedness for the future. Little or nothing can be lost through such behavior. A great deal might be gained.

BACK IN the 1920s a West Virginia University archivist and teacher named John Harrington Cox began wandering around the remote backways of Appalachia, collecting the folk songs of that region and their histories.

The outcome was the publication of "Folk Songs of the South" by the Harvard University Press in 1925, under Cox's editorship and West Virginia Folk Lore Society auspices.

Now it has been reprinted as a $3 quality paperback by Dover Publications, a house that has been especially active in the folklore field.

The Cox collection contains 185 songs and ballads, 29 of these accompanied by their music.

There are nine versions of "John Henry" alone. And in its pages you'll also encounter "The Yellow Rose of Texas," "Barbara Ellen," "Lord Randal," "The Soldier's Poor Little Boy," "The Arkansaw Traveler," "Pretty Sally," "Fair Margaret and Sweet William" and a host of other legendary characters whose memory was perpetuated when southern mountaineers tuned their fiddles and raised their voices.

"Folk Songs of the South" is a tuneful feast for country music students and enthusiasts.

MARK TWAIN'S anti-war parable, "The War Prayer," will be given a timely publication Sept. 11 by Harper & Row in association with St. Crispin Press, marking its first appearance as a single volume.

BOB GIBSON of the St. Louis Cardinals, hottest pitcher in baseball, has an autobiography, "From Ghetto to Glory," written in collaboration with Phil Pepe, scheduled for publication by Prentice-Hall in September.

Sleuths & Suspense

YOU'RE A LONG TIME DEAD by Richard Clapperton; Putnam's, 220 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

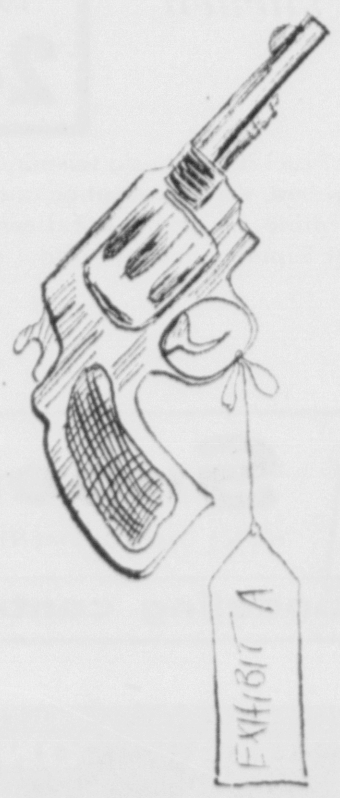
In his first novel, Richard Clapperton shows promise of becoming something of an Australian Raymond Chandler or Ross Macdonald.

He delivers the "hardboiled private eye" yarn about as well as it can be handled.

The setting is Sydney where Peter Fleck, new to the private detective business, has as his first client an oafish outlander who wants him to find his missing wife. When Fleck does find her, she is dead. His client is a suspect. And more murders are threatened, with Fleck a likely candidate for one of the victims.

Clapperton keeps his story moving at a brisk pace. The dialogue is crisp and the characters believable.

In England, where the book was published earlier, critics were enthusiastic. But the novel is cut more to the American pattern, and it should receive an even better reception here.



Tom Wolfe—Twice At Once

THE PUMP-HOUSE GANG by Tom Wolfe; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 300 pages, $5.95.

THE ELECTRIC KOOL-AID ACID TEST by Tom Wolfe; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 416 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

Wow! Zap! Tom Wolfe, twice-over, all at once. Too much!

It IS almost a little too much, two books by the master of a new action language, coming out at the same time, like simultaneously. It's been a long time since "The Kandy-Colored Tangerine-Flake Streamline Baby" whizzed on the scene in a blur of dazzling talent. Probably too long.

It's wild reading the two books, as if two different writers wrote them. The style is the same, running, reeking with color and sounds but something, as they say, came over the man in the acid test.

"The Pump-House Gang," is almost vintage Wolfe, sort of a son of Streamline Baby.

It is amusing, active, sharply observant, sometimes moving, but it is still Tom Wolfe detached from it all, saying, Wow, look at all the beautiful, stylish weirdos, it's too unreal, look at it all, I can't stand it, sucking in details in a great mass of little things.

In truth, it is a little unreal, from a curiously sad piece on the surf set, to a zombie-like tale about the richest recluse around — Hugh Hefner. For local fans of the booby trail, there is a rather touching piece on Carol Doda — "The Put-Together Girl".

It comes almost a shock to run into the second book — a long, long trip with Ken Kesey and his Merry Pranksters.

The style is there and it seems to fit like a glove. But Wolfe is in there now too, seemingly bowled over, right in the middle of it all, the Dandy sucked up in the maelstrom of a massive, beautiful kind of insanity.

Reviews Of New Reading

It is an outrageous book. It is a difficult book to read, not because of the style, but because it has a way of turning the reader inside out.

The subject has a lot to do with it. Kesey is that rare kind of human being that blesses the rest of the world once in a while — a true original — novelist ("One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest,"), acid-head, founder of a religion (of sorts), fugitive, drug guinea pig — enigmatic, messianic, some kind of burned-out, burn-again saint. If Timothy Leary, with little talent, is the acid generation's prophet, the Kesey, in his own lunatic way, was and maybe is, its Jesus.

This is what Wolfe is talking about and acting as a witness to — nothing less than a religion in the good old U.S.A.

The marvelously funny chronicle of the Prankster psyched-out journey across the United States in a multi-colored bus, a trip within trips, is one of the most richly comic journeys ever put on paper.

Wolfe, for once, has dropped his journalistic dandy pose, has gotten close to something, and twitched like crazy. And it's all there . . . probably as in truth.

Military Blockbuster Is Also A Spellbinder

ANTON MYRER
A meaty novel

ONCE AN EAGLE by Anton Myrer; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 815 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Myrer's new military novel is too massive to manage with one hand. And if that were not enough to arouse one's suspicions, it has been chosen by a popular book club.

Naturally, one expects yet another big, badly-written blockbuster, fated to sink into oblivion with a rapidity in direct ration to its weight.

But, happily, such is not the case at all. The staggering size is positively a plus, for this big, meaty novel that spans half a century and covers half the world, is that rare breed, a spellbinder of the "Gone With The Wind" style. It is a book even a reader indifferent to military life puts down (using two hands) reluctantly.

Never mind that Myrer's soldier is really too much to swallow, combining as he does the courage of a lion and the leadership of a messiah, with a gentle loving heart. And yet such is his creator's skill that we are willing to stretch a little, to believe in such a man. After all, there should be men like this!

The author has written brilliantly of war before, and it is not surprising that the many battle scenes are tours de force. But he seems to know all aspects of army life inside and out. He moves from the high drama of the battlefields to the bored wives marooned in peacetime backwaters and on to high-level strategy meetings of the great with absolute assuredness.

Texas, France, the Philippines, a guerrilla outpost in Northern China, a glittering party in Washington — the reader is carried willingly along.

Surely this is exactly how and what it is to be in the regular army, and this is how an idealistic "mustang" officer would react to the establishment.

Inevitably, the story climaxes in Vietnam.

Our hero, now a retired, unsung general, once more challenges his powerful arch-enemy, a four-star general who is avid to extend his domain by spreading the war to China. The confusion, contractions and corruption that permeate this section of the story are all too uncomfortably likely.

Necessarily, perhaps, the author's examination of the changing values over the century is simplified. The bad guys and the good guys are pretty rigidly drawn. But he raises some challenging questions.

And at the very least, he has written some magnificent entertainment.

Pleasant, Familiar Western Lore

GHOST TOWNS OF THE AMERICAN WEST by Robert Silverberg; Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 294 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The crumbling walls of what once were booming towns have provided many feature writers with material. Robert Silverberg treats them again, in "Ghost Towns of the American West."

Silverberg writes well and produces a pleasantly readable volume. But there is little in it that has not been told many times before.

The ghost towns whose stories he sketches are the familiar ones. Some are not ghost towns at all — Central City, Colo.; Virginia City, Nev.; Columbia and Placerville, Calif.; Tombstone, Ariz. (some of them ersatz ghost towns, perhaps).

Others are those whose stories have become familiar through much re-telling: Volcano, Bodie and Esmeralda; Austin and Aurora, Nev.; Bannick, Mont., etc.

Missing are such phantom one-time boom towns as Mercur, Utah, which at its thriving height was promoted by the anti-Mormon faction for the capital of Utah; French Corral, Calif., from which was strung the world's first long-distance telephone line to serve the mines on the San Juan Ridge; Rawhide, Nev., the fabulous boomtown created more by Tex Rickard's promotion than by the gold discovery; the turbulent towns of the Idaho Panhandle, whose violent history included occupation by federal troops and the beginnings of what became the Industrial Workers of the World, the famous "Wobblies"; Cripple Creek, Colo., the wild "town that never did anything by halves." And, of course, many others with pasts equally or almost as colorful.

No one book could hold all their stories. And there can be little quarrel with Silverberg's selection for those who merely want to dip their fingers in a little western lore.

For those who become fascinated and want more, there are other books — and many stories not yet preserved between hardcovers.

There Are More Ways To Fix Chicken Than Frying

FAMILY CIRCLE GREAT CHICKEN RECIPES edited by Patricia Curtis; Cowles, 160 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

It is safe to say that most Americans believe fried chicken cannot be improved upon.

Their conviction, however, might be shaken if they peruse this excellent collection of 207 recipes from Family Circle magazine and its test kitchen.

There's apple cider chicken, Brunswick chicken, cinnamon glaze chicken, chicken-corn chowder, chicken imperial, chicken gumbo, chicken tetrazzini, chicken livers stroganoff, baked chicken parmesan, and a wide variety of other ways to treat America's favorite fowl, ranging from the simple to the very elaborate. The dishes are American, European, Oriental and African in origin, quickly prepared and involved, bland and fiery, for an individual or for large banquets.

Even the cook most wedded to grandmother's method of frying chicken will be tempted to stray a bit and try a different approach.

Story Of A Wartime Mission Is Told In Five Dimensions

ONE BULLET FOR THE GENERAL by Patrick Turnbull; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 230 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

This is a novel set in wartime with its characters engaged in war — but it is more than just another war story.

Turnbull, who served in India in World War II, tells a gripping story of five men picked by the British to infiltrate enemy lines and assassinate a Japanese general in Burma.

Within this structure and without sacrificing any action, he blends in penetrating insights into the characters of each man on the mission.

By deftly weaving in the background of each man and his motivation, Turnbull tells five individual stories with each intriguing in itself.

There is an added tone to the novel because each man is of a different nationality with a different attitude toward the mission.

Turnbull presents what might be described as a five-dimensional look at war, which manages to inform while it entertains. A native of South Africa, he doesn't spare the British from an unflattering portrayal.

The outcome is unexpected, but in retrospect the reader realizes it could have been hardly any other way.

MARIN'S Magic Circle program offering group work for boys and girls in drama instruction at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross is preparing for its sixth season, starting next month. Actually, however, its director Marion Hayes Cain, first began conducting a similar project 30 years ago at the Sausalito's Women's Club. Photos above and at left show scenes from past productions. At tops, are Alice Jacobs, right, and Jane Watts in roles in "Jack and the Beanstalk" last season. At left, Jack Jenkins, left, shows Holly Watts and Mike Lessin "The Golden Goose." The Circle accepts students from age 4 up. The younger group is involved in story-play and creative dramatics. Boys and girls ages 8 through 12 are instructed in body movement, speech, improvisations, literature and music appreciation, scene study and theater techniques. The children receive opportunities for actual performances in Magic Circle productions. Mrs. Cain says plans call for the organization of a special teen-age affiliate of the Circle.

We'll dip doughnuts
And talk about places,
The kill zones,

And sigh with disgust on our faces.

Won't you join me?
We'll play cards
And discuss everything—
The problems
Of everyday life;
And be proud of the good this will bring.

SAN ANSELMO — DAN KEENER

On The Stereo Scene—

Some More Rock Records — These Good, But Short Of Being Fantastic

By JOHN SUNIER

Having covered in a recent column some of the really fantastic recent rock releases that caught our ears, we will devote this space to other very good but not quite top category releases.

"Wheels of Fire," (Atco SD 2-700) is the most recent album by Cream — a lavish two-disc package with wild and wiggly drawings on a silvered background on the outside, and psychedelically colorful eyes on the inside.

The LP misses the success of "Disraeli Gears" because of a deficiency in the original-song-writing department. Most of the songs are their own, and while the group's performing skills are great, and the production elements very attractive, there is sameness and lack of spark in the writing.

Also, I decry the trend to double-disc albums. (The Beatles are thinking of putting out a triple-disc package soon.) A return to 10-inch LPs would promise more good music with less filler garbage on many rock and jazz LPs too.

Anyway, a fine instrumental on this album of Cream is "As You Said." "Politician" is a fairly exciting vocal, and on the second disc, which was taped live at the Fillmore Auditorium, "Crossroads" and "Spoonful" are both standouts.

BLUE CHEER, like Cream also a trio group, made quite a splash locally with their album "Vincebus Eruptum" (Philips PHS 600-264).

This group makes a lot of sound for their size, mostly in the low bass, electronically distorted area. While this is interesting for a while, it soon gets tiresome.

My favorite tracks were "Summertime Blues," and "Out of Focus." The misspelling of Mose Allison's "Parchman Farm" shows the unfamiliarity of these boys with the basics of the blues whereof they sing.

THE RASCALS are an East Coast group who haven't received too much attention here, but they are doing some very worthwhile albums, often hitting a very authentic-sounding rhythm and blues groove.

"Once Upon a Dream" (Atlantic SD 8169) is a big production similar in execution to the Beatles "Magic Mystery Tour" album.

Most of the songs are by Eddie Brigati and the very talented Felix Cavaliere, both group members. A large group of assisting musicians add a variety of lavish backings; there are sound effects added, and the fancy packaging includes a special booklet of solarized photo studies of the Rascals.

Cavaliere is especially good on his sitar solo, "Sattva," and the LP also features the first song about Hawaii that hasn't turned my stomach — "My Hawaii," sung by Brigati.

ERIC BURDON and The Animals are an eclectic sort of group. Their "Sky Pilot" is presently a hit single.

This album, "Winds of Change" (MGM SE-4484) includes two tracks that have been very popular locally: "San Franciscan Nights" and "Man-Woman." The latter is a sort of declamation with bongo drum riffs to add excitement. It is moving but at the same tends to get on my nerves.

Burdon seems to me similar to Johnny Rivers in doing a very expert job at most of what he tackles, but not being exactly "with it."

For an enjoyable romp with a Fats Waller-sort of flavor, try "Boogie with Canned Heat" (Liberty LST-7541). This album is in a Lovin' Spoonful-type bag with Alan Wilson and Bob Hite providing frequently funny vocals.

Moby Grape has had its ups and downs. Their first LP is rather old now, but I just got it and find it likeable. The group has a good swing to it, and the songs — all their own — are dandy. Skip Spence seems to be the best talent of the group. (Columbia CS 9498)

ANOTHER San Francisco group is Sly and The Family Stone, comprised of seven integrated individuals who turn out a very raunchy blues-Motown sound. The use of trumpet, sax, organ, etc., add a dynamic fullness to their interpretations.

Sly Stone is a fine vocalist and my only complaint would be a certain sameness about everything, which is a Motown hallmark. (Epic BN 26 371).

The second album by Country Joe and The Fish (Vanguard VSD-79266) is titled "I-Feel-Like-I'm-Fixin'-to-Die," and David Cohen's get-up on the cover portrait certainly apes the "Majesties" album by the Rolling Stones.

This package contains the clever Fish Game inside, which really would be funny only to Bay Area people who know all the local references. It's sort of a pot-era Uncle Wiggly game — at one step on the journey from Leo's Music Store to the Fillmore: Score One Joint.

Tune-wise, my favorites were the title tune, quite a strong protest song in itself, and beautiful "Janis," honoring Janis Joplin, the amazing blues singer with Big Brother and The Holding Company.

"THEIR SATANIC Majesties Request" (London NPS-2) is the new Rolling Stones album distinguished by a 3-D color photo on the cover. Some of the Beatles are visible in the blurred background.

The packaging also includes a wild collage and a maze.

Musically, it is far, far out — the Rolling Stones have returned to a straighter style for the album they are now working on. Longest track is "Sing This All Together," which really has some mind-blowing effects. I liked "She's a Rainbow," with a full sound of added strings. This one is a natural for headset listening.

All in all, an interesting experiment that just doesn't match the Beatles, I'm afraid.

THE LP BY the Procol Harum (Deram DES 18008) is also an "oldie," but I just got it. The big hit of "A Whiter Shade of Pale," with its Bachian organ accompaniment, is the first track, but the other nine tunes are uniformly worthy of repeated listenings.

Gary Brooker is the vocalist on almost all, and Matthew Fisher the terrific organist. Because of the consistency of the vocal-organ bit, one side at a time might be enough for listening purposes.

The Mothers of Invention are an impossible, outrageous rock aggregation led by the outspoken Frank Zappa. Their album "Absolutely Free," (Verve V6-5013X) assails their usual targets of establishment America, plastic people, self-righteous patriotism and religion, while singing the praises of some of Zappa's loves, such as the high school world.

Much of the Mothers' work is sophomoric and their references to the world of classical music are so artificially tacked-on as to be frequently ludicrous, but in numbers such as "Call Any Vegetable," and "Brown Shoes Don't Make It," they hit a number of nails right on the head and tickle the funnybone at the same time.

Often I feel that if they could just compress their free-form creations a bit, they would really have something.

THE FIFTH Dimension's first LP, "Up, Up and Away," (Soul City SCS-92000) is also out some time now, but deserves a good word for the smooth and swinging work of their tastefully commercial group vocals in a Mommas and Pappas bag. The title tune is of course the big hit, but most of the others, such as "Go Where You Wanna Go," and "Learn How to Fly," have the same happy, soaring vocal sound that is so pleasing.

The sounds of the 20s and 30s provide a theme for two recent albums, Harpers Bizarre's "Anything Goes," (Warner Bros. WS 1716); and The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band's "Ricochet" (Liberty LST-7516).

The five young men of Harpers Bizarre had a big hit in "Feelin' Groovy," and in their second LP strike a return-to-the-Swing-Era theme with tunes by Cole Porter and Glenn Miller, plus a bit of bluegrass and some up-to-date but nostalgically romantic songs. The "Anything Goes" theme keeps returning, tying together the various tracks.

THE NITTY Gritties are more authentically camp, but lack the production and backing of the Harpers Bizarre. I liked "Happy Fat Annie," and "Shadow Dream Song."

"Chuck Berry Live at Fillmore Auditorium with The Steve Miller Band" (Mercury SR. 61138) is the lengthy title of a very exciting gem of real blues singing and playing. Classic such as "C. C. Rider," "Flying Home" and "Everyday I Have the Blues" share the groovy grooves with originals by Berry.

This black guitarist has a way with the instrument that is electrifying, and that's no pun. One of the best of Johnny Rivers many albums is his recent "Realization" (Imperial LP-12372). His tasteful interpretations of hits by Bob Dylan, Oscar Brown, Scott McKenzie and others are pleasureable listening. His original tune, "Going Back to Big Sur," is a highlight of the LP, too.

We'll complete this survey of the rock records next week, including a look at some discs that just don't make it at all.

LOUDSPEAKERS, WOOFERS, TWEETERS —What are woofers, tweeters, mid range horns and how are they used?

The usual loudspeaker produces audible sound waves by vibrating a paper-type cone or a small diaphragm in air to set it into motion. Because of such physical parameters as size of cone or diaphragm, stiffness of flexible mounting material, etc., it is economically unfeasible to produce a loudspeaker with a single cone or diaphragm than can reproduce the entire audible range evenly. To overcome this problem, loudspeakers are designed to cover a smaller portion of the audible range. Then, by combining two or three units, each unit covering its own portion of the audible range, the loudspeaker group or system can reproduce the entire range smoothly.

The bass or lower range of tones are generally reproduced by a 10 inch or 12 inch or 15 inch speaker with a circular paper type cone. These units are designed to reproduce smoothly the range of tones from about 30 vibrations, now called 30 Hertz instead of cycles, to about 1000 vibrations. These bass units are commonly referred to as WOOFERS. In a two-way speaker system, the range from 1000 vibrations to about 15,000 vibrations is reproduced by a second unit designed for these frequencies. This high frequency unit may be a small three or four inch cone type speaker or it may be a small exponential horn with a small diaphragm in its throat. The high frequency unit is called a TWEETER. Some manufacturers prefer to use a three-way speaker system. The three-way system incorporates a third speaker, usually an 8 inch cone type unit or a larger exponential horn with a diaphragm at its throat. This unit is called a MID-RANGE horn or speaker and is generally designed to reproduce the range from about 800 vibrations to 5000 vibrations.

The CROSSOVER NETWORK is an electronic device used with two-way or three-way loudspeaker systems. Its purpose is to supply the woofer with tones only in its respective range such as 30 to 1000 Hertz, and to channel the frequencies from 1000 to 15,000 Hertz to the tweeter. In a three-way system the crossover network divides the tones into three ranges and supplies the correct range to the respective speaker.

Two-way systems and three-way systems can be of equal quality. It is a matter of preference in the design of the speaker units. Visit us for a demonstration of full range sound.

Marinites Like A Tropical Look

Shrubs with bold leaf patterns enjoy a special popularity in Marin County.

There is good reason for this. For Marin architecture, with its atriums, patios, lanais, pools, terraces, etc., is enhanced by plantings that create a tropical effect.

And it is the bold leaf pattern plant that best achieves the feel of the tropics with their cool look that remains so refreshing even when the temperatures zoom upwards.

IF MARIN gardeners have a favorite in this group, it has to be the Aralia.

While its large leaves make it an excellent accent choice, the Aralia can also be interplanted among other shrubs and still maintain its distinctive appeal. They are at home in tubs, in patio settings or in the open ground. In general, they require no pampering when grown in Marin's favorable climate.

The Rubber Plant, a Ficus family member, is another Marin tropical favorite with its luxuriant foliage. Several varieties with different leaf shapes are available.

FATSHEDERA IS a semi-vine — a hybrid of the Aralia and Ivy. It has the glossy green color of one parent and the rambling growth of the other — and leaves that look like just what they are, half Aralia and half Ivy.

It can be used in darkly shaded places where other vines do not flourish. It will grow in a tub, make a good covering for a wall under an overhang, or scramble ivy-like up a support.

It needs only an occasional pruning to keep it in order.

NOTHING IS more effective in creating a tropical landscaping effect than the philodendron, available at nurseries in a number of varieties that range from the huge, serrated-leafed outdoor ones to smaller vining types suited for patios or indoor culture.

GLOSSY LEAF ARALIA with its giant leaves is typical of the so-called tropical plants in its versatility. And thanks to its size, an Aralia, from the moment it is transplanted, makes an impact in the garden. (Photo courtesy of California Association of Nurserymen)

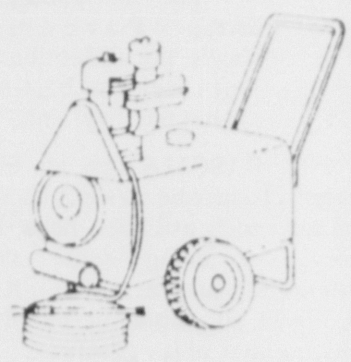
A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Plant early-blooming sweetpeas now, and if the weather is favorable you may have flowers for Christmas. Chicken wire or especially designed nets make good trellises.
- Cut back your roses a little more drastically now, and feed them for fall flowering.
- Hibiscus in bloom can be transferred from the nursery container into your garden for continuous summer bloom.
- Keep your chrysanthemums staked, but discontinue the practice of pinching off the side buds.



- Azaleas and camellias should be fed now if you haven't done so within the past three or four weeks. Use an acid food.
- Freesias are a spring bulb that prefers early planting. Get them into the ground within the next 30 days for best results.
- Your Shasta daisies are probably still blooming. But if or when they are through, they should be divided. Fall divisions have a chance to re-root during the winter, meaning more flowers next summer.

When There's Water In The Joints

Water damage to brickwork is a problem far from the minds of Marinites in August.

But August has passed and fall rains can't be far away. And when they come, trouble could appear.

Unfortunately, faulty mortar joints often go unrepaired until the damage becomes severe. All this time, water seepage may have been doing its "dirty work" inside and undetected.

One way to discover warning signs on the outside is to inspect the brickwork periodically for crumbling mortar and/or gaps between the mortar and the bricks.

These joints can be repaired with new mortar and a hammer, cold chisel and pointing trowel.

MORTAR IS available by the bag, ready mixed, with only water to be added. But application of the mortar must be preceded by removing as much of the old mortar as will come loose by tapping with the chisel and hammer. It must be tapping only, since you don't want to loosen or break mortar that is solid or crack the bricks.

Wipe or blow out bits of sand and mortar dust in the joint.

The next step is to wet thoroughly the area to be patched. Apply a small amount of mortar into the joint at a time. This permits packing the mortar tightly and keeps the face of the bricks relatively clean.

AFTER THE mortar has been allowed to set for a few minutes, make a drainage joint so water will run off. Bricklayers have a variety of such joints at their command.

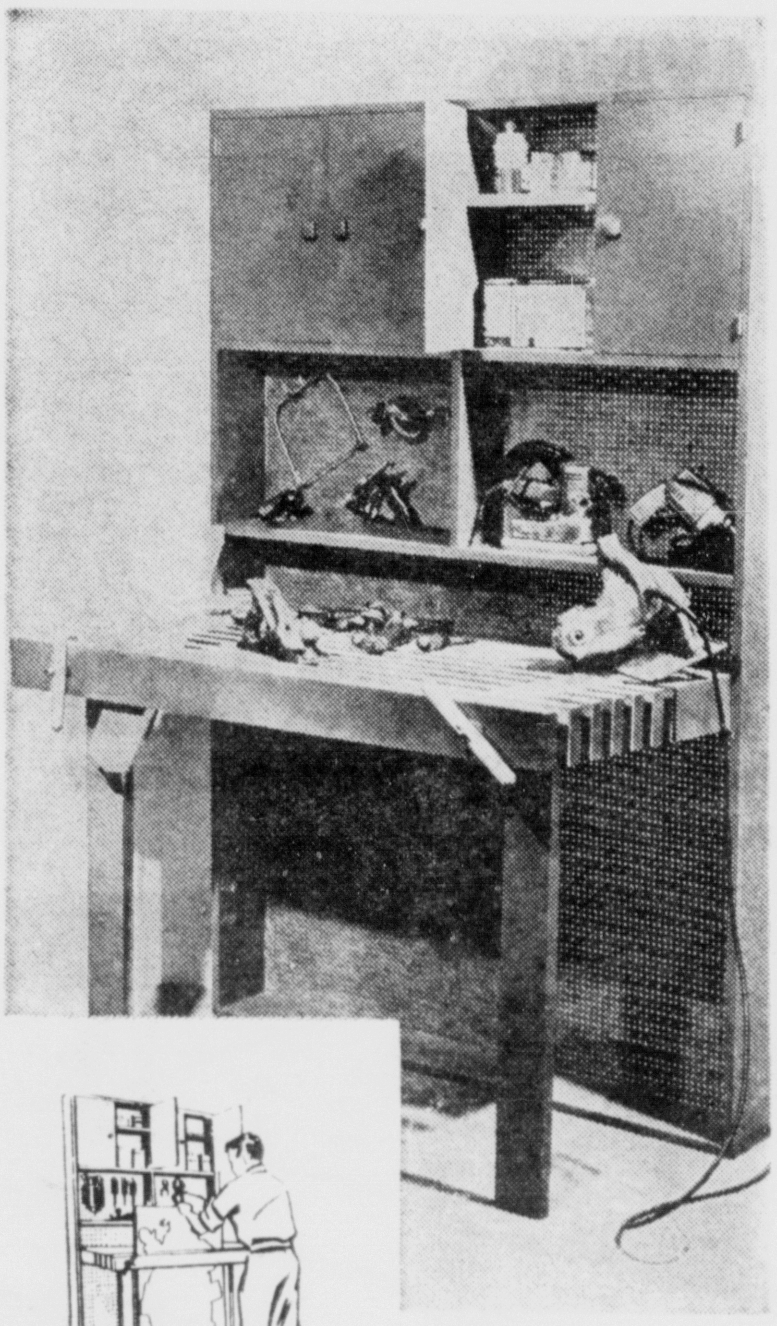
The beginner should use a simple V joint, made by pressing the trowel into the mortar so as to make an indentation in the middle.

WITH A brick chimney, special attention should be given to the mortar joints where the roof flashing meets the brickwork. Any cracks or openings in this sector should be sealed — with fresh mortar if they are above the line of the flashing, with roofing cement if they are on the line. Use the roofing cement generously.

If there are any white stains on the brickwork — a condition known as efflorescence — scrubbing with a wire brush and plain water may erase them. However, an acid probably will have to be used for at least some of the stains. A solution of one part of muriatic acid to five parts of water will deal with the hard-to-remove stains.

IN BRUSHING in the acid, try to keep it away from the mortar joints.

When the stains have been removed, flush the bricks with water to which ammonia has been added; about one teaspoon of ammonia to a gallon of water.



IT'S SIMPLE to build this sturdy combination workbench and tool storage unit. Since it requires little floor space, it is ideally suited to a basement, garage, hobby room or boy's room. Besides providing a wonderful place to use tools, the big storage compartments and perforated tool rack permit storing tools within easy reach. Full size pattern and simplified step-by-step directions take all the sweat out of building the versatile workshop. Send 75 cents to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., and ask for Easi-Bild's Foldaway Workbench Pattern No. 576. Include your zip code number. When not in use, the four-foot wide, six-foot high bench requires but six and a half inches of floor space. When open, you have space for dozens of uses. A vise almost four feet long runs across the entire front of the bench and is sufficient to accommodate large panels of plywood or extra long lengths of lumber. The slotted top permits wedging panelboard or lumber in position vertically when sawing or planing. With the addition of another panel of plywood, the bench can be used as a sewing table, trainboard, potting bench, or for almost any other hobby need. By fastening the workbench top in a lower position, it can also be used by children of every age.

SUCCESS STORY

'Takes A Thief' Cast Is Carefree Crowd

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is the time of the year when worrying is a way of life for the inhabitants of televisionland.

If you are connected with an established show that has gone merrily along for two years or 10, you worry about the competition and whether the viewers will love you in September as they seemed to last March.

If you are involved in a new series, you worry about everything — the competition, particularly if part of it consists of feature movie re-runs; the time period; the scripts; the format, and — mostly — the reaction of the fickle, inscrutable public.

THE ONLY relatively carefree crowd is found working in a series that was tossed into a mid-season vacancy in a network schedule and, somehow, caught on.

One of these last season was ABC's "It Takes a Thief," which not only proved a popular winner, but attracted an audience that saved the show that followed it, "N.Y.P.D." which had been slated for extinction.

"I was pretty unhappy when ABC gave us that mid-season spot," said Robert Wagner, the star of "It Takes a Thief." "I liked the show and I liked my character, but I figured it was all down the drain."

THE PUBLIC liked the character, too.

Wagner plays a jaunty, debonaire thief using his skills as a super-agent. What makes it all sort of a mystery, however, is that at the time the show made its debut, jaunty, debonaire super-agents had become a drug on the market—"Laugh-In," in fact, had replaced the jauntiest, most debonaire of them all, "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."

"Ours just took off," said Wagner. "When we started production all we had was one script. We worked 17 hours without a break and I think now the terrible pressure of deadlines kept us on our toes and added something."

ROBERT WAGNER
Jaunty, debonaire

NOW, ESTABLISHED as a hit, the emergency is over, the production plan is made — and with success has come an extra dimension.

"Writers now are interested in doing scripts; actors and agents want to get involved with the show," Wagner said.

Wagner, who has been a successful film actor for more than 20 years, is committed to the series under the usual five years contract. He is happy with the prospect although it means giving up some film assignments.
